

YOUR CONGRESSMAN SAYS

by Rep. Sam Coon
2nd District

Prospects are good that Congress will pass a road construction bill this year to complete our Federal interstate highway system. Both Republican and Democratic leaders seem to have settled their differences on this legislation.

Last year, I voted for two highway bills. One of them was President Eisenhower's highway program. The other was that proposed by the Democrats. Both of them were defeated. I am glad the road construction program is being considered this year, pretty much on a nonpartisan basis.

Pay-as-you-go financing for the road program seems very probable. The idea of financing it through bond issues has practically been discarded.

The big problem now, is which highway users should pay how much. It is pretty well agreed that there will be a one cent boost in the Federal gasoline tax. The tax on diesel fuel would also be raised. Truckers generally favor a one cent boost. The railroads, the American Automobile Association and others, would like the trucking industry to pay more than this.

Committee work goes on during Lincoln's birthday week. At this season and at Jackson's birthday, no roll call votes are taken in Congress. There is an agreement to hold up action on controversial legislation. This is to give, first the Republicans, and then the Democrats, a chance to do some speculating at dinners all over the country.

I have been appointed to a subcommittee of my Labor and Education Committee, to consider and hold hearings on minimum wage legislation for Guam, American Samoa and Wake Island. This is important to the people on those islands, and it takes many hours of committee hearings.

A house agriculture subcommittee has been holding hearings on H.R. 5759. This bill proposes that Uncle Sam should pay the cost of flood control construction on small waterheds.

Attorneys Rap Indian Claims

WASHINGTON (AP)—Attorneys for various Indian tribes testified Tuesday against a bill that would bar Indian claims against the government based on original ownership of lands.

Marvin J. Sonosky, attorney for the Sisseton-Wahpeton Sioux, told the Senate Interior Affairs subcommittee that the bill, if approved, would automatically bar some 750 of 850 claims now pending before the Indian Claims Commission.

Robert W. Barker, representing the Shoshone and Flathead, testified that the bill would bar the Indian claims which would run into billions of dollars.

The total of judgments rendered in favor of Indians by the Court of Claims and the Claims Commission amounts to only about 1.4 per cent of what is asked for, he said.

Glenn A. Wilkinson, attorney for the Hopi, Ute, Spokane and Klamath Indians, also opposed the bill.
