"YOUR MOTHER IS AN AWFULLY NICE OLD LADY!"

Son In Cast Solves Family Crisis For George, Gracie

By ALINE MOSBY
 United Press Hollywood Writer
HOLLYWOOD (UP)—To George Burns and Gracie Allen the addition of son Ronnie to their CBS-TV show has meant higher ratings and bags of fan mail for the boy. But to Burns and Allen, parents, it also solved a family crisis.

Burns happily admits Ronnie gave the show a boost. And the handsome 19-year-old has launched an exciting career. He's been offered film studio contracts; he's made guest appearances with Jackie Gleason and Jack Benny and acted on "Front Row Center."

But behind the scenes is a different story about Ronnie, a story one hears around the family circle in the Burns home in Beverly Hills.

"WHAT TO DO?" Burns asked when he learned of the problem: What to do with a son who has trouble finding his niche in life? "Ronnie didn't know what he wanted to do," explained Burns in a fatherly tone as I sat with the family in their comfortable den.

"For a while he was a lifesaver. Then it was surboards. Then he built a boat in the back yard.

"A lot of parents force their kids to be what they wished they had been. I wanted Ronnie to go to college—probably because I didn't. We wanted him to take up law. We had no idea he wanted to be an actor.

"Last summer he didn't want him on the bench for 10 weeks so we suggested he take a dramatic course at Pasadena Playhouse just for experience. When he called us he'd gotten the lead in 'Picnic' at the school we were elated.

PERFORMANCE
 "We went to see his performance and Gracie said, 'He wants to be an actor.'"

Burns paused, lit his usual cigar and continued: "He was good. So I asked him if he wanted to be on the show. We didn't want to force him to be an actor."

Young Ronnie, who was sitting in the den watching his father talk, spoke up. "I was very happy to get the job. I didn't have to go back to college."

"Children," concluded father Burns, "find their natural groove. Leave them alone. They'll find what they want to do."

Titanic Sinking Planned For TV Showing Wednesday

By CHARLES MERCER
 NEW YORK (AP)—"A Night to Remember," a dramatization of Walter Lord's best-selling book on the sinking of the SS Titanic, will be presented tomorrow night on NBC-TV.

A cast of 105 will be maneuvered among a maze of 31 sets in NBC's huge Brooklyn studios on Kraft Television Theater. The move to Brooklyn from the usual NBC Manhattan studios was forced because everybody agreed it simply wasn't safe to store 3,000 gallons of water in tanks on an upper floor of the RCA Building.

That's the amount of water which will be used in two huge tanks for scenes simulating the sinking of the ship after it struck an iceberg. The water problem is only one of many that has designer Duane McKinney chewing his nails. Since scenery has been immersed in water for days during rehearsals he can't shake off the dread that when some actor has to come through a cabin door on cue tomorrow night that door may have warped and be irrevocably closed.

"A Night to Remember" is the fruit of nearly 30 years of research by Walter Lord. Since he's still a young man, his interest in

Borgnine Reveals Feelings On Hearing Of Oscar Award

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—If it is true that action reveals the man, then much can be learned about Ernest Borgnine from the way he behaved last Wednesday night.

When Grace Kelly announced from the Pantages Theater stage that he had won an Oscar, "Marty" Borgnine's first action was to kiss his wife.

"Then the first thought that came into my head concerned the two men in front of me," he recalls. "They were Frank Sinatra and James Cagney, both magnificent performers. They were up for the Oscar too. My greatest disappointment was that these wonderful guys couldn't have voted I thought to myself, 'What can you possibly say to them — 'I'm sorry' or what?'"

NO TIME
 But Ernie didn't have time to ponder over this longer. He hurried onstage and accepted his Oscar from the cool Miss Kelly. Then he gave his heartfelt thanks to the three people who had made the most in his life — his mother, his father and his wife.

His mother... She had been born Anna Boselli in Italy, the daughter of a count... "She gave me the idea of being an actor after I got out of the Navy," says Ernie. "I don't know where she got it. She was from royalty; maybe she had delusions of grandeur for me..." She died before he fulfilled her hopes; she saw him act only once — in a Hartford, Conn., drama school.

His father... Carmine Borgnine came to America when he was 12... "He was always backing me up. A his son recalls, "I could always count on him for fatherly advice, whether it was encouraging me to continue acting or giving me the moral values a father can provide..." Carmine Borgnine lived to see his son's triumph; still does work in Hamden, Conn., "because he can't bear to be idle."

His wife... She was a Brooklyn girl, Rhoda Kemins... "I met her when I was in the hospital during the war," Ernie says. "She was a pharmacist's mate and she took such good care of me that I figured I'd better marry her. And she has taken good care of me ever since."

New Catalog Store To Open

DUNSMUIR — A new Montgomery Ward & Co. catalog store will open at 840 Florence Avenue on Thursday, with Mayor Fred Lloyd cutting the barrier ribbon at 9 a.m.

A three-day opening celebration is planned with ice cream for the small fry and more than $300 worth of merchandise to be given away.

Twenty-five items now at special spring discount will be on display, according to Neil Turner, district manager from Oakland who is organizing the opening. Appliances, rugs and fabric samplers will be on display also, he said.

The new store has 2,500 square feet of storage and display space with two offices where catalog orders and credit arrangements can be handled. It will serve a radius of 60 miles including the communities of Weed, Mt. Shasta, Castella and McCloud in addition to Dunsmuir. Free telephone service to customers from surrounding areas is offered by the store.

"The basic aim of the store is to make catalog ordering more simplified and to speed deliveries," Turner said. "Orders received will be forwarded to Oakland and most items can be re-packed back in Dunsmuir on a 48-hour basis," he added.

Credit accounts for the area will be handled at the new store and payments will be accepted there.

Mrs. Penny Harral, formerly of Klamath Falls, will be manager. Mrs. Vivian Copitzky will be credit manager; Mrs. Lydia Pomeroy, sales, and Lucretia Alton, inventory. Mrs. Grace Oberg is helping on a temporary basis.

Officials from the Oakland office who will be present for the opening are Frank Waltermann, house manager; K. W. Cannon, merchandise manager; D. L. Bradley, operation manager; D. M. Cunningham, catalog units manager; Ben Klicek, service manager; C. V. Parker, personnel manager and Turner.
