Men Arrested For Murder

NEW YORK (AP)—Police say the mystery of missing Jacqueline Smith has been solved with the arrest of two men on charges of homicide. But authorities must now go through the gruesome process of finding the 20-year-old girl's body.

Held without bail yesterday for hearing next Thursday were Thomas G. Daniel, 24, the pretty blonde's boy friend, and Leo Pijuan, 46, accused of performing a fatal abortion. Both assertedly admitted they dissected the girl's body and dumped the dismembered parts in trash containers.

The case broke wide open with the questioning of a young Mexican doctor, Ramiro Morales, who said he was called in during the course of the alleged abortion in Daniel's Manhattan apartment, pronounced the girl dead and left.

Police said Morales, only recently arrived in this country, did not know it was the law to report the death himself.

Morales technically was placed under $25,000 bond last night and released to custody of police so long as he cooperated in the investigation.

General Sessions Judge John A. Mullens emphasized that the physician was in no way accused of any part in the alleged crime.

In the event that Miss Smith's body never was found, Morales' testimony could conceivably sustain a homicide charge against the two defendants.

Miss Smith came here from Lebanon, Pa., about a year ago with ambitions of becoming a fashion designer. She met Daniel last June and dated him steadily. She was never seen again after a Christmas Eve rendezvous in Daniel's apartment.

Adventist Church Elects Officers

Newly elected officers of the Seventh Day Adventist Church include Bruce Campbell, and Ival Taylor, elders and Mrs. Jess Brown, Sabbath School superintendent. The new officers took over their duties on Saturday, January 7.

The financial report for the church for the year 1955 revealed that $17,930.12 was given in tithe and offerings, to be forwarded to the treasurer of the Oregon Conference of which the Klamath Falls church is a member.

A total of $5,276.09 was additionally raised for the support of the local work, making a total of $23,206.21 raised by the Klamath Falls church membership for the year 1955.

State Tax Commission Relates Aid On Reports

Samuel B. Stewart, commissioner-in-charge of the valuation division of the State Tax Commission, today announced that the commission has issued a group of rules and regulations that will help personal property taxpayers to take advantage of a new "monthly-average" method of reporting this type of taxable property.

Under the new law passed by the last Legislature, personal property taxpayers have the choice of making their tax returns either on the monthly-average basis, or on the January 1 date as in prior years. This option, in effect for the first time this year will give relief to those taxpayers who carry a large inventory of goods, livestock, or merchandise on January 1, but a smaller amount during the balance of the year.

The new law will be of particular interest to owners of logs, lumber, livestock, and a few other types of businesses that maintain a high seasonal inventory during the winter months. The January 1 reporting date is still in effect—the taxpayer has until March 2 to make his report to the county assessor, but the return is based on his taxable property on the January 1 date. The change in the law permits this January 1 report to be either the actual physical inventory as of that date, or an average of monthly inventories for the previous year.

The regulations issued by the Tax Commission govern the methods by which the monthly-average option can be exercised. The principal point of the recommended procedure is that the taxpayer must keep adequate records to enable the county assessor to determine the value of the stock on hand at the end of each month.

Commissioner Stewart points out that this monthly average value shall be calculated by taking the true cash value of all the stock, as defined by the law, that is owned by the taxpayer on the last business day of each month, adding these monthly values together, and dividing the total by the number of months that the taxpayer was engaged in business during the year. If a taxpayer elects to use the monthly average option, this method of reporting must be used on all types of personal property owned by the taxpayer in any one county.

Options can be different, however, from county to county. If the taxpayer has taxable property in more than one county, he may report on the monthly - average basis in one county, while using the January 1 annual inventory method in the others. Once the option has been selected, it cannot be changed for the tax fiscal year, but can be changed on the following year.

January and February are the months in which most personal property taxpayers will receive a reporting form from their county assessor. If the taxpayer chooses to use the monthly-average option for reporting personal property, he must supply the county assessor with adequate records to support his report of the monthly average. He must also indicate on the personal property report form that he has elected to use this monthly average system.

Commissioner Stewart points out that the valuation division has copies of the rules and regulations available for interested taxpayers. County assessors throughout the state also have copies of the regulations and can help the taxpayer make out his personal property tax return.

'King Of The Boudoir' Makes Beds For Movie Sets

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Writer

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — For 22 years a man named Henry Frace has held one of the most important, delicate and envied jobs in the cinema city—making beds for Grace Kelly, Lana Turner and other beauties to climb into.

The king of the boudoir is a set decorator at MGM whose specialty is fashioning beds for movie sets. He has made beds of roses, beds to dance on, beds for beauties to sob on and lie upon.

Recently he composed a high point in his career: A record number of five beds for Lana Turner to slip into for "Diane."

In the film, Lana plays a famous courtesan of 16th Century France. When she first arrives at the palace, she sleeps in a narrow, simple bed. As she acquires a procession of royal lovers the beds are elaborate four-poster, canopied affairs.

"A bed can be a very important part of a plot," explained Henry today as he held forth on the subject in his bedless office.

"In 'Young Bess' to show the change in Jean Simmons' age we started her in a narrow, simple bed, suggesting a virginal quality. As she matured the beds widened."

Decorator Henry's bed-making goes back to Joan Crawford's "Sadie McKee" of the '30s. Her bed was in that "cornball modern style of that time."

In Henry's office hang photographs of his other famous beds—the huge white ruffled organdy bed Jeannette MacDonald slept on for "The Merry Widow"... the pad-on-a-block bed for Norma Shearer in "Romeo and Juliet"... Greta Garbo's deathbed with its huge, ruffled square pillow for "Camille."

The bed-maker's biggest headache: Keeping the stars cool in bed.

"For many scenes they have to get into bed, as Grace Kelly did in 'The Swan,'" he said. "Under those blankets and hot lights, it's a tremendous heat problem. We make the blankets and comforters thin."

Henry's bed is simple and modern. He never has insomnia.
