State Police End Search For Holstad

WILLAMINA — The search for Jeffrey S. Holstad, 55, who disappeared from his home here last Friday, was called off Monday by State Police.

Bloodhounds tracked Holstad to the bank of a river near his home. His slippers were found nearby. Holstad had been in ill health and despondent, friends reported.

Atomic Carrier Plan Delayed

WASHINGTON — The Navy appeared Tuesday to have failed in an effort to include a provision for building an 85,000-ton atomic powered carrier in the next budget recommendation to Congress.

The proposal, it was reported, failed to get approval from the Defense Department and budget makers.

The reported turn-down for the 1957 fiscal year budget does not mean the idea of constructing a nuclear powered carrier has been discarded, some of these familiar with the project and with budget making said.

The request for congressional authorization to start building such a super-size, superpowered ship is being held in abeyance pending further development and study of designs for atomic reactors and of the ship itself, some of these officials said.

Secretary of Defense Wilson said he had brought the matter of an atomic carrier up at a meeting of congressional leaders with President Eisenhower Tuesday, but gave no details of the talk.

Wilson attended the White House session just before his takeoff for a North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting in Europe.

Wilson said he discussed the Navy budget in general at the White House.

The plan for a big atomic carrier was described in a story carried Monday by The Norfolk (Va.) Virginian-Pilot. The newspaper said the carrier might have as many as eight atomic heat generators to develop steam for driving the carrier at high speed.

Oregon Flood Danger Over

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Flood dangers ended in Oregon Tuesday as cold weather moved in from the north. The Weather Bureau warned of continued cold and said some snow is possible later in the week.

The upper Willamette River and tributaries were falling Tuesday after cresting at about flood stage of 12 feet at Harrisburg. There is little damage at that level. Heavy weekend rains had swollen the river.

Elmer Fisher, river forecaster at the Portland Weather Bureau, said the Willamette will crest short of 17 feet at Albany Tuesday night. Flood stage there is 20 feet.

The Santiam pushed the level up to about 18 feet at Jefferson. Flooding lowlands there, but with little damage. The Santiam runoff caused the Willamette to crest at Salem at about 16½ feet Tuesday morning. The later crest, moving downstream from Albany Wednesday, will not be as high. Cold air moved in from western Canada, sending the thermometer down to 9 degrees at Ellensburg.

In Eastern Oregon Burns reported 20 and Baker 21. There was frost at Portland, where the mercury slipped to 27.
