MYSTERY SOLVED
DENVER—The mystery of the missing tombstones was solved yesterday. They were needed for a party. Explaining their theft of two tombstones from a local firm, four Denver University students told police the 100-pound items were needed as appropriate decorations for Kappa Sigma fraternity's annual Morticians Ball. The students were lectured and released.

KF MAN SENTENCED
DUNSMUIR—William H. Showalter, 41, of Klamath Falls, was sentenced to jail for 75 days Monday in the court of Judge Joseph F. Aleck Jr., in Redding. Showalter pleaded guilty to drunk driving, crossing the double line and driving on the wrong side of the road. He was unable to pay the $315 fine.

SKI COURSE STUDENTS SIGN
DUNSMUIR—The second session of a five-week ski course will be held on Saturday at Snowman's Hill. The Mount Shasta and Dunsmuir recreation districts are co-operating in providing the school for both adults and children in the area.
 About 230 ski students signed up for the course last week and were transported by bus from the two communities. The lessons last about an hour but bus schedules are arranged so students may remain for practice.
 Small children are accepted for lessons but all those under 10 must be accompanied by an adult.
 Beat Jenni, of Mount Shasta, former Swiss racer and instructor, is the ski school director. Instructors are Bill and Jo Herbert. Gud Odegard and Russ Ludlum from Dunsmuir; Jim and Velma Nile, Roger Hines, Roy Freppenberg and Howard Gruenther of Mount Shasta; Harry Watkins Jr., and Al Parente from McCloud. Jack Murtha, Mount Shasta recreation director and Jack Samuelson, chairman of the Dunsmuir Recreation Board, are assisting.
 Individual instruction is also available on Sundays. This can be arranged by contacting Mrs. Bill Herbert, either on the ski slopes or at her home in Dunsmuir.

"DENNIS THE MENACE"

"DENNIS IS SLEEPING, DAD, BUT LET'S GO UPSTAIRS AND TAKE A PEEK AT HIM, ANYWAY."

Arthur Penn Lauded For Work On TV's Playwrights

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK—The directing genius of Arthur Penn received full expression this week with the production of "Lost" on Playwrights 56 (NBC-TV). The Tuesday evening drama was one of the best studies of emotional disturbance ever seen on television.
 "Lost" concerned a man who suffered from amnesia. The script by Arnold Schulman was based on a factual study of such an actual man in the New Yorker by Berton Roueche. It was not tragedy in the classical meaning of the word since the victim had no choices in confronting his fate. But its impact on the TV screen was that of tragedy.
 Walter Uhl, superbly played by Steven Hill, was a man who forgot his identity and lost himself in New York. Without indulging in any of the clinical hocus-pocus that so often mars dramas of emotional disturbance on television, Penn and Schulman made it abundantly clear that Uhl suffered from dementia praecox, a mental disease whose victims are unable to face reality.
 The cause of this mental illness is unknown. Its definite cure is unknown. We can only suffer with its victims. Since much of life is "suffering," "Lost" gave us much of life. Through the deft use of a Greek chorus technique, Penn touched Uhl's life with sympathy or misunderstanding. To give proper credit to the actors one would have to recite the entire large cast.

 The utter truth of the drama shone through the closing moments when no bromide was offered. It was television at its best.

Another instance of television at its best in a different field preceded "Lost" on NBC-TV. On the Chevy Chase Hour a group of pleasant people gathered with that most pleasant of women, Dinah Shore, to provide an hour of good entertainment.
 Perry Como and Gisele MacKenzie proved perfect companions for Miss Shore. The program was further blessed with the appearance of the great French pianist, Marcel Marceau. The show was given sufficient thread by Stubby Kaye and Johnny Silver, who played a couple of street-corner hookey agents looking for talent. They found plenty.

County Chamber Objectives Outlined To Soroptimists

The two objectives of the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce—(1) to stabilize the economy of the Klamath Basin and (2) to broaden that economy by obtaining new wealth for the Klamath Basin, and past accomplishments of the chamber were outlined for members of the Klamath Falls Soroptimist Club at the noon luncheon, January 19 at the Wilma Hotel.
 The speaker was R. Frank Tucker, manager of the chamber. He was introduced by Laura Olson, program chairman.
 Using a Chinese proverb, "It Is Better to Light One Candle Than to Curse the Darkness," Tucker stated that the functions of the chamber are often misunderstood. It is neither a service club nor all things to all people.
 He listed as an immediate concern of the organization the solution of the current serious sanitation problem in the metropolitan area and the processes to be completed to attain adequate sewage disposal. Influx of personnel at the jet air base will increase the hazard of inadequate disposal, Tucker stated.

 In the past and at present, the chamber has been and is occupied with the development of agriculture, aviation, roads, OTI, inter-city relationships, industrial development, the basin's water policy, natural resources, equitable traffic rates, taxation, the encouragement of tourist traffic and publicizing of the basin's scenic attractions.
 The chamber was responsible for the research work and evaluation of Klamath Falls as a cellulose mill site, worked for 15 years to bring coordination between state and county for the building of South Sixth Street viaduct to be started this year, and is promoting the proposed highway between Klamath Falls and Medford via Lake of the Woods.
 Tucker also stated that the thinking of the population of Klamath Falls is still not geared to the immediate growth of the city and the resultant increased flow of income into local business. He stressed the fact that all individuals, directly or indirectly will be benefited by economic development in this area.
 Hal Ogle, historian, will be guest speaker at the January 26 meeting.

ROOZE SNOOZE
COVINGTON, Ky.—Snoozing off a booze under a judge's bench is a bad bet. So said City Commissioner Charles Rump yesterday after finding Walter Thornberry sleeping beneath a judge's desk in the courtroom during a City Council meeting. Thornberry was charged with drunkenness.
