

Tips On Meat You Keep In New Freezer

You can't get out of a home freezer what you don't put into it. Freezing doesn't improve the quality of foods or make them more tender. So if you want the juiciest and best meats, buy them that way.

One way to save money and still have superior meats, is to buy large cuts and have the butcher divide them into smaller, meal-size portions.

Here are some helpful suggestions:

To prepare for freezing, all cuts should be trimmed and shaped bone and fat removed; stew meats boned and cubed; beef for hamburger ground.

Two pieces of freezer paper should be placed between individual servings of meat, such as steak, ground-beef patties or chops. This makes it easier to separate them while they're still frozen.

To prepare broilers for freezing, split lengthwise down the back and discard the breastbone. Cut all stewing fowl and fryers into the usual pieces. Separate the pieces with a double thickness of wrapping material and wrap the number of pieces you want in one package.

For roasters, thoroughly clean but don't stuff before freezing. Wrap giblets separately in freezer paper and put in cavity of roaster. Tie wings and legs to body, then wrap the whole bird tightly in wrapping paper. Seal with tape and wrap in stockinette or second paper.

As for fish, they should be frozen as soon as possible after catching. Clean and dress and wash. Small fish should be frozen whole, large ones in steaks or filets.

Wash scallops or shrimps in a salt-water solution (1/2 cup salt to 1 gallon water) before packaging and freezing. Drain and use the same method for packaging that you did for meat. Lobsters and crabs should be removed from their shells and steamed until they're thoroughly done. Then wrap, seal and freeze.

Meat should be frozen immediately after wrapping, at zero degrees. This is done by putting the meat or fish or fowl in the quick-freeze compartment, or along the freezer's sides or on the bottom.

Don't put the unfrozen meat next to food already frozen because it might cause some thawing. And allow space for air to circulate between the packages. Don't overload the freezer past its instruction manual specifications.

Two Yrekans Plead Guilty

WEED — Two Yrekans pleaded guilty in the Weed Judicial Court last week at their appearances before Judge Kenneth Stone for violations of the fish and game law.

Fred William Santos, 30, was fined $25 for failing to punch pheasant date tags.

Fred Symington, 48, paid a fine of $100 for having no pheasant tags in possession and for having a loaded gun in his auto. He was arrested at the Gallette Pheasant Cooperative area November 19.

Game Warden Jay Clayton Spotts Happy Camp, booked both men with the Weed Police Department.

November Cold Snap Sets New Records

PORTLAND — The November cold snap set some records here, the Weather Bureau reported Thursday.

From Nov. 12 through 17, the temperature stayed below freezing, equalling a November record; the 13-degree temperature Nov. 15 was the record low for that early and the second lowest for the whole month in 84 years of records; and the 6.4 inches of snow was the heaviest November fall since 1875.

County Xmas Bureau Open

The Klamath County Christmas Bureau is now open for business, announced Paul Campbell, chairman of the bureau. The bureau was organized at the request of Mayor Paul Landry. The bureau may be contacted by calling 5096, the United Fund office.

The bureau has three main aims: to give food baskets to needy families at Christmas; to give both food and toys to families and to give toys to those families needing them.

The bureau will sponsor a public forum, time to be announced later, of churches, fraternal organizations and individuals to discuss Christmas needs.

Any donations from individuals sent to the bureau will be channeled through the bureau to various organizations who are doing the actual expenditure job.

Besides the Chairman Campbell, the bureau consists of Rex Dye, Mrs. Isabelle Brixner, Lt. Jack Grable, Salvation Army; Harold Hendrickson, county member; Mrs. Altha Urquhart, E. D. Hickman and Jack Mitchell.

Aims Of Rotary Given At Meeting

DUNSMUIR — An insight into the meaning of Rotary and Rotary aims was the subject of the program at the Rotary luncheon at the Hotel Dunsmuir on Wednesday. Dr. J. W. Reynolds was the speaker.

J. Morgan Jones, motel owner, was welcomed as a new member at the meeting. Guests at the luncheon included Cecil Turner of Oakland and F. J. Waltherman of San Leandro, Montgomery Ward representative.

Realtors To Gather In KF Thursday For Conference

A day-long real estate educational conference for brokers and salesmen of Klamath and Lake counties will be held at the Willard Hotel Thursday, December 8 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Oregon's Real Estate Department with Ragnar O. Johnson, commissioner, and Burton W. Dunn, educational supervisor, is cooperating with the Klamath Board of Realtors in sponsoring this conference. Similar conferences will be held each year in 16 population centers in Oregon, according to Commissioner Johnson. Different phases of the real estate business will be treated each year, said Johnson, so it is important that all salesmen and brokers attend each conference if they are to keep abreast with Oregon's rapidly expanding real estate business.

Oregon was the first state in the Union to enact a real estate license law, and is now taking a position of leadership with its education program for licensees. Provision for this education program was made by the 1935 Oregon Legislature through an increase of license fees and the employment of a full time educational supervisor.

Dunn worked with a local committee consisting of Vernon Durant, president of the Klamath Board of Realtors; Al Longe, chairman; Cal Peyton, Ron Fisher and Ed Chilcote committee members, in setting up the December 8 conference. "Community Relations and Ethics," and "Your Money's Worth in Advertising," "Legal Fundamentals in Real Estate," and "Professionalizing Real Estate" are topics to be discussed at the conference. A question and answer period will be held at the end of each session to make the conference practical and applicable to local real estate conditions.

The noon luncheon will be held at the Willard Hotel. The all day workshop will be held December 8 will replace the regular luncheon meeting normally held Wednesday, December 7. For further information on the conference contact Claire Ellis 2-2686 or Vernon Durant 9832.

Minister To Visit Chiloquin Area

CHILOQUIN — The Rev. Burton Bastuscheck, Willamette University professor and director of town and country churches, will visit this area Saturday and Sunday and will be guest speaker at the three local Methodist churches Sunday. He has chosen as his topic "The Church and the Community." He will appear in the pulpit at Fort Klamath at 9:30 a.m., in Chiloquin at 11 a.m., and at the Willamson River Mission at 3 p.m.

The Rev. Bastuscheck has been in Oregon for two years after years of community relations work in Iowa and Pennsylvania. He tries to visit some Oregon community centers each weekend and this will be his first Klamath County visit. He will be accompanied by his wife, his son who is a sophomore in high school and by Frieda Kirk, a Chiloquin girl who is a sophomore at Willamette University.
