GOUDA CHEESE

Your feeling of accomplishment will hit a new high when your guests, and your family too, enthusiastically approve the addition of Gouda cheese to the Lenten favorite, salmon patties.

Creamed potato balls with pimientos are served in a pretty casserole with the salmon patties, topped with cheese, arranged about the dish. Assorted relishes, spiced pears and crab apples, a basket of assorted hot breads and a crisp cabbage salad complete the dinner menu. Serve lemon meringue pie for dessert for a sharp accent to the meal if you wish.

Using your favorite salmon loaf or salmon patty recipe, mold patties into similar shape but larger than the oval slices you cut from an 8-ounce red-wax-coated round of Gouda cheese. You may expect to have a yield of six patties from a recipe using a one-pound can of salmon. Brown the patties slowly on both sides in a heavy skillet. Then, place one oval slice of cheese on each patty and keep them in the covered skillet over low heat until the cheese melts slightly, or run them under the broiler to slightly melt the cheese.

Use Suave After Shampoo

Do you hate to shampoo your hair because it flies all over your head and looks terrible for days? Is your hair clean, but dry and dull-looking?

And, if you wait two or three days for the natural beauty oils to come back, just when your hair begins to look and act alive, it's time to start thinking, "I need a shampoo again."

You aren't the only one who has this problem. Millions of women hate to shampoo their hair for exactly the same reason. But it doesn't have to be a problem. Just don't ever shampoo your hair without putting back the life shampooing takes out!

It's easy to do this by using a touch of Helene Curtis Suave hair-dressing. And here's what you can expect.

The instant you finish washing your hair, take a few drops of Suave and rub it over your palms. Then stroke through your hair thoroughly. Brush your hair and arrange it as you always do.

Your hair will be surprisingly easy to comb, set and arrange.

No snarls. No wild wisps. Dryness is gone! Your hair is silky soft, bursting with highlights... with the prettiest, healthiest-looking glow you ever saw!

And it stays wonderfully in place, without the slightly oily look or feel thanks to the miracle of Helene Curtis beauty find—greaseless lanolin. So do try Suave the next time you wash your hair and have it soft, beautiful, radiant, manageable in just 20 seconds after shampooing.
