

High Ranking Marine Officer Assists at Church Bazaar Near Marine Corps Headquarters, D.C.

Thomas Jefferson was a life-long member and communicant of the Episcopal Church.

During his presidency he was a regular attendant at the Christ Church when the oldest Episcopal parish in Washington was housed in its first building, a converted tobacco warehouse in the southeast section of the capital.

This was emphasized at a recent bazaar held in the present structure (begun in 1807). Waffles baked on an eighteenth century water iron from Jefferson's daughter, and Martha's pound cake were offered.

Martha Jefferson Randolph was her father's official White House hostess during the early days of the 18th century and her pound cake, which is now on the market in cake mix form, was often served to guests at the Executive Mansion and at Jefferson's home, Monticello, in Virginia.

In addition to the waffles, some of the mix was baked into two cakes in 8th century molds for auctioning: a "Saints' Cake" flavored with almonds and rosewater, a "Sinners' Cake" with black walnuts and brandy.

On hand to assist at the bazaar was Marine Commandant General Lemuel C. Shepherd Jr., senior warden and vestryman of the church, which is just one block away from Marine Corps headquarters. Since early days members of the corps have been parishioners and old church records reveal that the Marines marched to Sunday services in a body and sat in the gallery.

The present structure which incorporates part of the original meeting house was designed by Benjamin Latrobe, architect of the Capitol building. Parishioners describe the building project a "reconciliation" instead of a restoration.

Jefferson was baptized and married in the Episcopal Church and all the members of his family were buried from there. But Jefferson insisted on disestablishing the church from the state when he revised the law and drew up the Statute of Virginia for Religious Freedom.

Before his death he designed the simple monument—an obelisk, six feet high, resting on a square base for his tomb and requested that it bear the following inscription "and not a word more."

"Here was buried—Thomas Jefferson—author of the Declaration of American Independence—Of the Statute of Virginia for Religious Freedom—And Father of the University of Virginia. Because of these as testimony that I have lived, I wish most to be remembered."

Library Club Hears Review Of Biography On Browning Given By Mrs. Victor O'Neill

Members of the Klamath Falls Women's Library Club were an interested audience at the January 9 meeting, when Mrs. Victor E. O'Neill entertained them with a sparkling and informative review of Betty Miller's "Browning"—a recently released biography of the famous poet, Robert Browning.

In Mrs. O'Neill's review, she pointed out the contrast between the social life of our young people today—and that of Browning and his contemporaries.

Mrs. Don Zumwalt, music chairman, arranged the musical program, which featured a string and woodwind ensemble of students from three elementary schools, Conger, Fairview and Mills. They appeared under the direction of Kristian Gippo.

Mrs. Hugh O'Connor assisted by Mrs. Bert Thomas and Mrs. Thomas A. Sandoe arranged the outstanding decorations in the room. Antiques of the Browning period were furnished by Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Sandoe.

Tea chairman for the day, Mrs. E. O. Jackson, was assisted by Mrs. James Thornton, Mrs. Arch Proctor, Mrs. Fred Hoagland and Mrs. Phil Schroeder.

Pouring during the tea hour were Mrs. J. A. Nixon and Mrs. Chet E. Stoney.

The next meeting is slated for February 13, at 2 p.m., in the City Library Clubroom.

BONNER-SPRY VOWS EXCHANGED IN CANDLELIGHT CHURCH RITES

Margaret A. Spry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Spry, Gillingham, Wisconsin, became the bride of Clifford L. Bonner, son of Mrs. Effie Bonner, Midvale, Idaho, December 24, in Klamath Falls Church of the Nazarene. The Rev. J. Maynard Norvell, pastor of Midvale Church of the Nazarene, read the candlelight service at 4 p.m., in the presence of close friends and members of the immediate families.

Mrs. Arnold C. Wheeler, Vallejo, was matron of honor for her sister, Mrs. Wheeler's daughter, Sherry Dawn. She also sang "I Love You Truly," and "Wedding Prayer," accompanied by Mrs. Robert E. Ewing and Melvin Hays.

Candlelighters were Adele and Erma Hoover, cousins of the bridegroom, from Weiser, Idaho. Traditional wedding marches for the wedding were played by Mrs. Truman Nelson. She also sang "I Love You Truly," and "Wedding Prayer," accompanied by Mrs. Robert E. Ewing.

Lighted tapers in floor candelabra illuminated the large basket-bouquets of white snapdragons, chrysanthemums and pink carnations.

The reception was in Fellowship Hall of the Congregational Church. Arrangements were made by Mrs. Melvin Hayes and Mrs. Verne Speirs who also poured and served. Janet Speirs carried the guest book.

The bride is a graduate of Northwest Nazarene College, Nampa, Idaho; and has been teaching at Mills School here for the past six years. Her husband is a rancher in Idaho, and after a California honeymoon, they are at home in Midvale.

Out-of-town guests were the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Elsie Bonner; and Gertrude Bonner, the Rev. and Mrs. J. Maynard Norvell, Midvale, Idaho; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bonner, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hoover and daughters, Adele and Erma, Weiser, Idaho; Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wheeler, and daughters, Bonnie Jo and Sherry Dawn, Vallejo; Mrs. Verne Speirs and Janet, Ashland; and Martha Keller, San Francisco.

Parties for the bride included showers given by Mrs. Melvin Hayes, Hilyard Avenue; and Mrs. Harry Todd, 730 Mt. Whitney; and for the couple, an open house reception given by Mrs. Dan Hoover, Weiser, Idaho.

Take it from me girls... stay Smart and Healthy

By Bessy, the Basin Bossy

What with an election year at hand, there's bound to be added emphasis on patriotism and such during 1956.

No doubt this wasn't being considered when the colors were chosen, but it is interesting to note that spring sportswear, in a revival of "the spectator look", is going to feature red, white and blue more strongly than during any recent year.

Mostly it's to be white with touches of red or blue — or both about. Bands on the sleeves, semaphores flag trimmings, skipper blue and white stripes, and such.

Down the age step to the juniors for a moment — and they are talking summer browns for the sunshine season. One is "butternut", which is on the beige side, and the other is walnut.

One step further to children's clothes... they were talking a navy blue Easter for the youngsters this season, but it looks now — from reports — as though the trend may be heading toward the pastels. Pale pink, blue, and even lavender are getting lots of attention.

In all three of these age brackets there's one thing that goes for everyone every day — and that's three glasses of Grade "A" milk. There is a saying that goes like this: "You never outgrow your need for milk." And there's not an ounce of fiction in it, either. Old young or in between, make certain you and every member of your family are getting those important trio of glasses of milk. Take it from me, results will be better health, more happiness and a feeling of well-being.

Bessy.
