THE CAMERA CORNER

By Bud Buesing

Here are a few tips on using the reflected light exposure meter . . . probably the most widely used type. For ideal conditions, where you want a good "average" exposure for everything in the scene, you merely point the meter toward the scene from camera position and make your exposure settings accordingly.

Often, however, there'll be objects on which you want exact exposure, and other objects less important. Here you should approach the important subject for a close-up reading. For a portrait, for instance, hold the meter about six inches away from the face to include only the face in the meter's field of view. Other objects in the picture will be over or under-exposed according to their brightness in relation to the face.

For landscape exposure readings with this meter, tilt it slightly downward to exclude a portion of the brilliant sky from the meter's view. When objects with great contrast are in the picture, such as a girl in a white dress against a dark background, take a close-up reading on the important subject, because an "average" reading here would over-expose the light subject and under-expose the dark.

These exposure meters are an indispensable aid to properly exposed pictures. You'll find these and everything in photographic aids included in our complete photo center.

Klamath Resident Relates Aid Given By Red Cross

(Editor's Note: Since March 1956 marks the 75th anniversary of the founding of the American Red Cross, a series of pictures and thumb nail sketches of Red Cross volunteers now in action are being presented through the cooperation of the Klamath County Red Cross Chapter. Interest of the volunteers is divided among the Red Cross blood program, first aid, water safety, nursing services, Junior Red Cross, home service, disaster work and chapter administration.)

By LORN B. DALCOUR

My first personal experience with the Red Cross program occurred in 1952. At that time our daughter Jean, a year old, was exposed to measles. Our physician recommended that she receive gamma globulin shots to protect her against this disease.

LORN B. DALCOUR

Gamma globulin was not then available in drug stores, and I was referred to the Klamath County Public Health Department. The shots were given to the child, and when I offered to pay for them I was told that there was no charge because the gamma globulin was made from blood donated to the Red Cross and was given without charge to those who needed it. My wife and I were extremely grateful, and I felt that I would like to give blood in order to make it possible for other children to obtain a like benefit. Since then I have volunteered blood to the Red Cross regularly.

In August of 1952 I was elected treasurer of the Klamath County Red Cross chapter; through the cooperation and encouragement of my employer Kenneth Lambie, I was able to accept this office and I have been given sufficient time from my job to handle all of the accounting for the local chapter with the exception of the audits which have been volunteered by other accounting firms in our community.

In 1954 my wife and I and our two older children availed ourselves of the opportunity to take Red Cross swimming lessons at the municipal pool. We all started in as beginners; all of the pool personnel were trained and certified without charge by the Red Cross, and I can certainly endorse the quality of the training, as well as the high standards of water safety maintained at the pool.

I came to Klamath Falls in 1934 and am employed by the Kenneth Lambie Company accounting office My family lives at 1407 California Avenue. Mrs. Dalcour and I have three children, Lorann, 13; Gordon aged 10 and Jean who is five years old.

New School House Visited

DUNSMUIR—A capacity crowd attended the open house and PTA meeting at the Castle Rock School in Castella on Tuesday evening to view the new school house and elect officers for the coming year.

Named to office were Mrs. Elsie Mechling, president; Mrs. Donald Haines, vice president; Mrs. Ed Dewey, treasurer; and Mrs. Harland Sattler, secretary.

Among the visiting dignitaries present were Mrs. Lucy Hunt, Shasta County superintendent of schools; Clayton Kantz, of Redding, school architect; Hartsel Gray of Yreka, assistant superintendent of schools, Siskiyou County; Delwin Poe, principal of Dunsmuir High School, and Roger Ellis, principal of the Dunsmuir Elementary School. The Rev. Robert DeWolf of Dunsmuir gave the inspirational at the meeting. Chester Conley, Castle Rock principal, called upon the visitors for remarks and introduced the former school board members who had helped lay the groundwork of the new school. They were Joe Ammiratti and James Garrizus.

Refreshments were served by the executive board and the seventh and eighth grade mothers. The evening was spent inspecting the four classrooms with no-shadow lighting and electrically heated floors, the modern kitchen off the all-purpose room and other features of the ultra-modern $163,000 school plant.

Ski Firm Board Meeting Planned

DUNSMUIR—A meeting of the board of directors of the Mount Shasta Ski Bowl Corporation will be held in Yreka on Saturday, O. G. Steele has announced. Senator Randolph Collier, a board member, will be in Yreka for the meeting.

Officers will be elected and plans made concerning a preliminary application to the commissioner of corporations for issuing stock.

Charles Dwyer, chief engineer of the Heron Engineering Company of Denver, has phoned George Schrader, executive secretary of the development committee, that he will arrive on Monday to begin the technical survey of the Panther Meadows area on Mount Shasta selected for the ski development. He and Fletcher Hoyt of Mount Shasta will use the Sierra Club Lodge at Horse Camp as headquarters while making the survey.

Hoyt, who made a trip to the area this week, reported that skiing conditions within the bowl have improved with moderation of wind. At 9,700 feet there is 20 feet of snow, Hoyt said. George Manes, U.S. Forest Service, accompanied Hoyt on the snow survey trip.

ACQUITED

MONROE, Mich. (UP) — John Karnowski, 59, was acquitted of a drunk driving charge although a state's witness testified Kranowski's eyes were bloodshot when he was arrested.

Karnowski refuted the testimony removing a glass eye and showing it to the court.

Johnson Best Bet For Unity In Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—If anyone can bring a measure of unity among Texas Democrats and pave the way for recapture of the state from President Eisenhower, it's Lyndon B. Johnson.

That, at least, is the view of many Democratic "loyalists" in the Lone Star State, where Eisenhower defeated Adlai Stevenson four years ago by 1,102,878 votes to 969,228.

It is the view of Sam Rayburn, speaker of the U. S. House of Representatives, and leader of the Texas faction which supported Stevenson in 1952.

Rayburn has proposed that the state convention at Dallas May 22 endorse Johnson as Texas' "favorite son" presidential candidate and elect him as chairman of the state's delegation to the Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

Johnson, Democratic leader of the U. S. Senate, supported Stevenson's candidacy in 1952. Also, he has friends among the followers of Gov. Allan Shivers, who bolted the party four years ago and carried the state Democratic Committee with him.

Rayburn's move ran headon into Shivers' plans to head the Texas delegation to the national convention to fight again for a strong states' rights plank in the party platform and a candidate acceptable to him.

Shivers, in an interview, would not comment on Johnson as a "favorite son" candidate. But he said he would oppose Johnson's selection as chairman of the delegation.

"And we are going to win," he said.

Johnson is in no hurry to make any move until he has time to measure the reaction. Meantime, Sen. Russell (D-Ga) and other Southern Democrats have spoken favorably of him.

If Johnson does make the fight, his friends say he will go all-out. Some reporters in Austin say he has one of the strongest personal organizations in the state. He's taking things as easy as he can after a heart attack last July.

Shivers says he will support Eisenhower again if the Democrats should renominate Adlai Stevenson.

H. J. (Jack) Porter of Houston, the Republican national committeeman, said Eisenhower will carry the state again "regardless of the Democratic nominee, and regardless of whether Shivers supports him or the Democrat."

John Q. Adams of Harlingen, GOP state chairman, said Eisenhower's prospects for carrying the state again, "by about the same majority are excellent."

Democrats do not attempt to discount Eisenhower's popularity in Texas. Ralph W. Yarborough, Austin attorney twice defeated for governor by Shivers and a likely candidate again, put it this way:

"The present situation in Texas is that the Republicans will not carry the state. There has been very little, if any, decline in President Eisenhower's personal popularity.

But the people realize that if they reelect Eisenhower, they will have Republican policies. The reasons are economic. The farm problem is the big cause for the change in sentiment. The elimination of rigid, 90 per cent parity supports has had a disastrous effect in a large section of Texas."

Yarborough said the loyalists are well organized today, in contrast to 1952, "and we have Shivers on the run." He claimed they are strong enough to carry the state without Shivers and as far as he is concerned, "the Republicans can have him."

Shivers said Eisenhower may have lost some farm support, but that he has picked up "a great many little people of deep moral convictions who have a worship for Eisenhower that transcends party lines." He said it is "too early" to assess the extent that one may offset the other.

Shivers said he is going to spend his time "trying to get a good Democratic platform and a good Democratic candidate."

Shivers made it clear he is opposed to any third party movement.

Stevenson's opposition to the submerged lands oil bill, which Eisenhower advocated and later signed as president, was a big issue in Texas, which fought a Supreme Court decision giving the submerged land oil rights to the government. The bill signed by Eisenhower returned this land to the states and the schools of the state have benefited from the revenue.

Shivers is not seeking reelection. One question is how much of his personal following he can carry with him.

Malin Parents Hold Meeting

MALIN—The March meeting of Malin Parents and Patrons was held Tuesday evening at the grade school gym with president, Mrs. J. A. Bunnell presiding.

Special program for the evening was a talk about Turkey given by Buford Boyd. He also showed colored slides he had taken when he was in that country and had on display copperware, utensils, and other craft work made in Turkey. Mrs. Boyd described and explained these various items to the group.

The Malin winners in the Klamath County Senior High School Speech Festival presented their winning selections. Those who participated in the radio script division were Omar Schneider, Gerald Petrasek, Carolyn Fargo, Marcia Prescott and John Fierce. The other two readings given were by Lucille Weber, poetry, and Stewart Miller, interpretive reading.

The next regular meeting will be held on April 17 at which time a special program for the graduating seniors is planned.

AA To Hear KF Pathologist

Dr. George R. Nicholson, pathologist at Klamath Valley Hospital, will be guest speaker at an inter-group meeting next Saturday at 8:30 p.m. of Alcoholics Anonymous in the AA Center, 120 Riverside.

The pathologist was associated with a physician who was one of the founders of AA at City Hospital, Akron, Ohio.

AA members from Grants Pass, Medford, Camp White, Bend, Alturas and Lakeview will attend the meeting which is to be followed by a buffet supper and entertainment.

He sold snake venom to finance his education.

Negro Boycott Fund Started

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) As Negroes continued a mass boycott of segregated buses, a New Jersey newspaper launched a fund drive to pay the fine and court costs of a Negro clergyman convicted of leading the boycott.

The Asbury Park Press started its campaign with a page 1 story and editorial by Editor Wayne D. McMurray.

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., pastor of the Dexter Avenue Baptist Church at Montgomery, was fined $500 Thursday after a four-day trial on charges of conspiring to boycott city buses.

A spokesman for Montgomery City Lines Inc. said yesterday that "there might have been a few more" Negroes patronizing the bus line than there have been in the days preceding King's trial.

The Asbury Park editor last night sent this telegram to King:

"We of the Asbury Park Press, outraged at the conviction of a fellow American for asserting a right our Constitution guarantees to all, want to help you in your fight for justice. We are starting a fund drive among our readers for money to pay your fine and court costs.

"The Press itself is contributing $50. Checks will be drawn in your name and forwarded to you, or to your attorneys if you prefer."

McMurray said the goal of the Press drive is $1,000, and any money collected above that will go to the pastor to help him pay legal costs.
