OVER THE GARDEN GATE

ALTURAS
By Mrs. J. R. Laird

The January meeting of the Alturas Garden Club was held at the home of Mrs. Warren Cantrall. Roll call was answered by each member naming her favorite house plant. It was interesting to note that the African Violet predominated as a favorite.

A guest of the club was Mrs. Kennedy of Montana, houseguest of Mrs. H. Tragitt. Mrs. Kennedy in reviewing the climate at her home made the Alturas Garden Club members feel that they lived in a tropical climate by comparison. Temperatures in her home area drop to 20 and 30 below zero.

Mrs. Kenneth Green read an interesting letter from a personal friend in Idaho who has been in garden club work for several years. Mrs. Green wrote seeking new ideas that might be incorporated in the new program for the Alturas club.

The reply was that the Idaho garden enthusiasts had found the Alturas Garden Club program so well done that the members planned to use it as a guide in 1956. Since Alturas is a newcomer in the national federation, this comment was considered an honor.

Mrs. Warren Cantrall spoke on the subject, "Therapy and Dish Gardens." Her talk was illustrated by gardens in several types of dishes and other types with plants growing in sand and water mixtures.

Mrs. Kenneth Flournoy stated that the Modoc County Fair manager, Mr. Christensen was revising the horticultural program for the 1956 fair and would welcome a delegation from the Alturas Garden Club. Mrs. Decker and Mrs. Ebbe attended the meeting.

Mrs. Tragitt featured a beautiful corsage made of Christmas cactus, that was blooming in her home. Mrs. James Ingram made the clever table arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums.

Mrs. James Maher represented the Alturas Club at the district meeting held in Klamath Falls.

Mrs. Paul Decker drew the attendance prize which was one of the dish gardens made by Mrs. Cantrall. Refreshments were served during the social hour.

Employment Rise Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Labor Department forecast today employment will rise by mid-March in about two-thirds of the nation's 149 major industrial centers. It said the rise would follow the usual mid-winter slump.

Job increases are expected during the next two months in most durable goods industries except automobiles, in several soft goods industries and in trade and construction, the department said.

In auto factories, the department said, the outlook is "uncertain." Some automobile centers expect further "minor" job cutbacks but most foresee little or no change from current job levels over the next few months, it said.

The department predicted the aircraft industry will replace the auto industry as the "primary impetus" for the expected rise in employment in durable goods factories over the next few months. It said the aircraft industry "has been increasingly stimulated" in recent months by new orders for jet and turbo-jet planes for civilian airlines.
