By FRANK JENKINS
There is trouble all over the world.
Greece wants to annex the island of Cyprus — which is owned by the British, who took it over a long time ago from the Turks. But its population is heavily Greek — and the Greeks in Cyprus want Greek rule.

At the moment, an anti-British strike has just about paralyzed commercial life in the Mediterranean island.

A little farther to the east along the shores of the Mediterranean, the Israelis and the Arabs are at each other's throats. At the moment the communists, led by Russia, are providing the Arabs with guns. The Israelis are insisting that we provide them with guns so that they can hold their own against the Arabs.

Shooting could start there at any moment. If it starts, nobody knows where it will stop.

Along the Mediterranean shore of Africa the French are having plenty of grief. The French who have settled there over the generations want to run the show. The descendants of the natives who were there when the French came want to run the show.

Plenty of blood is being spilled in Africa and in Paris the already shaky and insecure French government is being practically rent asunder by disagreements as to what should be done about it all.

And so on all over the older world — especially in Asia, where more or less everybody seems to be more or less against everybody else.

And we're in the middle of it all. Above everything else in the world, we want peace — but at huge expense we have to keep ourselves ready to go to war at the drop of a hat.

Nobody is happy about the situation but the communists.

There are times when it looks like the world is getting ready to tear itself to pieces, with everybody butchering everybody else.

But — Do you reckon it's as bad as it looks?

I wonder... The pages of history tell us there have been few golden eras of peace in the world. Always, somewhere, there has been war and bloodshed. Always, somewhere, somebody has been doing somebody else dirt.

Always, somewhere, AMBITIOUS MEN HAVE BEEN REACHING FOR MORE POWER — like at the root of a lot of our trouble.

I know it sounds bad now. But there are two reasons for that. One is that it is happening in OUR TIME. This historic trouble happened a long time ago.

Another reason lies in our fabulous modern communications. In the olden, golden days, we heard very little beyond the borders of our home county.

Light Voting Marks Start Of New Hampshire Primary

MANCHESTER, N. H. (AP) — Light voting marked the start of the New Hampshire presidential primary Tuesday and the first results reflected interest in the Republican vice presidential candidate this year.

In two tiny towns, Republicans wrote in the name of Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire for vice president.

Two towns — Millsfield and Ellsworth — completed their votes only minutes after midnight. Millsfield split its four votes evenly between President Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson.

Ellsworth, where six ballots were cast, gave five votes for President Eisenhower. The sixth vote went to Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire for vice president.

Early voters The early Republican votes all went to President Eisenhower, for renomination for the presidency.

On the other hand, Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois and Sen. Kefauver of Tennessee shared Democratic convention delegate votes, but the first Democratic preferential votes went to Stevenson.

This was the nation's first primary election. The early votes recorded were in small towns.

GOP Lawmakers Map Strategy To Speed Final Farm Legislation

Solons Sure Of Victory; Plans Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican congressional leaders, confident the Eisenhower farm program is winning in Congress, mapped strategy at the White House Tuesday to speed a finished bill to the President.

House GOP leader Martin (Mass) said that once the Senate bill reaches the House, he will seek to use a short-cut technique to get approval there.

He explained this will involve an effort to have the House substitute the Senate bill for its own, and to instruct the House conferees to support flexible price support provisions in conferences with the Senate.

Otherwise "Otherwise we might have to wait three weeks, with all the wrangling in conference," Martin said.

"This way, we can get help to the farmers quickly. Even the people who want rigid supports wouldn't object to this, I think, if they really want to aid the farmers."

The House, passing a farm bill last year, voted for a return to mandatory price supports for principal crops at 90 per cent of parity. The administration program calls for flexible supports—meaning discretionary power for the secretary of agriculture to set them at lower rates.

In the long Senate battle over the farm bill, administration supporters have defeated repeated efforts to junk the flexible support plan.

Martin indicated he expected the House would get the Senate bill early next week.

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.), top Republican on the Agriculture Committee said the Senate might get through with it Friday night, but observed that "there are plenty of unsettled controversies."

Sen. Ellender of Louisiana, key figure on the Democratic side, said so much "lousy politics" were involved that he wouldn't make any forecast.

Ellender, chairman of the Agriculture Committee, who had been urging final action on the bill by last weekend, said in a separate interview:

"We are just drifting into lousy politics and that goes for both sides. I've quit predicting when we'll ever get through with it. We are engaging in pure demagoguery."

Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and Republican Leader Knowland of California apparently agreed upon a slower pace after several 12-hour sessions last week brought only slow progress.

ONE AMENDMENT One amendment adopted 78-11 yesterday would (A) limit to $100,000 the amount of price support loans and (B) limit to $25,000 the amount of payments to one farm under the proposed soil bank program.

Miss Truman Plans Quiet Ceremony

NEW YORK (AP) — A "very happy" Margaret Truman says she and her silver-haired newspaperman fiancé plan a "small, quiet wedding" in Missouri next month.

The 32-year-old daughter of former President and Mrs. Truman will marry Clifton Daniel of the New York Times in the Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church at Independence, Mo. No date has been set.

Her blue-green eyes twinkling, Miss Truman talked about her romance at a news conference the couple held yesterday. Her father announced the engagement earlier in the day at Kansas City, Mo.

Daniel, 43, is an assistant to the foreign news editor of the Times. Slender, brown-eyed and handsome, he's the son of a Zebulon, N.C., druggist.

The couple met last November at the home of George Backer, former publisher of the New York Post. Daniel proposed in January. Neither has been married before, and each is an only child.

Miss Truman, smiling and excited, told newsmen the wedding will be in the same church where she was a choir girl.

It will be a "small, quiet wedding with the two families," she said. And there will be no "big white, formal bridal gown," she added. "I never have liked that kind of thing."

Miss Truman said Daniel met his prospective father-in-law when the former President came to New York last month for a speech.

"Mother and Dad were delighted," she said. Daniel took Margaret to his parents' North Carolina home last weekend.

"I think it's just wonderful," Mrs. E. C. Daniel, the newspaperman's mother, said in Zebulon last night. His father said: "I'm very happy he is getting married and happy he is marrying a girl like Margaret Truman. We found her to be a very sweet and charming person."

Senators Clash Over Segregation Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) talked today of circulating a declaration supporting the Supreme Court's school integration decision to counter a Southern "manifesto" attacking the ruling.

Humphrey said, "It certainly seems to me that a statement of support for the decision of the court is valid and desirable." He told an interviewer he thinks some action of that kind may be taken.

He said he believes far more than the 19 senators and 81 House members who signed the Southern document would be willing to sign a declaration that the court's order outlawing segregation of white and Negro public school pupils is the law of the land and should be enforced.

However, Sen. George (D-Ga.) said in a separate interview that "if any vigorous effort is made to use force to carry into action the Supreme Court's decree, it is going to result in a desperate situation." He cautioned further:

"If this matter is pressed it will result in some states going out of the public school business. Unless there is a reasonable approach to this problem by men and women of good will that may be the result."

George headed a group of Dixie lawmakers who formally presented to the Senate and House yesterday a declaration that called the court's 1954 decision "a clear abuse of judicial power" and challenged Chief Justice Earl Warren in compliance with the Constitution.

Sen. Russell (D-Ga.), who directed drafting of the manifesto, said he knows of no organized plan to use the Southern power in Congress in efforts to reverse the Supreme Court's ruling.

The manifesto was signed by four Republicans, Representatives Jonas of North Carolina, Cramer of Florida and Poff and Broyles of Virginia. But not all Southern Democrats were for it.

Rep. Chapman (D-Mo.) said he thinks the resolution "may do more harm than good."

Sen. Russell (D-Ga.), who directed drafting of the manifesto, said he knows of no organized plan to use the Southern power in Congress in efforts to reverse the Supreme Court's ruling.

"I've been raised to believe the Supreme Court is the final law of the land," he said. "There is too much passion and prejudice about this to let it go."

A side controversy developed last night when Rep. Bass (D-Tenn), a signer of the manifesto, said it was his impression from cloakroom talk that the document was "designed to reflect Sen. George W. Ball's attitude."

WALT WIESENDANGER

Wiesendanger Sets Campaign

Former City Councilman Walt Wiesendanger Tuesday opened his campaign for the Republican nomination for county commissioner.

The candidate, who for 20 years was engaged in the retail grocery business in Klamath Falls, has spent many years in civic work. He has been a food broker for the past nine years.

Wiesendanger has been chairman of the American Legion forest fire prevention program. He has also served as president of the Klamath Falls Lions Club and the Klamath Falls Shrine Club.

In opening his campaign, Wiesendanger said:

"The years ahead are of great importance to every resident of Klamath County. The new base of the power development that will start in the near future and many other pending projects point to a bigger and better economy for the Klamath Basin."

"In placing my name before the voters for their consideration at the coming election, it is with the knowledge that the position of county commissioner is a full time job and I can assure anyone who supports me that I will devote all my time to the job. My slogan is 'where there's a job to do—I'll do it!'"

Roseburg Mill Tells Purchase

PORTLAND (AP) — Two wood products firms made news in Oregon today, one with the announcement of a proposed new multimillion dollar plant and the other the sale of a large plywood mill.

The giant U.S. Plywood Corp. announced purchase of the Youngs Bay Lumber Co., Roseburg.

It is a straight stock transfer subject to approval at a meeting of Youngs Bay stockholders next day. The arrangement apparently provides for an exchange of 275,000 shares of U.S. Plywood stock for an estimated one-half billion board feet of timber, land and the Youngs Bay mill in Roseburg.

A. R. Fisher, New York, president of the Johns-Manville Corp., Monday announced plans for construction in the near future of a multimillion dollar insulating board plant near Klamath Falls.

Thornton Rules On Districts

SALEM (AP) — There is no limit on the number of elections that can be held to dissolve sanitary districts, Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton ruled Tuesday.

The Green Sanitary District in Douglas County, he said, has held two dissolution elections, and another petition for dissolution is about to be filed. The district has no tax money to pay for another election.

Thornton also ruled that there is no way to make the petitioners pay for the election, so the cost will have to be paid by the district. The district will have to solve the problem of how to do it.

Weyerhaeuser Heads Named

TACOMA (AP) — The Weyerhaeuser Timber Co. Monday re-elected P. K. Weyerhaeuser of St. Paul, Minn., as chairman of the board of directors.

Chief, Nixon Hold Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Nixon conferred with President Eisenhower Tuesday in the midst of continuing speculation on whether he will be second man on the Republican ticket again.

There was no word, however, on the nature of his talk with the chief executive who says he has told Nixon to "chart his own course" in the matter of running again.

Murray Snyder, assistant White House press secretary, said he did not know what was discussed.

Nixon attended the regular weekly White House meeting of legislators, then stayed behind for a 20 or 30 minute talk with Eisenhower after the others left.

Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall said Monday that "exactly right" is Nixon's word for the short-of-endorsement commendation Eisenhower has given him.

After a 30-minute meeting with Eisenhower at that time, Hall said Nixon has told him "a couple of times" that is his view of the way Eisenhower has handled the subject.

Overnight Parking Warning Issued

A new warning against parking overnight on Main Street in Iron second to Twelfth streets was issued today by Klamath Falls Police Chief Orville Hamilton.

Hamilton said that signs are posted giving notice of the prohibition, designed to aid street cleaners. He said that parked autos make it impossible to properly sweep streets.

Anti-British Strike Continues In Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — An anti-British strike continued in Cyprus today, keeping commercial life on the riot-stricken island almost at a standstill for the second consecutive day.

The spontaneous shutdown by Cypriot shopkeepers and workers is protesting Britain's exile of Archbishop Makarios, leader of the union-with-Greece movement.

A few shops hesitantly opened their doors this morning but closed again as word spread to continue the protest.

Business places in the Turkish and Armenian quarters remained open.

Military patrols were out in strength in the island's principal cities and towns but no fresh disorders were reported.

TENSIONS MOUNT As tensions continued to mount, a U.S. State Department spokesman in Washington said the United States has suggested to Britain that she find some way of resuming negotiations with Cypriot leaders in the dispute over the island's future.

Greek Foreign Minister Spyros Theotokis announced that his government was making vigorous representations to the United States over recent developments on the British island colony in the eastern Mediterranean which Greece wants to annex.

Theotokis said Greece's ambassador to Washington was instructed to direct special attention to what Greece terms the threats to the West contained in the controversy.

INTERVENTION Greek Premier Constantine Karamanlis called for decisive U.S. intervention in the situation, saying, "The future of the free world should be a matter of grave concern."

Trade union leaders in Greece called a nationwide general strike to protest the "barbarous acts of the British in Cyprus and the arrest and abduction of Archbishop Makarios."

Athens police rounded up 150 alleged Communist yesterday as scattered rioting again swept the city. At least 77 persons were injured.

The strike in Cyprus had no central organization, developing on a basis of falling in line with what the other fellow did. British troop installations in Nicosia were the target of two bomb attacks last night but no injuries were reported.
