Super Police Intelligence System Devised For West

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Law enforcement officers of 26 western and midwestern cities have set up a super police intelligence network to keep track of the movement and activities of known and suspected criminals. The organization will be known as the Law Enforcement Intelligence Unit. Its headquarters will be in the Sacramento, Calif., offices of the State Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation. San Francisco Police Chief Frank Ahern will serve as president of the agency. He said the new organization "will do much to improve the detection, prosecution, suppression and prevention of local crime." "It will not assume, usurp or duplicate the activities of the FBI and other federal agencies, because it will emphasize suppression of crime at the local level," Ahern said. The idea for the agency came from Capt. James Hamilton, head of the Los Angeles Police intelligence division, who was named as secretary. "We in law enforcement today are faced with the fact the criminal is using rapid means of transportation and rapid means of communication," Hamilton said. "This means we have to extend our areas of cooperation if we're to keep up with them. This is especially true in California, where there has been a steady increase in major crime since last spring." Each city taking part in the agency will share in its cost. Later, other cities will be asked to join. Out of state delegates at yesterday's meeting included law officers from Kansas City and St. Louis, Mo.; Denver, Phoenix, Seattle, Portland, and Reno and Las Vegas. California cities represented included San Francisco, Los Angeles, Oakland, San Diego, San Mateo, Stockton, Sacramento, Santa Rosa, San Jose, Palm Springs, San Rafael, and the counties of Riverside and Alameda.

Taxes To Stay On Same Level

WASHINGTON (AP)—Corporate income taxes and the excises on a long list of goods will stay at present levels for another year, President Eisenhower Thursday night signed the bill blocking a decrease which otherwise would have taken effect April 1. The corporate income levy, which has stood at 52 per cent since the Korean War, was due to drop to 47 per cent after this month. At the same time, without the extension, excises would have gone down on alcoholic beverages, cigarettes, gasoline, automobiles, trucks and buses, automobile parts and accessories, diesel and special motor fuels. The annual loss of revenue from the lower rates was estimated to run about 3 billion dollars. Eisenhower urged the extension and told Congress it was needed to keep the government's books balanced.
