Elizabeth Arden
Opens New Salon
In Historic Spot

A new Elizabeth Arden beauty salon has been opened in the Plaza de la Independencia in Madrid. The building in which the new salon is located was erected in 1889 at the request of the Duchess of Prim and it was built on the site of the ancient palace and gardens which belonged to General Prim.

To these historic surroundings, the new Elizabeth Arden Salon brings its symbol of beauty and distinction the world over: the black and white marble facade with its famous Red Door. Both the ground floor and first floor have undergone a complete transformation. The balconies and exterior, however, of the handsome old building remain the same. Miss Arden's personal architect from New York saw to it that the old was gracefully combined with the new; traditional Spanish decoration with the utmost technical refinements. Nearly 100,000 working hours have been spent in the transformation.

The focal point of the salon is a charming garden patio which is the hair-drying department. Gay wrought-iron furniture, a fountain with a sculptured figure in repose—this beneath a sliding roof of cheerful blue and white striped fabric. Indeed, it is a spot to relax, sip a fruit juice while reading the latest fashion magazine in the delightful, quiet atmosphere of the patio.

RICE PILAF

When using rice as a vegetable, use undiluted consommé in place of the water in cooking. It comes to the table a tempting golden brown and needs just the addition of salt and pepper and a lump of butter to make a gourmet rice pilaf for dinner.

ORIENTAL THEME

The "obi aash" cummerbund is widely used this spring in projecting the Oriental theme, usually blending with a soft pastel print of Chinese derivation or a sharply defined motif suggestive of India. And, of course, there is the caftan coat, short or long, slim or full, but always with the side-slit hem and worn over its own dress. Full-length duster coats are detailed with seaming and bows at chest height and smartly lowered cowl collars. Slenderest sheath coats are all as the hem to accommodate the most active stride and to be in the Oriental fashion swim as well.
