

KU Wins District Mat Title

13 Earn Spots In Big Meet

Klamath Union High School's 1956 wrestling team rolled over matmen of four high schools Friday and Saturday in district action at Southern Oregon College, and by virtue of the triumph, earned the berth in the state championship room for the seventh time, besides qualifying thirteen Pelican grapplers for the State Tournament next weekend in Corvallis.

Coach Lorne Simons' wrestlers amassed 154 points in the victory; Grants Pass finished second with 115; Medford took third spot with 75; Illinois Valley placed fourth with 43; and Glendale wound up in last place with 39.

In a feature bout of Saturday's competition, defending champion Richard Berg pinned Dave Filipe of Grants Pass, and the runner-up action retained his title.

In 98-pound action Steve Bleak and Larry Bender won to win the trip to Oregon State College, with Bleak capturing all of his matches to become a district champion, and Bender finishing in runner-up spot. Gary Cramer became champion in the 106-pound division, with Glendale's Glen Bensley placing as runner-up.

Ron Stevens, Grants Pass, claimed the champion's laurels for the 115-pounder, and Pelican Ken Kuhlman held the runner-up honors. In 123-pound action Gary Roberts claimed the champion's niche with Gordon Owsley, Medford, in runner-up position.

Medford swept the 130-pound class with Ron Lingren taking the champion's role, and George Flinn again finishing for runner-up. Ray Hilton, Medford, grabbed the 136-pound crown with Klamath's Bill Steiner in runner-up spot. Illinois Valley's Ray Cole became 141-pound champ, and Harold Day was the closest competitor as runner-up. Dave Filipe of Grants Pass, the 148-pound runner-up, losing to Champ Richard Berg in the deciding match.

Defending Champion Dave Leeling retained his 157-pound crown, and Dan Hitchcock, finished as runner-up in this weight division. The match was swept by the Whiteblites.

George Peterson, Grants Pass, nailed down the 163-pound championship, and Ron Ropp finished as runner-up. C. B. Simons nabbed the championship for Klamath in the 178-pounder division. Grant Pass' Reed Dougherty winding up as runner-up.

In 191-pound action Illinois Valley's Eldo Swift ascended the champion's throne, with Larry Thompson, of Grants Pass, finishing runner-up. In the 200-pounder division, Grants Pass' edged Bob Harshbarger for heavyweight honors by capturing the championship. Harshbarger was runner-up.

Several other teams also gained berths in the state championship room. Eugene, ranked No. 10 in the state, and unranked McMinnville did it in District 4. Beaverton defeated Forest Grove, 63-38, and McMinnville downed Newberg, 51-43.

Central Catholic of Portland earned a district berth by defeating Gresham, 65-51.

Portland's top entry, Jefferson, failed to clinch a berth, however, as Franklin, ranked No. 3 in the state, downed Jefferson, 79-60. Jefferson, rated No. 2 in the state, still lead the Portland race and can pick up a berth in later play.

Franklin was led by 6-0 Bjarne Jensen, who scored 42 points. Lincoln kept pace with Franklin by trimming Cleveland, 70-56.

Washington retained an outside berth at one of Portland's three tournaments. The team from Washington eliminated Grant, 58-52.

Medford, already assured of tournament entry, kept in trim by walloping Grants Pass, 72-52. Medford is rated No. 4 in the state. Marshfield, the No. 5 team, defeated Springfield, 71-47.

Milton-Freewater, the No. 7 team, won from The Dalles, 57-41, and Pendleton defeated Hermiston 63-37, to close in on the leading Blue Mountain Conference team, Baker. Baker, ranked No. 8 in the state, took the night off from conference play and walloped Nyssa, 70-43.

PCC Bowl Proposal On 'Big Ten' Agenda

CHICAGO (UP) — The Big Ten will begin discussion this week on whether to accept a proposal from the Pacific Coast Conference to make their annual appearance in the Rose Bowl a permanent policy.

The Pacific Coast proposal will be brought up as a major item on the agenda for the conference winter meeting at East Lansing Friday and Saturday, but there was no issue would be taken then.

For one thing it would require a change of an age-old conference policy for the Big Ten to accept a permanent tie-up with the Rose Bowl and the Pacific Coast.

Though Big Ten teams have appeared in the last 10 Rose Bowls, the competition was possible on separate waivers of the league rule against post-season football games.

The first waiver applied to the initial five year contract for games from 1947 through 1951. It was renewed for the following two contracts, for games from 1952 through 1954, and from 1955 through 1957.

But in order to write a permanent contract with the Rose Bowl, the conference would have to drop its rule against post-season competition. Such repeal would require votes of the faculties of the individual members.

Another thorn which could come up to prevent acceptance of the permanent pact would be the conroversial "one in two" clause. Under the first contract, no Big Ten team could appear more often than once in three years while the Pacific Coast champion went annually.

The following two pacts made the same requirement of both conferences, that no team could appear more than once in two years.

Minnesota and Northwestern have opposed the bowl contract on each of three occasions a vote was taken. Other schools which have voted against the pact include Illinois, Purdue, Wisconsin and Michigan State. The first agreement was approved by a 63 tally and the other two by 64 counts.

Some opposition remains in the Big Ten to the "one in two" clause and should the Pacific Coast insist upon this regulation, there might be stronger foes in the Big Ten to a "permanent" agreement.

Thus while a permanent agreement might be reached eventually, there could be enough objection in the Big Ten to prevent it from being accepted now with the "one in two" proposal. Another renewal of the "one in two" basis might be accepted before a permanent agreement could be reached.

The Rose Bowl game divides a gross of more than $1,000,000 between the Rose Bowl committee and the two participating conferences. The Big Ten's share of the gate runs about $420,000, divided into 12 shares, two for the competing school and one for each other institution and the commissioner's office.

coming dog trial season. And to add to their hopes of the near future, the next few weeks will find action in some of the big California field trials.

Today will see the Newport Beach trial winding up, and on March 2-3, the Oxnard trial will be held. Other trials that are comprising the "circuit" include Hollister, March 9-10-11, and Woodland, March 16-17-18.

The Klamath Falls spring trial along with other Southern Oregon retriever shows should begin unfolding during the fading days of March or early in April.

WEEKEND SPORTS BRIEFS

The trip to the state A-1 tourney will not be a new "thing" to Jim Bocchi. . . . Bocchi was a second team all-star selection from Klamath Union High when the Pelts won the state championship by beating Baker, 52-28, in 1943. . . . part of the tourney will be new to Bocchi Baker, 52-28, in 1943. . . . when he played for Klamath, the classic was held at Salem. . . . the first state-playoffs at Eugene were in 1947 when Klamath Falls settled for runner-up honors and Marshfield came off the winner. . . . Pelican basketball teams have won the title only once, (that 1943 team) but have played in the finals three other times. . . . the last Klamath entry in the big top of prep sporting events was in 1952, but losses at the hands of Bend and Salem cut the Whiteblites short.

If anyone doubts the drawing power of Big Bill Russell-Cassey Jones and Company from University of San Francisco, let their shouts be directed towards Jim Barratt, Oregon State College ticket manager. . . . Barratt supervised the ticket sale of the NCAA Regional basketball playoffs, which when opened, wasn't much of a lengthy procedure. . . . within 48 hours after the tickets went on sale, all of the 9,800 seats were gone, and only one team has gained official entry to the March 16-17 playoffs. . . . that team is Seattle University, but the big noises are being heard about USF, which has yet to officially gain a berth. . . . although headed the box office appeal of the regional playoffs. . . . before the Russell-Jones combination shattered the sports pages with the name of USF, basketball fans usually wanted to know who the four teams were going to be, not any more. . . . despite the fact a few pro scouts are timid in thinking of Russell as a pro basketballer, a great many business managers in the National Basketball Association would like to have Russell standing near the ticket booths attracting customers.

Once again this year the color and excitement of the County B League Basketball tournament was outstanding. . . . for those of you who bypassed the tourney that concluded last night at Pelican Court, you missed a good showing of small high school spirit. . . . although the smaller schools, such as the ones that comprise the County League, miss out on things that come natural to the A-1 schools of the state, a lot of the larger high schools can compete with the B's for pep and spirit. . . . One rainbow of colors supplied by the eight participating schools made quite a picture, and to top off the week's tournament, there were some fine exhibitions of basketball.

Fraley's Facts, Figures

NEW YORK (UP) — Oscar Fraley's Facts and Figures: Equal rights mean a lot of things to a lot of people but one of the most poignant interpretations comes from one of the basketball players at Niagara University.

Minnesota and Northwestern have opposed the bowl contract on each of three occasions a vote was taken. Other schools which have voted against the pact include Illinois, Purdue, Wisconsin and Michigan State. The first agreement was approved by a 63 tally and the other two by 64 counts.

Some opposition remains in the Big Ten to the "one in two" clause and should the Pacific Coast insist upon this regulation, there might be stronger foes in the Big Ten to a "permanent" agreement.

So when the team went to Washington, Taps took the boys to such places as the Capitol and the Washington monument. Eventually, they wound up at the Lincoln Memorial and Taps was standing in front of the statue of Lincoln, serene in his great marble armchair, when Tom Hemans, his six-foot, seven inch Negro star, tapped Gallagher on the shoulder and pointing up to Lincoln's statue, said in all seriousness:

"Coach, there's the man who got us into the National Invitation basketball tournament the last two years. . . .

Happy birthday; Today, Bobby Riggs 38, Monte Irvin 35; Henry Ransom 45 and Andy Parko 35; Monday, Gene Zaranza 54 and Rubie Melton 33; Wednesday, Pepper Martin 52; Thursday, Al Rosen 31 and Max Bentley 36; Friday, Mel OH 47, Moe Cooper 42, Moe Berg 54 and Jim Konstanty 39.

Boxing is supposed to be filled with double-dealing characters — and let it be said here that it certainly is. . . . but Johnny Saxton, the welterweight champion, Carmen Basilio as a man of his word.

That was all Saxton had, Basilio's word, when Jarrin Johnny stepped aside to let Basilio take a crack at Tony DeMarco and then defend against the Bostonite, So Saxton, boxing reputations being what they deservedly are, acknowledges deep gratitude that Carmen will meet him with the title at stake in Chicago on March 14.

If you want to see Swaps and Nashua in the Gulfstream Park Handicap at Florida's Gulfstream Park on March 17 you'd better be certain that you have some place to stay the night.

Hotels in the area are flooded. On one day this week, the Gulfstream management received calls from 17 states, as far away as Minnesota, asking about the event and demanding "stall space."

And I wish somebody would pick me a winner!

Klamath Falls stepped into state-wide bowling news last week as the Southern Oregon Music quintet took first place honors in the Moose state tournament at Springfield, led by a 880 series for Clara Beard the team posted a 2,586 winning count. Other members of the team were Vi Grems, Jean Robinson, Scotty Gray and LaRayne Harris.

Scoring by local teams in tournaments out of town in recent weeks has been generally very high. Klamath Basin Pine Mills moved into seventh place in the Class B teams at the state tournament at Portland with a 2,703 tally. Haley Herold's tracked up 2,728 for 12th place in the Class A division. The best individual effort was Angelo Conte's 636 in the Class B singles. Conte's score stood in second place as the tournament rolled into its final week. Mel Robinson and Roy Harris clicked together for a 1,197 count for 6th in Class A doubles.

Doris Benedict set a new high mark for individual game scores for this season's Ladybug league action with a 229 Thursday night. Her 573 series count was tops for women's league play for the week.

Next Saturday night is the big night for those who won the various events in the recent city associations. The Moose Lodge is the site for this event which features a buffet supper, the awards ceremony and a dance. Tickets may be purchased at Lucky Lanes.

Hensen Irked By Oval Talk
By HAL WOOD
United Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Carl Hensen, the very capable president of the Amateur Athletic Union, is getting a little irked at people accusing his group of "picking on" Wes Santee.

"Why are you making Wes Santee the first man you ever suspend?" Hensen says people are always asking him.

"It just shows that they don't follow amateur athletics very much."

"If you think there is a lot of discussion about this Santee case, talk to some of the old-timers after the Jim Thorpe banishment after the 1912 Olympic Games. There still is talk about that one."

"And how about the time Eleanor Holm was suspended enroute to the 1936 Olympics?"

SUSPENDED
Hensen points out that down through the years the AAU has had to suspend athletes who get out of line and United States isn't the only country that does it.

"Remember when Paavo Nurmi of Finland was barred from the 1922 olympic after a protest from Germany that he had been paid too much money?" Hensen recalled.

Hensen wishes to point out that the AAU isn't exactly a policing body.

"We are not a bunch of 'Paul Pry' men or 'long noses' checking someone else's business," said Hensen. "But when a specific case is brought to our attention, then we must do something about it."

Hensen, however, is not in sympathy with the AAU policy of banning directors of meets.

FALL GUY
"There is no parallel between a director giving money and an athlete taking it with ever-increasing demands," said Hensen. "The director spends a lot of his own time, money and effort to promote the sport; or possibly to help raise some money for a worthy cause. They get no money out of it, and usually it costs them something out of their own pocket."

Hensen is a little disturbed by the ban placed on Fred Van Dyke, director of the Pacific Association AAU meet at Stockton as a result of paying $400 for a Santee appearance.

"They probably were other directors round the country who paid Santee and other athletes just as much or more but who have not been banned," he said. "Van Dyke just happened to be honest enough to tell us what he had done so he suffered the penalty."

Dons, Tarheels Post Cage Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The San Francisco Dons needed only four more victories Saturday to complete an unbeaten regular season basketball schedule and North Carolina's Tarheels were assured of a tie for first place in the final Atlantic Coast Conference standings.

The top-ranked Dons crushed Santa Clara 80-44 Friday night for their 47th consecutive triumph. All-American Bill Russell rammed in 29 points, his highest total of the season. San Francisco's 80 points was its second highest total of the campaign and the 26-point spread the largest in its 21 victories this year.

Ninth-ranked North Carolina took a temporary lead in the hot ACC competition by beating Duke 73-65. UCLA and Oklahoma City were the only other ranking college teams to see action Friday night.

The Bruins, No. 15, moved further along the road to the Pacific Coast Conference title by defeating Oregon 95-71 while Oklahoma City, No. 18, was whipped by Seattle 70-63 in a game between two NCAA "at-large" entries.

Duquesne, which will defend its MIT title in New York next month, walloped Villanova 80-51. In other games, Utah came from behind in the final minutes to beat Brigham Young 62-77 and virtually sew up the Skyline Conference crown. William and Mary downed Davidson 77-67. Penn staved off Brown's late rally to win 60-79 in the Ivy League, and LaSalle routed Scranton 82-51.

Sau Francisco next plays college of the Pacific Feb. 28. Then come Pepperdine, Loyola (Calif.) and St. Mary's (Calif.). The Dons already have beaten each of these teams handily.

Lennie Rosenbluth was the big gun in North Carolina's victory over 11th-ranked Duke. Leading ACC scorer he dropped in 31 points as the Tarheels came from behind to lead a 34-2 halftime deficit to grab the lead for good midway in the second half.

Sihugo Green hit 20 points for Duquesne, and aided by Dave Ricketts and Mickey Winograd, pulled the Dukes up to a 33-31 halftime lead after they had trailed 14-4. It was Duquesne's 12th victory against nine losses. Villanova is 11-11.

William and Mary, by winning, kept in the running for third place in the Southern Conference standings.

Sophomore Joe Tebo, the Ivy League's top scorer, led Brown's second half surge. His 38 points set a school season's scoring record of 440. Brown cut Penn's 23 point margin to nine with five minutes to go, but Penn, led by Dick Cenculski, pulled away. Cenculski wound up with 33 points.

The Pacific Northwest's chances of grabbing the Pacific Coast Conference basketball title vanished into the realm of wishful thinking Friday night.

The University of Washington Huskies conceivably could gain at least a share of the title but even under the most strenuous stretch of the imagination it seems remote.

California dashed cold water on the Huskies' ambitions Friday night by whipping Washington, 74-62, at Berkeley.

UCLA's unbeaten Bruins, meanwhile, routed Oregon, 90-71, for victory No. 11. In the other two conference games on the schedule, Stanford bopped Washington State, 81-76, and Idaho upended Oregon State, 58-55.

California's victory over Washington was the seventh in a row for the Bears, who now sport a 23 record, good for second place. The Bears just had too much scoring punch for the Huskies, with four Californians breaking into the double figures.
