42 Believed Dead

100 already there to protect lives and property. Lt. Col. Robert Mabbitt of the California National Guard said the fresh troops would come from Willow, Nevada City, Groville and Sacramento.

The flood workers faced another task as residents returned to deserted Yuba City. The water supply has become contaminated with the sludge of the floods and medical authorities prepared to inoculate for typhoid. All water had to be boiled or purified by chemicals.

The muddy waters began rising at the rate of three inches an hour during the night. Finally they overflowed the gap at Guntre, broken during last Saturday's flood when 10,000 persons fled for their lives.

The waters filled half of the stricken town before they began to recede. In the southeast section, they rose to nearly three feet. Flood officials expected them to go no higher.

Actually, there was little further harm the flood waters could do. Where they were deepest was already an area of destruction, with some houses crumbled into pieces and debris piled against trees and crooked street signs.

One house, for example, was perched at a crazy angle on a railroad track and another sat squarely in the middle of the street.

The worst effect of the new flooding was the delay it caused in the grim work of searching through the ruined houses and the debris for those who failed to escape last Saturday's wall of water. There may be as many as 100 victims, officials said.

It also kept the city's residents from returning to salvage what they could from the ooze that covered what once was their homes.

Armed guards patrolled the streets, imposing a dusk to dawn curfew to prevent looting. Anyone in the city had to show a pass.

The Army Engineer's office at Marysville, across the river from Yuba City, reported to Stanley Pierson, state director of civil defense, that the new crest "will no doubt cover most of the territory that was covered in the last breakthrough."

"The depth of the water has not been determined, but no doubt it will be adequate to undo any good that the people might be doing in cleaning up now," the engineers office reported.

Repair crews toiled throughout the night in an attempt to repair the yawning gap in the 35-foot levee but the Army Engineers admitted they had "no hope" of fixing it before daybreak.

He was a native of Salem, Oregon, born June 5, 1871. He lived for many years at Klamath Agency where he farmed before retiring. He was a member of Klamath Lodge, No. 77, A.F. & A.M. and had received his 50 year membership pin. He was also an honorary member of the Wood River Pioneers and Oldtimers. Firemen Report Minor Blazes

Four fire fires, a trash fire and a flooded oil stove occurring since 3 p.m. Saturday were reported at 11 a.m. Tuesday by the Klamath Falls Fire Department.

There was no damage from any of them.

Reporting fire fires were William Simon, 521 Jefferson Street, at 3:17 p.m. Monday; Edward J. Tharax, 1060 Hank Street, at 3:30 a.m. Sunday; and George Dye, 206 Lavery Street, at 9:16 p.m. Sunday.

The stove was reported at 1:50 p.m. Sunday by the Baptist Church, 1530 Lookout Street, and the trash fire was 3:25 a.m. Monday in back of the Tower Theater.

The department also answered a call to aid in releasing a man trapped in an auto accident at 3:40 a.m. Monday at South Sixth and East Main streets, but the man had been freed before firemen arrived.

ONE OF THE BIGGEST dirt and rock moving jobs in recent years on the Southern Pacific railroad was described by Ray Hartwell, Klamath Falls, assistant foreman for Morrison-Knudsen Construction Company. M-K took the job of cleaning up a mammoth landslide 125 miles north of Klamath Falls after train service was halted. Hartwell arrived here Sunday with part of the crew that worked 72 hours on the project. Most of the workers returned to the M-K headquarters in Boise, Idaho.

Sledding Guards Posted On Street

Sledding guards are posted on Main Street today, reported Bob Bonney, city recreation director. This is the only public sledding area open in Klamath Falls at this time, said Bonney.

Bonney also reported that the Cooger Hill sledding area is not open because the slide has a mud base which is not frozen. Use of this area for sledding at this time would make ruts in the runs and cause a dangerous condition when the area does freeze, Bonney warned. He asked that anyone using the Cooger area to please not slide anywhere near the sled tow.

Local Band Gets Shrine Game Honor

The Klamath Union High School Band, which will make its second appearance at the Shrine East-West Game in San Francisco this coming Saturday, has received an additional honor by being chosen as one of the two bands who will play during the game for the time-outs.

This assignment is considered fine recognition for the KUHS band as approximately 50 bands are in attendance at this game. The band will of course do their maneuvers and routines in the pre-game pageantry as well as in the halftime band show.

Eighty band members will leave by school bus at 8 a.m. Thursday morning accompanied by LaMar Jensen, director of the band, and the following chaperons Mr. and Mrs. Rex Hunsaker, Kristian Gipp, Ruby Alley and Mrs. Helen Hoffman, Andrew Loney Jr., director of music education in the public schools, will also be in San Francisco. The band will return from San Francisco Sunday morning, January 1.

Friday will be occupied by the band in visiting points of historical interest in and around San Francisco. A Masonic hall has been rented in San Francisco for a New Years party for all band members on Saturday evening.

The band has been in constant rehearsal since the invitation to attend the game was accepted and in spite of the bad weather which has made outside marching practices limited they have an outstanding show to prevent the crowd at the game.

Andrew Loney advises this morning that the funds to finance the trip are within approximately $200 of the necessary $2,600 goal. All expenses of band members will be paid out of this fund as well as those of chaperons, bus drivers and directors. The community response has been most gratifying, Loney said. The Board of Education of District No. 2 are furnishing the buses for the trip.

She was the mother of Mrs. Sam Ritchey, Klamath Falls, and of Edward and Dan Kilgore in Redmond where she had made her home for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Ritchey are in Redmond to attend the funeral services.

Invasion Of Polio Virus Explained By Salk Expert

(Editor's note: This is the first of a series of five articles on what parents should know about the Salk polio vaccine. Under Dr. Van Riper's direction the National Foundation sponsored the research development of the vaccine and he is in charge of the foundation's program for vaccinating children in the first and second grades of school. The March of Dimes Drive in Klamath County kicks off on January 3.)

You have had polio. Unless you are one of those exceedingly rare adults who are susceptible to polio paralysis but who, purely by chance, have gone through childhood without being infected—you certainly have had polio. The virus has invaded your system but was out-manuevered before it caused any lasting damage.

Chances are, moreover, that you have had polio more than once. Your doctor hopes so, at least. He also hopes that the same thing has happened to your children.

Shocked? You shouldn't be. If you are like the great majority of people, what you had was non-paralytic polio; and if the virus was introduced to you without the accompaniment of major aches and pains, you had the form of non-paralytic polio known as a "silent infection."

When the doctor hopes your children have been safely through a series of silent infections—real polio, mind you, but without illness and without paralysis—he is wishing all the best for them, for this means they are protected naturally against the paralyzing power of at least one of the three types of polio virus and possibly against all.

A polio infection is not something that happens only to a few thousand individuals each year, leaving them paralyzed. It happens to almost all of us, leaving in most cases no disability whatever, and usually without even making us ill—an infection that sooner or later reaches nearly as many people as the common cold.

This for the parent seeking a better understanding of the vaccine developed by Dr. Jonas E. Salk with March of Dimes support, is Vital Fact Number One. It is important to remember that in time of polio epidemic for every person who comes down with the disease there may be a hundred or more in the same community who are carrying the virus.

What does "killing polio" in the sense used here, mean? Why, if almost everybody gets it, doesn't everybody come down with symptoms, even go to the hospital and possibly come out crippled?

When the polio virus entered your system, to establish even temporary residence it had to find a cell in which it could live and reproduce. But en route, it had to travel very briefly, your blood stream, had it not been successfully channeled in your blood, within a matter of hours it would have found its way to a nerve center with its paralyzing power intact.

But what happened was this: Small particles in your blood, known as antibodies, met the polio virus in your blood stream, "ran interference" for you and destroyed the power of the virus to paralyze. Most human beings have antibodies, and also are able to produce more of them when necessary. More are needed when there is a virus invasion of your body. Thus the presence of virus triggers the making of antibodies.

Non-paralytic polio does this, whether it makes you sick enough to go to the hospital—as occasionally happens—or remains a silent infection. If the system does not "trigger"—that is, if it lacks the ability to create antibodies—rapidly enough, paralytic polio may result.

The Salk vaccination is not an infection. It introduces nothing into the human body that can do it any harm. What it does accomplish is to provide—for those who need it—extra help in creating antibodies.

How it does this will be the subject of tomorrow's article.

Groups Set Water Probe

An all-phase examination of California's water situation will be made by legislators, farm, business, chambers of commerce, irrigation district representatives and federal, state and local authorities, during the California State Chamber of Commerce's Statewide Water Conference, February 23 in Los Angeles.

The meeting announced by Carl F. Wente, San Francisco, president of the California State Chamber of Commerce, will be held at the Hotel Statler.

Governor Goodwin J. Knight is scheduled to address the luncheon session of the all-day meeting. Robert L. Minckler, Los Angeles, president of General Petroleum Corporation and chairman of the State Chamber's Statewide Water Resources Committee will preside as conference chairman.

In addition to the governor, scores of state water authorities, legal experts, engineers and legislators will address the sessions. The meeting will examine all pertinent aspects of the California water situation. Chief among these are: (1) creation of a State Water Department; (2) the "areas of origin" (counties of origin) problem; and (3) the Colorado-River controversy.

Wente said that all groups interested in the future water development of California would be invited to the sessions.
