

Judge Rules On Solicit Ban

PORTLAND (AP) — Circuit Judge Alfred T. Sulmonetti Tuesday ordered Gresham police not to enforce their door-to-door soliciting ban in connection with the distribution and sale of religious literature.

The restraining order was issued at the request of attorneys for Elder Lloyd C. Wyman, a Seventh-Day Adventist pastor, Wyman was arrested in a "friendly" test—a week ago after he tried to sell religious tracts and a Bible to the Gresham police chief. His supplies were confiscated.

Wyman was accused of violating the town's "Green River" ordinance which bans door-to-door sales without a license.

Wyman contends that the ordinance violates the First and Fourteenth amendments of the Constitution which guarantee freedom of speech and religious expression, equal protection under the law and ban seizure of property without due process of law.

The case will be ready for trial here Jan. 15.

The Seventh Day Adventist Church has stated the case will be taken to the U. S. Supreme Court if necessary.

The Green River ordinance—named for Green River, Wyo., where it first was written—is in effect in a number of Oregon communities, including Cottage Grove, Silverton, Redmond, Madras, Springfield and Bend.

Exiled Ben Youssef Returns To Rabat; Slates Home Rule

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Sultan Sidi Mohammed Youssef returned to his palace Wednesday after a two year exile. An estimated 100,000 Moroccans swarming around the walls shouted a thunderous welcome.

The sultan's name rang through Rabat in one long deafening shout of nationalist rejoicing at his return and the promise of greater independence from France.

The 41-year-old sultan landed from his special plane shortly before noon and drove through an unparalled Moroccan welcome to his palace. He stepped from the plane amid flowers thrown by young girls as a dozen escorting French fighter planes swept overhead.

Almost every prominent dignitary among Moroccans was on hand for the climactic ending of the exile which started two years ago when the French whisked Ben Youssef away because of his nationalist leanings.

On his return, French troops and an honor guard saluted smartly.

In the underbox atmosphere, violence was just beneath the surface but the initial critical moments apparently passed off well.

The sultan made a short speech to the throng in the palace courtyard. He omitted politics and afterward the crowd responded surprisingly well to appeals to disperse.

Some of the Sultan's extreme nationalists have become disillusioned with him because of his steps upon French-Moroccan friendship and "interdependence" rather than Moroccan independence.

The 41-year-old Sultan took off from Paris, this morning in the same four-engine plane that brought him from his exile in Madagascar a few weeks ago. A party of French dignitaries saw him off. The Sultan's wives, concubines and household servants followed in another plane.

In a parting statement, he expressed satisfaction with the way French officials had understood his views of Moroccan problems.

Rabat residents showed their joy over his return by displaying huge portraits of the sovereign, and stretching banners which hailed "the great fighter come back to his country in victory."

In a gesture of good will, French authorities announced that the nationalist daily El Ain (The Banner) would be allowed to appear again. It was banned three years ago.

The French also released more than 1,100 political and other prisoners and canceled the curfew last night.

French trucks helped put up the triumphal arches.

Americans and their families working on big U. S. air bases in Morocco were warned by U.S. authorities to stay close inside their homes and barracks, and especially not to frequent Moroccan areas and French bars, theaters and restaurants.

Ben Youssef was deposed and exiled Aug. 20, 1953, by the French with the support of Berber chieftains led by Thami el Glaoui of Marrakech. His aging uncle, Mohammed Ben Moulay Arafa was put in his place. Moulay Arafa went into exile in Tangier, the international zone of Morocco, Oct. 1 when the French withdrew their support, and finally abdicated.

Three Perish In Hotel Room

TAGOMA, Wash. (AP) — The bodies of two men and a woman were found in an almost-airtight motel cabin southwest of here Tuesday night when the motel owner called to check possible frozen water pipes.

The three persons, believed asphyxiated when oxygen in the air was consumed by two burning butane jets, were identified as:

Harold G. Wise, 28, an Army chief warrant officer stationed at Ft. Lewis.

Joe Rosa, 54, employee of the Mt. Rainier Ordnance Depot and resident at the motel cabin for the past three weeks.

Louisa H. Tomlinson, not otherwise identified.

Clyde Babcock, 54, owner of the motel, forced the cabin door when he received no answer to his knock. He found the bodies of Rosa and the partially clad woman on a bed and called the sheriff's office.

Police found Wise's body in the bathroom, near the only open window in the cabin. He apparently had staggered to the bathroom after arising from a cot.

R. B. McCredie, Pierce County chief criminal deputy, said a number of empty beer bottles were found in the place. An autopsy was scheduled.

Salesman Injured In Car Accident

ALTURAS—Sgt. Lou Wright of the California Highway Patrol reports that Frank Hall, a salesman from Klamath Falls, overturned his car at Indian Springs south of Adin Mountain summit Saturday night about 9:45 p.m.

Hall was taken to the Modoc Medical Center by George Combs for treatment for cuts on his leg, head and ears. No other vehicle was involved, Wright said.

Thieves Enter Lakeview Y Station

Thieves entered the Richfield oil station at Lakeview Y Junction sometime Monday night and stole several items from the stock. Oregon State Police reported today.

Taken were 28 quarts of motor oil, three gallons of anti freeze in several sizes of containers, and an auto battery.

Otho Bell Returns Home

OLYMPIA (AP) — Home at last with his wife and 4-year-old daughter, Otho Bell says he's enjoying his first real freedom since he was captured in Korea in 1950.

Bell, 24, one of three turkotars released by the Army last week came here Sunday and has spent the intervening time getting acquainted with Paula, the daughter born while he was overseas. With his wife, Jewell, he plans to establish a permanent residence here.

Paula cuddled in his lap as he talked to newsmen here Tuesday.

Bell said he plans to rest until the first of the year, then he will get in touch with other former prisoners of war in Korea to form an organization of ex-POWs to fight communism.

The ex-Army corporal was captured in Korea in the fall of 1950. When hostilities ended in Korea, Bell refused repatriation and elected to remain with the Chinese Communists.

After 18 months with the Chinese, Bell and two others decided to come home. They were arrested by the Army when they reached San Francisco last July but were freed last week after a federal judge, acting in line with a U.S. Supreme Court decision, held the Army could not try them since it already had discharged them.
