

GOURIELLI blends luxury with practicality with the Tang Travel Kit containing three grooming necessities a man needs—After-Shave Lotion, Cologne, Talc—in easy-to-pack plastic bottles in a waterproof case. A truly elegant Christmas gift for a man.

CHRISTMAS night this sleepy-time gal will be wearing her new skijamas of Sanforized cotton flannel, printed with a real peaceful snow scene across the yoke and sprinkled with snowflakes. Because Mom was careful to check the Sanforized label, these Style Undies will never shrink out of fit, no matter how many times they are washed.

Christmas Shopping

Tramp, tramp, tramp, the gals are marching. And Christmas shopping, with its joys, frustrations and uncertainties as to what to buy for whom, is picking up. One sure way to make the load lighter and avoid needless fatigue is to wear proper shoes. Overlooking the added strain put on the feet at this time of the year can result in irksome miseries. As the comedians quip, "Who needs it?" A leading foot health authority, discussing seasonal foot failure at Christmas time, cautions against wearing an old pair of worn or ill-fitting shoes. These can turn into a booby trap because the feet require adequate support for the 10 or 11 miles that the average shopper unknowingly puts in during a day.

For those interested in a timely ounce of prevention, keyed to happiness underfoot this Noel, here are some important tips: Make certain that your shoes fit properly and have supply leather uppers and shock-absorbing leather soles. Because of leather's unique resiliency and flexibility, it insures foot ease by providing firm, but gentle support. Wear medium heels for long periods of shopping. Avoid spike heels which are fine for dress wear, but are not designed for your shopping marathon. Double-check the way your shoes feel at both the heel and toe when walking. The fit at the heel should be snug, but not overly tight. Shoes loose at the heel can be especially unkind in causing blisters and ankle strain. Cramped toes, aside from inviting corns and calluses, bind the feet from proper flexing and expansion. And if our winter keeps up at this rate, wear your rubbers or galoshes.

NIPPY-WEATHER SNACK features hot buttered soup. Try consomme or any other favorite soup and serve in mugs with zippy cheese dip and crackers. Just pour the soup, steaming hot, into big, comfortable mugs and then top each portion with a pat of butter for extra goodness.

Soup Treat

Campbell Soup Company adds to the ever-increasing ideas for the service of soup with a delicious wintertime treat the whole family will enjoy. Take a can of consomme, tomato, cream soup or your favorite combination of two of Campbell's 21 varieties. Heat and serve in mugs with a pat of golden butter melting in a widening circle on the surface.

Pour the steaming hot soup into large, comfortable mugs, jumbo coffee cups, individual casserole dishes or cream soup dishes and top with butter. It is more fun serving the hot butter soup, in mugs or big cups because it is a beverage in this manner.

You will notice the added flavor butter gives the soup; you'll feel that extra surge of energy; you'll take pride in this extra gourmet touch and the whole family will enjoy it.

Children coming in from play will be warmed by the hot buttered soup and party-goers will want to make that "one for the road" hot buttered soup. Your guests will rave over its buttery goodness.

Serve it on the snack tray, by the fireside, on children's party tables, at the breakfast bar, in the living room before dinner or on a convalescent's tray.

Butter it up with butter balls rolled in parsley, chives or grated cheese, chilled perky butter curls, butter pat topped with a smidgen of shredded cheese, butter pat coated with minced nuts or crushed cereal, butter pat topped with a thin slice of radish or butter seasoned with favorite herb or spice, then shaped into balls or pats.

Serve it with cheese sticks on the side, crisp oven-hot crackers or wedges of hot French bread for dunking.
