Legal Rights Fight Flares In Court

A battle over the legal rights of Burdette Ochiho, 38 and Zelma Putt Ochiho, 32, charged with the "one-way ride" murder of Edison Duffy, 50-year-old ex-convict, flared Wednesday in District Judge D. E. Van Vactor's court.

The judge denied a motion filed by Defense Attorney Glenn D. Ramirez to set aside waivers of preliminary hearing by the two defendants charged with first degree murder.

Judge Van Vactor denied the motion after he was informed that the defense lawyer apparently anticipated the court's action and filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in circuit court.

As a result of the district court action, the matter will have to be decided in the higher court.

Judge Van Vactor's ire was aroused by a statement in the defense motion that the accused slayers had not been properly instructed of their rights by the court.

"I can produce half a dozen witnesses who can testify that the defendants were fully apprised of their legal rights when they waived preliminary hearing," Judge Van Vactor told Ramirez.

The defense lawyer said that his clients did not understand the meaning of the words "waive" and "preliminary" when the court explained their legal rights on February 20.

Ramirez admitted that he did not ask District Attorney Richard Beesley whether he would agree to setting aside the waivers. Ramirez also told the judge he filed the petition for a writ of habeas corpus before the district court had a chance to act on his motion.

The two defendants were arrested February 18 in Reno, Nevada for the slaying of Duffy whose body with a bullet in the brain was found on the outskirts of Klamath Falls.

It is Ramirez's contention that the defendants are now illegally held in the county jail here.

Judge Denies Probation

Two Klamath Reservation residents who were sentenced to 10 years in Oregon State Prison and were fined $500 each after pleading guilty to manslaughter charges were taken to the penitentiary Tuesday.

They are Marcellus Norwest, 26-year-old rancher, and George Dumont, 54-year-old woodsman.

Norwest admitted shooting Jackie Jones, 25, former Eugene divinity student, at Chiloquin during an argument over a case of beer.

Dumont was sentenced for the slaying of Jason Charles, 50. The shooting in a cabin at Lone Pine climaxed a dispute over a proposed hunting trip.

Before passing sentence on the two men, Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg heard pleas for leniency from Defense Attorneys George Reinmiller and Joseph Stearns of Portland. The judge said he did not believe either defendant was entitled to probation.

Mr. Herzog was a timber-faller during his active years. He has no relatives in this area, but several in California.

Lakeview University Women Hear International Report

LAKEVIEW — International relations was the theme of the American Association of University Women's luncheon at the Hotel Lakeview on February 25.

Mrs. Sheldon Strong, wife of a Lakeview school teacher, told of the educational opportunities for women in her native country, Germany. She explained that trades such as dressmaking are open to elementary school graduates after they serve an apprenticeship. High school graduates are eligible for special training as nurses, dental nurses, interpreters, secretaries and librarians. Women attend universities only for study in the professions for doctors, lawyers, university teachers, she said.

Married women, Mrs. Strong said, very seldom work away from their homes and if they do need to augment the family income, they do it by piece-work at home on dolls, gloves and other handwork for factories.

"Housekeeping in the United States is so easy. A German housewife, who has no frozen foods, very seldom a refrigerator and never enough money for expensive canned goods, is forced to shop daily, which is time consuming," she said.

Mrs. Stanely Tooke, chairman of the program, introduced Mrs. Strong and also Heidi Tax, of Austria, who is attending school at Lakeview this year under the American Field Service program and who is living with Mr. and Mrs. Edward MacKay.

Miss Tax explained the American Field Service exchange student program.

Two piano duets were played by Heidi and Barbara MacKay, who were dressed in native Austrian costumes.

Mrs. Marshall Dunham, Oregon Mother of the Year, was an honored guest, and was introduced by Laura Waterman.

Luncheon arrangements were made by Mrs. Douglas Fetsch, chairman, Mrs. Tom Farrell and Mrs. James Howard. They decorated the tables with native costumed dolls.

Accidental Shot Wounds Youth

A 10-year-old boy, in serious condition after being accidentally shot in the chest Monday afternoon by his brother, was flown to Medford in a Mercy Flights plane this morning.

He had been hospitalized at Klamath Valley Hospital.

The boy, Gary Lee Hankins, son of Orrin H. Hankins of Dairy, was wounded in the chest by a .22 caliber rifle bullet, police said. They said that the boy and his three brothers were playing with the rifle in the attic of the Hankins home, when the gun, handled by 14-year-old Dennis Orrin Hankins, went off.

The bullet entered the boy's left chest. His father told police at the hospital that the boy had lost "quite a bit" of blood.

Attendents at the hospital this morning said that the boy's condition was "serious." He was brought to the hospital at about 6:40 p.m.

Chicago Opera Ballet May Appear In KF During 1957

Klamath Falls concert goers next year may be entertained by the Chicago Opera Ballet — a company of 45 orchestra and ballet corps members and soloists —according to officials of the local concert association.

The announcement was made Monday night at an annual dinner meeting of the group planned to kick off the 1957 concert association membership drive which ends Thursday. Andrew Loney Jr., president of the group, presided at the meeting at the Winema Hotel and introduced Lucille Schreiner, national concert association representative, who made the announcement.

Mrs. Schreiner said the Klamath Falls group has a hold on the Chicago Opera Ballet, but that definite scheduling depends largely on their availability on a Wednesday night. (The auditorium — the Pelican Theater — is available only on Wednesdays.)

The national representative listed other artists who might be scheduled for programs next year and praised organizations such as the local group "which enables you to hear some of the greatest artists in the world. This adds immensely to the cultural clime of the community," she said.

Loney also praised the association for its work in cultural development in the Basin, and lauded the some 60 association workers — "the backbone of the organization."

Mrs. F. C. Adams, association secretary, said response to the current membership drive has been gratifying, and only about 200 memberships remain open. Student memberships are oversold already, she said.

Mrs. Lyle Kellstrom, membership chairman told the group that according to a poll of association members, big name artists and dance groups rank as favorites. In vocal soloists, baritones, tenors and contraltos lead, as do piano and violin soloists in the instrumental group.

Headquarters for the membership drive will be open through Thursday at Louis R. Mann Piano Co., 120 North Seventh Street.

Feed Dealers Appointed

LAKEVIEW — Three feed dealers have been authorized to handle purchase orders from ranchers in the northern half of Lake County who are applying for livestock feed under the emergency federal assistance, states Walter Cory, office manager for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

The north half of Lake County has been designated as eligible for emergency federal assistance in the purchase of grain for livestock feed and the assistance, where approved, amounts to $20 per ton of feed grain, reports Elgin Cornett, county agent.

Application forms for assistance are in the ASC office at Lakeview or ranchers may secure forms from R. A. Long, Ft. Rock, a member of the ASC county committee.
