Eisenhower Moves To High Mountain Retreat; Will Hold Top Level Talks

By MERRIMAN SMITH
 United Press White House Writer

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UP)—President Eisenhower shifts his base of operations today from his farm to his nearby mountain retreat for policy conferences with the major figures of his administration.

Helicopter-borne members of the cabinet and of the National Security Council planned to drop down at Camp David, the President's hideaway in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains, for sessions with the Chief Executive this afternoon and Tuesday.

Mr. Eisenhower—recovering nicely from his heart attack—was to drive the 22 miles to the secluded and closely-guarded camp while his chief lieutenants were being whirled through the air from Washington in three Air Force "flying banana" helicopters.

The meeting of the National Security Council, the top-level advisory body on defense and foreign policy, came first.

His session with the cabinet will be held Tuesday.

To prepare himself for the National Security Council session, the President scheduled a private conference in Gettysburg earlier today with Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon who has been presiding at cabinet and council meetings during Mr. Eisenhower's illness, flew back from a Florida vacation to attend the two sessions.

Besides the regular members of the security council—Mr. Eisenhower, Nixon, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, and Defense Mobilization Arthur S. Flemming—a score of other government and military leaders were to attend.

Also asked to sit in on the NSC meeting were: Treasury Secretary George S. Humphrey, Attorney General Herbert Brownell, Jr., Budget Director Rowland Hughes, Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Lewis L. Strauss, Harold E. Stassen, special presidential assistant on disarmament matters; Theodore F. Strilbert, director of the U.S. Information Agency; Undersecretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr.; John Hollister, director of the International Cooperation

California Fish Tules To Be Eyed

ALTURAS—The staff of Region One, Department of Fish and Game, will hold a public meeting in Alturas on Tuesday, November 22, at 8 p.m., in the Veterans Memorial Hall.

Purpose of the meeting is to discuss the fishing regulations for 1956. At this time recommendations for changes in the fishing season, limits and closed areas for 1956 will be heard. All sportsmen and other interested groups are invited to attend.

Hunting regulations will not be discussed at the meeting as these regulations are established during the month of April.

15 Helping Hand Members At Dinner

MALIN—Fifteen members of the Helping Hand Society met for a turkey dinner on November 16, served by Mrs. Jack Ratliff Sr. in the dining room of the Malin Community Presbyterian Church at 12:30 noon.

The next meeting will be held at the Malin Park Hall and will be a potluck Christmas party starting at noon. Date will be announced.

Stevenson Heads For Grass Roots

By TOM NELSON
 United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson moved today to get his presidential campaign down to the grass roots level as soon as possible.

His headquarters was expected to announce the formation of a national Volunteers for Stevenson organization. Barry Bingham, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, and Mrs. A. B. Dick of Chicago, Stevenson's longtime friend and supporter, were slated for the roles of co-chairmen.

A seasoned professional was expected to call the major plays in the volunteers organization. He is Archibald Alexander, Democratic national committeeman from the important state of New Jersey.

Meanwhile, Stevenson's young campaign was already coming under fire—some of it from within his own party.

The target was Stevenson's nationally-televized speech Saturday night.

Gov. Averell Harriman of New York indicated he couldn't go along with Stevenson's praise of "moderation."

Stevenson called moderation "the spirit of the times," but warned against confusing moderation with stagnation. Harriman told a Sunday news conference that "the word 'moderation' is not in the Democratic dictionary."

"The Democratic Party is not moderately for labor, not moderately for the small businessman, not moderately for any one such group," Harriman said. "We are for them all the way."

Harriman, who is expected to blister the Eisenhower foreign policy in a Seattle, Wash., speech tonight, also said he doesn't join Stevenson in believing United Nations patrols should guard the Israel border.

Stevenson also drew fire from Republicans. Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty shrugged off Stevenson's attack on GOP foreign policy as routine politics. And GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall said Stevenson talked "bunk."

Presidential Assistant Harold E. Stassen, said Stevenson's foreign policy criticisms have "puzzled and perplexed" European leaders.

The Stevenson camp drew comfort from former President Truman's statement that the Saturday night address was "the best New Deal speech I ever heard him (Stevenson) make."

Baghdad Pact Inaugurated By British, Four Middle East Nations Against Reds

By JACK SAUL
 United Press Staff Correspondent

BAGHDAD, Iraq (UP)—Four Middle Eastern nations and Britain met here today to inaugurate the Baghdad Pact, a mutual defense alliance against Communist aggression that seals off the southern borders of the Soviet Union.

The alliance of Turkey, Iraq, Iran, Pakistan and Britain plugs the holes in a Western defense arc curving thousands of miles around Russia from the Arctic Ocean through NATO to the Philippines through the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO).

The United States, though not a member, will have close political and military ties with the group which forms the "northern tier" of defenses along the southern border of Russia, Turkey and Iran have common frontiers with Russia.

Today's meeting was expected to be largely one of organization. But Turkish Premier Adnan Menderes hinted the group may try to settle the dispute between Israel and its Arab neighbors. Other important decisions may be taken, for Iraq is an Arab state and two others, Lebanon and Jordan, were watching with interest and may join later.

One of the first problems facing the pact nations was the attempts by Russia to extend its influence into the Middle East. Western observers believed the pact might be able to halt this expansion.

British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan flew in from London Sunday for the meeting. The United States was represented by official "observers," Ambassador Waldemar Gailman, Adm. John Casady, commander-in-chief of U.S. naval forces in the Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean, and Brig. Gen. Forrest Garaway.

The pact gains additional strength because of the way members interlock. Britain and Turkey are members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Turkey also has ties with Greece and Yugoslavia. Pakistan belongs to the Southeast Asia organization.

The Baghdad Pact brings into the alliance 130 million persons, which makes it the largest Moslem military bloc in the world.
