New Regulations Seen In O&C Land

WASHINGTON (AP)—New regulations to permit quicker salvage of dead and storm-damaged timber on Oregon and California railroad grant lands have been approved by the Interior Department, Secretary McKay announced Monday.

The amendment to O&C regulations gives the Bureau of Land Management authority to waive marketing restrictions on O&C timber when forest management requires it. Edward Woolley, BLM director, said no action will be taken until a public hearing is held.

McKay first proposed the change last October as a step in a program he said was aimed at assuring maximum use of the federally owned timber on O&C lands in 18 western Oregon counties.

Camp Fire Leader Gives Lessons

Mrs. Esther Coll, local Camp Fire leader working for the rank of torch bearer, the highest rank to be attained in Camp Fire work, took advantage of spring vacation to give six lessons in handicraft to a group of younger Camp Fire girls.

This is one of the requirements of her rank. Girls receiving instruction were Paula and Mary Ann Badorek, Karen Ward, and Donna and Lana McPherson. During the week they learned to make paper hats, bracelets of metal and plastic raffia, heading on loom, hand applique, pool knitting and weaving over drinking straws.
