

Faure Battles For Election

PARIS (UP) — Premier Edgar Faure went before the Senate today to fight for his December election bill and early forecasts said he would be routed, plunging France into its 21st postwar political crisis.

ville called the 320-member upper chamber to debate the premier's plan to hold nationwide elections Dec. 18 under a modified version of the 1951 voting system.

Faure was given little if any chance to push his bill through the Senate although it was approved by the lower house, the National Assembly, in a confidence vote last Saturday.

Army Finishes 'Sagebrush'

FT. POLK, La. (AP) — Zero hour came today in the United States' biggest peacetime military maneuvers—a war game with a pattern strikingly similar to what could happen if Reds break the Korean truce or choose aggression elsewhere.

Generals disclaimed intention to shape the tactics and theoretical situation in Exercise Sagebrush to any existing condition.

But as 140,000 men and 1,200 warplanes poised for the beginning of an "aggressor" offensive, the picture had a grim similarity to that in the Far East.

And here appeared also to be this forwarding to real aggressors: the emphasis this time was on atomic weapons for both air and ground forces.

The script which set the situation for the huge war game over seven million acres of western Louisiana plains was this:

A truce between aggressor and United States forces had been in existence. Standing between the two forces was a demilitarized zone. To this point, only the 38th Parallel seemed to be lacking to make the picture match Korea.

The aggressor broke the truce and attacked United States forces across the demilitarized zone.

This mock war is tactical in nature, involving no strategic bombing missions deep into a sanctuary land. That too was like Korea.

Like the Air Force, the ground force's emphasis was on swift mobility and atomic firepower—the Corporal guided missile, the Honest John bombardment rocket, the 280 mm. cannon.

The Senators objected to Faure's proportional representation plan which means seats in the National Assembly are divided proportionally if no single party gets a majority in the voting.

Faure threw out an election rule allowing small parties to form alliances and swap votes after the elections, which was mainly directed against the Communists.

The senators feared this would seat 160 Communist deputies in the future chamber rather than the 94 members the Reds now have.

The Senate election committee rejected Faure's bill Monday night and introduced a bill of its own calling for adoption of pre-war district voting where by ballots would be cast for individual deputies rather than for party slates.

A defeat for Faure in the Senate would not force him out of office. But it would mean a stiff new battle in the National Assembly with an increased chance that the Senate-sponsored system would be accepted this time.

The deputies have rejected the district system of voting three times. But it was only Communist support that saved Faure on the third vote.

Faure's government also faced internal troubles. The Catholic labor unions decreed a virtual air blockade of France by extending a strike of ground crews against Paris terminals to out-country airports.

Harriman Hedges On Nomination

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Averell Harriman said Tuesday that anyone wanting the Democratic presidential nomination would have to work for it. And he added: "I'm not going to work for it."

In a radio network broadcast (ABC), Harriman also touched on the current Geneva conference and said he considered it "foolish" of Secretary of State Dulles to have been as optimistic as the governor said Dulles had been recently concerning relations with Russia.

As for the Democratic presidential choice, Harriman said in answer to questions by news commentator Martin Agronsky: "No one is going to be offered this nomination."

Although he did not say so on the broadcast, Harriman is known beyond doubt to be willing to take the nomination.

Artifact Study To Continue

TULELAKE — A survey started in 1951 by two University of California graduate students of anthropology is being continued this fall in this area.

Indian burial sites in the Lava Beds National Monument, on Lower Klamath Lake and elsewhere in the Klamath Basin, have been studied by Robert Squier and Gordon Grosscup.

The two have also visited a number of private collections of Indian artifacts gathered by local residents. Dozens of small collections contain some prize items, it is announced by the two students.

Among the exhibits are a portion of a bone pendant, said by the students to be worn only by the Eskimos of the north. They also found a rock believed to have been used to weight spears for throwing used by various tribes of men from 1500 B.C. to 5 A.D.

Squier and Grosscup plan to return here next summer for a tour of the Klamath Indian reservation.

Small collectors include among others, A. E. Ryckman, John O'Shea, Roscoe Burkhurst and Burris Short.
