Holiday Swimsuits

With more and more people taking winter vacations, fashion styles feature resort wear. Gowns, coats and sports wear are joined by a complete collection of swimsuits by Rose Marie Reid.

Her couture collection of holiday swimsuits presents a dramatic fusion of fashion and color; a new way of putting colors together, tone-on-tone in harmony shades suits together to give long, body-moulded silhouettes. Five exciting key colors, helio, olive, marine, emerald and cyclamen blend or contrast with two or three or four other colors in a "Ribbons of Color" promotion. Here are floral embroidered bands, alternated with monochromatic color, harlequin hemlines, camisole tops, halter necklines, all of elasticized bengaline cut in strips, diamond shapes or diagonal panels to create five spectacular swimsuits called "Coronette," "Diadem," "Paceantry," "Regalia" and "Royal Ribbons."

Emilio di Capri again accessorizes with conical, handmade raffia hats from Italy in nine colors keyed to the "Ribbons of Color" promotion. Superbly tailored, knee-length beach dresses in tone-on-tone harmony shades typical of Emilio's flair for continental off-beat colors.

Cottons too, reflect color in two rainbow-hued silhouettes, a shirred back sheath and a swim-maker with matching torso-tied shirt of Everglaze stripes. They are aptly named "Radiance" and "Ribbonaire."

A sophisticated trio of slim black suits make their debut in "Solitaire" an exclusive new Chrom-spun elasticized fabric with the crystalline look of crepe and the glow of satin.

Other suits, designed with the ballroom elegance for which this designer is famed, include "Triumph" an hourglass silhouette with a bodice of jets and embroidery; "Eloquence," a sheath shaped in miniature whirls of embroidery; "Rhapsody" a new moulded silhouette with higher, wider bustline and horizontally draped skirt; "Fineness," a jeweled sheath encrusted from top to hemline with lured embroidery, rhinestones and pearls; and "Starlight" a halter sheath in tiffany-white latex with an iridescent cascade of imported sequins.

Christmas Gloves

Leather gloves show up on most Christmas shopping lists—but the big question is "what color would she like?"

If you don't want to take the easy way out and settle for black or brown, here are a few tips from the Fashion Coordinators Institute which recommends that you let the color of the lady's hair be the deciding factor.

(1) If she's a blonde, either on the golden or ash-blond side, select a pair of gloves in one of the new pale-gold yellows to co-star with the color of her hair. They'll add a sunny touch to this year's favorite basic costume of black or brown.

(2) Should she be a dark-eyed brunette, on the other hand, a pair of vibrant-toned oriental-red leather will heighten the sparkle in her eye. And she'll wear them with the new hats, bags or shoes in the same color.

(3) If she's a brunette, but if her eyes are heavenly-blue, you'll make the perfect choice in a pair of sapphire-hued glass kid or suede leather gloves keyed to flatter and deepen the eye's natural color.

(4) For that flashing red-head on your list, you'll find tissue-sheer leathers in either avocado or almond-leaf green an enchanting foil for playing up the beauty of her hair. Or, if you prefer, you can color-match her locks with one of the new burnished-copper tones.

Lastly, and most important, if your favorite lady be your own silvery-topped mother (or someone else's mother), your most becoming gift would be a pair of fine, silky-surfaced leather gloves in a new tone of gray called silver-birch. Not only will they serve as the perfect complement to the distinctive color of her hair, they'll be the ideal glove for her to wear on any occasion.

You'll find the greatest variety of colors this year in U.S.-crafted leather gloves.

Leather 'At Home'

A leather chair or loveseat—now available in more than 400 colors—is not only beautiful, but is perfect for that one important Christmas gift.

Once noted mainly for its durability, today leather furniture is used by outstanding decorators to lend a note of beauty and distinction to every part of the house. Because of its versatility, its individual texture and the many hues in which it is available, leather can be blended with every period of furniture. Whether your home is French Provincial, Early American, Regency or Modern, there are handsome leather pieces to add glamor to every room.

The most versatile of upholstery materials, leather lends itself to use in the living room, in the den, the bedroom, dining room, and even in the play room.

The resurgence in recent years of leather furniture—chairs, sofas, tables, desks and the like—is the result of long research by tanners to improve the appearance and durability of leather. Research has also made leather much less expensive.

"Deep buff," which is the second out of the cowhide—after the top grain has been split off—has become extremely popular this year as the result of new tanning methods which make it more durable and more flexible. You will find "deep buff" in many places in the home: tablecloths, chair-backs, cabinet tops, and every place the leather is not subjected to the most punishing strain. Top grain is used for most upholstered pieces.

The Town Shop

• 500 MAIN
• FREE PARKING IN REAR

Holiday House, St. Paul's all-parish bazaar, is coming up next Saturday, December 3, in the parish house at Eighth and Jefferson. It's an annual event, and don't miss it—it's one of the happiest, busiest days of the year. The parish house will be crowded with your friends and neighbors, and the booths will be crowded with all kinds of handmade gifts and edibles. The "Tree of Little Gifts" will be hung plentifully with loads of things at little prices and the aprons—from cocktail cuties to kitchen coveralls—will delight you. These are only samples of the things for Christmas to be found here.

Luncheon will be served from 11 A.M. to 1 P.M. December 3, and coffee, cake and doughnuts will be available all day. Men of the church will serve a spaghetti dinner at 6 that night. Martha'll see you at St. Paul's Episcopal church Saturday, December 3.

who were well dressed in 10,000 B. C. wore the hide of the sabre-toothed tiger. Today in 1955 A. D. the apparel of gentlemen is feather-weight suede by Scully. Herman's Men's Store at 825 Main has a selection of famous Scully sportcoats in charcoal, beige and rust in shorts, regulars and longs. Any he-man in the Klamath basin knows that leather is windproof and that it breathes to allow ventilation. Leather is warm in winter and yet ideal for summer evenings. It's serviceable and appropriate to any sportcoat occasion. If he's size 36 to 46, inclusive, you can delight him with the perfect gift, gals, for 39.50. Scully's jackets wear and wear and wear, so he can't ever forget about you. They're at are the robes for little girls at Bon Bazaar. They'll fit small femmes from 2 to 4 years, girls from 7 to 14, and up through sub-teens and teens in robes on the mezzanine at 4480 South Sixth. A wee floral print quilted cotton robe in Princess style will keep a small miss toasty warm. Smart for older girls is a corduroy duster fully gathered to a round yoke, with three-quarter length sleeves and Peter Pan collar. This has three buttons to close the front, an in-out belt, and comes in red, black, blue and yellow. These are beautifully finished for successful washings and long wear. Gay flowered quilted material, with light or dark colors predominating, will also please older girls. Fitted and duster styles, in corduroy and flannel, have fashion enough to please teen-agers. They have slipper sox to match all these flatterers at

of all kinds and descriptions are available for gifts at Vera's, 1006 Main, for Vera's own make of candies, jellies and wild plum preserves. Enamelled metal boxes—oriental, provincial or Victorian—will be useful long after their delicious contents are gone. Some are tea caddies, others can be used for cigarettes, and lids of some make pictures. Native wild fruit jellies and yummy candies can be packed to your order here, or you might choose one of the regular boxes, which everyone knows about. Fresh moist candied fruit is available here in boxes, or in bulk for your fruit cakes. A fresh, new stock of hard candies, good anytime, but especially at Christmas, has come in at the spray's the thing

when applying fragrance, they say at Currin's for Drugs. The new Corday Paris leakproof atomizer is at this Ninth and Main street store. This atomizer actually measures each spray of imported perfume that it contains. Scarcely larger than a lipstick case, this handsome glass flask, decorated with fourteen carat gold leaf, captures a full one and a half drams of perfume, or 125 sprays of Toudjous Moi, Fame, Zigane, Jet, Toudjous Toi or Possession. Incidentally, you pay for the perfume only; the atomizer is Corday's gift to you. They say at the beauty bar at Currin's that smart women are fast realizing that an atomizer has no equal to help you make the most of your perfume. And for the woman who likes her fragrance to travel with her, Corday's spray fragrance is sealed airtight, which means absolutely no leaking, even on airplanes. See this new atomizer at

happy Christmas feasting is possible if you make a choice from the luscious assortment of glaze and dried fruits, or the gourmet's choice of cheeses, at Carter's Fine Foods. Round black and gold boxes, which may be used later for cookies or planters, contain rich fruit cake, and unusual styles of double crust from Italy. Full of white or red wine vinegar, are among other items at 1420 Esplanade ready for Christmas giving. All are equipped with mailers—those heavy cardboard boxes that only have to have the "to" and "from" names and addresses filled in. A two pound redwood box is filled with glazed fruits only, and the little fork included helps the lucky recipient to make a choice from grapefruit strips, pineapple, gingerbread, peaches, cherries, Kumquats and Kadota figs. A beautiful pack in wicker horn of plenty contains glazed and dried fruits and adds Callimyrna figs, dates and apricots to the above assortment. A redwood nutbowl filled with goodies includes hammer for future use with the bowl. Cheeses from Wisconsin are packed in useful trays or boxes which will be around long after the contents are gone. Edam, Port De Salut, smoky and blue cheese are just a few varieties included in these assortments. Red net Christmas stockings filled with Brown and Haley hard candies, each individually wrapped, are available in two sizes, as well as gift packs of Spice Islands vinegar and other varieties of fruit cake in decorated metal boxes.

It's close to the deadline for Christmas portraits or family groups. Miller-Williams studio suggests the compact album for grandma or fond uncles. This little album has room for 14 photographs, so you can include the family pets if you want. Pictures for the compact album are two inches by two and a fourth inches in size and can be enlarged to any size you wish at 512 Main in the downstairs store at Miller's. You can't wait too long and get it done in time so phone 7543 to make an appointment without delay. lazy susans have arrived in all colors and sizes at Roberts Hardware. They're wonderful gifts and nice for "Lazy Susans" who like to entertain easily but nicely. Dishes can be removed and used off the revolving tray. All kinds of ceramics, pottery and crockery for the holidays are well-stocked now at 3690 South Sixth. Leaf-shaped ash trays from saucer to platter size are truly unusual. Novelty cookie jars in bear, pig, squirrel or clown shape are interesting, and decorated stone wear cookie jars are ample in size. All sorts of candlewarming casseroles, to say nothing of coffee warmers, both individual and large size, should be examined and a choice made soon. A decorator touch could be provided by the ornamental white pottery lavabo combined with copper, to be seen here. The accompanying basin can be filled with favored plants and watered by turning the spigot on the lavabo above. It will be worth your while to shop at

they've got bells

"that jingle, jangle, jingle," on bracelets at LaPointe's. The sound is reminiscent of the bells of ancient Sarnath—and the Far Eastern influence is rife in the astonishing display of bracelets at 507 Main. There are gold, silver, or enamel Indian filigree bracelets, and textured silver bands. They're wide and massive, or delicate and narrow. Some are designed by Ann Fogarty, who makes her elegant basic dresses to set off stunning accessories—like bracelets. One of these looks as if it's made of cleverly manipulated wires which end in smooth, chunky lumps which overlap on the arm. It's a conversation piece, no less! You wear all the bracelets that you want all up and down each arm, and you mix silver, gold, copper—everything. Bangles are two to five dollars, plus federal tax, of course, on the big, bronzed branch of driftwood in the special display at this store where they promise a Christmas surprise for every angel on your list. It's a wonderful store—

rotund santa is the Hallmark holder to display your Christmas cards at Shaw Stationery company. Such holiday equipment, and all sorts of family gifts may be seen in the Christmas room at 729 Main street. Twin desk lamps light individually, and can be used on bedside tables. In brown with copper, or gray with brass, they're distinctive and graceful. Single-light lamps are available too. Personalized matches, card shufflers and heavy book-ends (which a few books won't shove out of place) are other ideas for the family. Leaping silver trout on a pair of book-ends, or a pair featuring more than life-size dogwood blossoms in brass, are especially outstanding. Leather covers for telephone directories in the new size are handsome. There are also a host of gifts for the limited-cost gift exchange. Memo pads with attached pencil for a dollar are a good example. December 1 is the deadline for ordering many of the personalized Christmas cards which come from the east, so don't wait too long or you'll be disappointed. They warn at

snow tractor

when the snowplow has scraped the street but hemmed you in and you can't get out of your garage, put in a call for help to Stone's Signal Service, 5567. Floyd or Gene will clean out your driveway with the snow-tractor which they now have available for just such purposes. This little gem is good for clearing parking lots, private roads and alleys, too. Stony can give you a tow, put chains on and take them off and furnish you with his usual fine brand of family service—especially appreciated in this weather. Don't forget the heated waiting room at Ninth and Pine.

gloomies, merry mices, sad sacks and cuddies are some of the most engaging creatures ever seen. They're new at Star Drug. "Cuddies," a toy of terry-cloth-covered foam rubber which floats in the tub, can be used as an aid for the daily scrub and is safe, sanitary and non-allergic. You can choose for all the wee ones on your list from lambs, rabbits, puppies and baby dolls. The Knit-Wits are Martha's favorites—anyone who looks at them would feel cheerful, and the small size would make a wonderful pin cushion. Goosy-doll, the sad sack dog or the merry mouse (the holds jewelry) would also appeal equally to young sophisticated or small fry, and are fun to have around. These reasonably-priced toys, all Stuart creations, are at 435 Main only, the and get toys and holiday pretties for Christmas like they have at Miller's. Effanbee and Nancy Ann are the featured dolls in the children's department on the second floor at 512 Main. Debbie is the new Nancy Ann story book doll this season. She's Muffie's big sister. Dolls from tiny ones up to 24-inches can be purchased here, as well as Gund stuffed toys. Heard above the gaiety of the season might be the wish of a Christmas party dress from Miller's. A red taffeta trimmed with Irish crocheted lace has a bouffant skirt for a girl to whirl about in. Black and white checked taffeta, with black velvet ribbon and a daisy trim, and built-in petticoat, would give a fine effect on someone in the 7 to 14 age group. The oriental influence was never stronger than in a gold brocade and coral TV pajama suit for sub-teens. Velvetene jumpers in holiday hues feature matching hats and purses. Infants through teens in girls' sizes can be fit in this department and boys' wear from babies to teens, with sweaters up to 12, are available. Nice idea for holiday parties is the sheath in velvet or satin or brocade topped by a day-length velvet coat.

Prettiest shoe going is on any holiday party is the slim satin pump. You may have it dyed to match a pet dress but you'll get more mileage from it if it's black. Add a cut steel or rhinestone buckle and you'll sparkle.
