

India Sets New Rule On Papers

NEW DELHI (AP)—India has taken a long step toward greater regulation of newspapers.

The government has introduced bills in Parliament to create machinery for fixing prices and to set up a statutory press council that could censure papers for lapses of taste or ethics. Both bills are expected to be approved this year.

They follow recommendations of a press commission that made an official inquiry into the Indian press two years ago. The government already has carried out some of the recommendations.

A press registrar to collect data about the ownership and circulation of newspapers started functioning July 1. Measures regulating working conditions of journalists are now on the statute books.

The press council bill is perhaps the most far-reaching measure envisaged. The proposed council would have power to "censure" editors or their newspapers for offending against "the standards of journalistic ethics or public taste."

Before it could censure anyone, the council would have to hold an inquiry during which it could "summon and enforce the attendance of persons and examine them on oath."

The council's only disciplinary powers would be to "censure" and to express disapproval. But any witness called by the council must reckon with the possibility of a perjury charge, since he would be testifying under oath.

The second bill now before Parliament would empower the central government for a five-year period to set minimum prices at which newspapers must be sold, on a sliding scale based on the number of pages published. The bigger the newspaper, the higher the price.

The idea is to encourage competition without price cutting, thus protecting the poorer newspapers and reducing the advantages of the wealthier newspapers.

The bill also incorporates a press commission recommendation that the government should limit the amount of advertising a newspaper may carry in relation to the amount of news it prints.

Gold Earth Satellite Set

LONDON (UP)—The automobile capital of the world will turn out its first gold-plated earth satellite early in 1957, satellite manufacturer Howard Perkins said Tuesday.

The man whose Detroit firm is making the basketball-sized earth satellite the United States will attempt to orbit next year told newsmen here he expected the first model to be completed about Jan. 1.

Perkins said, a "substantial" portion of the polished magnesium outer space spheres interior will be plated with "almost pure gold."

Perkins reviewed details of the satellite project released recently by the Office of Naval Research in the United States.

He said his company plans to make about 15 or 20 of the metal balls, 20 inches in diameter, which scientists hope will orbit at 18,000 miles an hour hundreds of miles above the earth's surface.

Malin Adds New Teachers

MALIN—The Malin schools have added several new teachers to their faculty this year. Newcomers to the grade school are Mrs. Irene Hill from Forsythe, Missouri, who will teach the first grade and Mrs. Peggy Wallis who will be the teacher for the split second-third grade.

The new teachers in the high school, according to A. E. Street, principal, are Mrs. Dorothy Pierson in the commerce department, Joan Monroe teaching English, and Jack McGoldrick, the new coach.

It was announced by Charles Hale, grade school principal, that cafeteria prices will be the same as last year, 25 cents for high school students and 20 cents for grade school students. Mrs. Joe Illian will be the cook, assisted by Mrs. Mable Cunningham and Mrs. W. Woods.

The annual teachers' reception will be held September 18 in the grade school gym, according to Mrs. George Hinz, president of the Malin Parents and Patrons. Bus drivers this year will be Francis Street, Charles Long and Joe Illian.

Shirley Booth Wishes She Did Not Win Early Oscar

BY HAL McCLURE
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Shirley Booth leaned back in her chair beside her swimming pool and said, "I wish I hadn't won the Academy award so soon."

Not that the Oscar—for her 1932 portrayal of a frumpy hausfrau in "Come Back Little Sheba"—has done her any harm.

"But, I felt it came much too quickly. It was my first motion picture, you know. I always think you should work up to something," she said.

Her success on the stage with "Sheba" and subsequent plays came after many years of hard work, frustration and tears. Miss Booth, by the way, made her Broadway debut in 1925 with a young fellow named Humphrey Bogart.

The red-haired actress is a temporary Hollywoodian while appearing in the play, "The Desk Set."

"It's a funny thing," she went on, "when success arrives in your later years, no one is envious at all. Older people hope the same lightning might strike them; the younger folks aren't a bit jealous because they know you've been working for it a long time."

Shirley, who doesn't look her 49 years, recalled a conversation with her ex-husband, Ed Gardner, creator of "Duffy's Tavern."

"Ed said, 'Shirley, people envy me my success, but they all hope you'll make it to the top one of these days. They say, good of these days, she's been pluggin' away a long time.'"

Long - memorized radio fans might recall that Shirley played the original "Miss Duffy" on the radio for two years. She and Gardner were divorced in 1943. Shirley interrupts her busy schedule at the end of the month for a two-month tour of England, France and Italy. She returns to San Francisco and several more weeks with "The Desk Set."
