RESOLUTION ADOPTED
TOKYO (AP)—The lower house of the Japanese Diet unanimously adopted a resolution Thursday calling on the United States, Britain and Russia to stop atomic and hydrogen bomb tests.

LETTER FROM WASHINGTON

by Rep. Harris Ellsworth 4th District

I lost a mighty good friend when Governor Paul Patterson died last week. Paul and Georgia were at the University of Oregon in the same college "generation" with Helen (Mrs. Ellsworth) and me. The four of us got together occasionally and since Paul has been governor I have enjoyed rather frequent visits with him — both in Salem and when he came to Washington, D.C. I think Paul Patterson was one of the most likeable, most intelligent and most capable persons I have ever known. It is an indescribable loss to us all to have him taken at the very top of his effectiveness and value in his service to our state.

The school construction bill, which last week I said would be on the floor of the House in a few days, is temporarily bogged down in the Rules Committee. It is not being held up by that committee. Most everyone concedes that the bill will be granted an open rule and sent to the floor. But when, that is the question. The Rules Committee has already held several days of hearings on the bill. It seems that both the witnesses and the committee members who question them want to do a lot of talking so that far only four of the 11 House members who asked to appear before the committee have been heard. How long it will take to hear the remaining seven is hard to say. As a random guess I would say the bill will not reach the floor for about two weeks.

The hearings ("smearings") would be a more accurate word) conducted by a Senate-House joint subcommittee looking into the patenting of some mining claims at the old Buzzard mine in Jackson County (known now as Al Sarena mine) are now finished. They proved nothing except that under existing law the patents in question should have been granted long before under the previous administration which demanded and received full payment for the claims.

A Republican member of the Senate subcommittee, Senator Goldwater, sums the whole thing up as follows, in a speech on the Senate floor:

"For nearly five months an investigation has been taking place under a subcommittee of the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee of the Senate, into the reasons why the patents were granted on lands on the Rogue River, in Oregon. Witnesses after witness has been called in an effort on the subcommittee's part to show that something unusual happened in the granting of these patents."

"Mr. President, under the old mining law which was changed by the first session of this Congress, there was nothing the Bureau of Land Management could do but issue the patents. The unusual in this case has been the disclosure that under the former secretary of interior not only was the law ignored, but no decision, either pro or con, was reached on patent applications. The hearing has, to my mind, developed further one of the basic differences between the ideology of the New Deal and the ideology of this administration, namely, that the advocates of the New Deal-Fair Deal believe in government by men, whereas this administration believes in government by law."

Rescue Work Nears Completion

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—A helicopter prepared to head back into the Venezuelan jungle today to complete the rescue of U. S. Navy airmen whose plane went down en route to an antarctic rescue mission.

All eight men aboard the patrol bomber, a Neptune PV, were reported unhurt. A helicopter brought three out yesterday to Port of Spain, Trinidad.

The Navy subsequently announced in Washington that the object of the rescue mission—a plane missing since Friday with seven men aboard—had been located.

DEATH CHEATED
SHAMOKIN, Pa. (AP)—Peter Wydra, 34, cheated death in a cave-in at a coal mine near here two years ago, but yesterday his luck ran out. Another fall of rock and timber trapped him, and Peter Karwarski, 48, the father of mine, in the same 150-foot-deep pit and desolate Boyer's Knob. Both were killed.

Mill Study Findings Agree With Earlier Study Made

LAKEVIEW — Findings of the mill study on ponderosa pine grade recovery made in January, 1955, at the American Forest Products Corporation at Lakeview reveal to industry and the forest service that the basic lumber recovery from the log grades is in agreement with the data found in previous mill studies and in current use by the forest service and industry.

Lloyd Gillmor, timber manager, American Forest Products Corp., stated this week.

This study was made as a cooperative project with the American Forest Products Corp., White Pine Lumber Company, Fremont Sawmill Co., Western Pine Association, Oregon Forest Products Laboratory and the U. S. Forest Service participating. The study was to determine the grades of lumber that can be expected from ponderosa pine timber grown in the Lakeview area.

All logs cut for a full week last January at the American Forest Products Corp. mill at Lakeview were scaled and graded and all lumber produced was graded and tallied on the green chain by individual logs. The lumber was kiln dried, surfaced and again graded. The lumber grades shown in the report are based on dry surfaced material. The log rule used was developed by Dr. J. E. Lodgewick in 1928 when he was a member of the Pacific Northwest Forest and Range experiment station and this log rule is in general use in Oregon and Washington for appraising ponderosa pine timber.

A detailed report, "Ponderosa Pine Lumber Recovery in the Lakeview, Oregon Area," by E. E. Matson is printed in Research Note for December, 1955 published by the Pacific Northwest Forest and Range Experiment Station of the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture. This report is available at the Lakeview forest service headquarters or from Washington, D.C.

Raymond Massey To Play Abe Lincoln On Video Show

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Writer
HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Raymond Massey this Saturday night will glue on a beard and a false nose, clip on a wig, and once again play Abraham Lincoln—a legend he has no intention of avoiding.

CBS-TV is launching an unusual "spectacular"—a 90-minute color version of the best-selling book, "The Day Lincoln Was Shot," by Lillian Glush plays Mary Todd. Comedian Jack Lemmon, in the most off-beat casting of the year, portrays John Wilkes Booth.

Massey, of course, is portraying Lincoln again, a role that has haunted him for 16 years. But Massey not only doesn't mind, he's happy about it.

"I like Lincoln, and please say that," Massey told me before rehearsals for the show. "Recently I was misquoted as saying my new TV spy series would get me away from Lincoln. I never said that."

The deep-voiced actor starred in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" in New York for two years and also toured with the play. His film version was released in 1939.

"Down the years I've received letters about Lincoln," he mused. "It's funny, the identification you get. Nobody has played Lincoln as much as I have. Four years ago I did him on 'The Pulitzer Prize Theater' on TV. And I've done a radio version of the play, oh, four or five times, on Lincoln's Birthday."

Massey wore a beard—attached with a rubber band—only for the last scene of the play. But the TV story is about an older Lincoln, so he will be bearded.

"And I'll play him differently," Massey added. "As he's had four years of a tremendous burden."
