Chief Avers Bomb Tests To Remain

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said Friday it would be foolish for this country to announce a halt in H-bomb testing until international controls are agreed on.

The Russians, Eisenhower said, make no prior announcement of their tests, and if this country abandoned its testing program, the United States could be left far behind in the nuclear race.

The observations were in reply to a news conference question, but neither the question nor Eisenhower's reply mentioned recent assertions by Democratic presidential nominee Adlai Stevenson that the President should take the lead in seeking agreement among the great powers to eliminate the tests.

NOT WISE
Eisenhower also said he does not regard as entirely wise the constitutional amendment that bars a third presidential term.

Making no attempt to apply his remarks to his own case, Eisenhower said he believes that by and large the people should be able to choose as president anybody they want, regardless of the number of terms.

He said there have been objections that this might concentrate power in one individual. But he said he has the utmost confidence in the long-range judgment of the American people.

Most of his meeting with reporters was devoted, as can be expected these days, to politics. There were a few questions on domestic and foreign policy sprinkled in.

LIKES CAMPAIGN
Eisenhower, under questioning said he likes campaigning—that he likes to get out and see the people instead of just getting reports.

And, he said, he is on the road of truth and facts—not on the high road or low road.

This was an obvious job at Democratic opponents who have been accusing the GOP of taking the low road at times during the 1956 political war.

On the matter of H-bomb tests, the President said that a report—quite a long one—would be issued late Friday afternoon on these tests.

Thornton Asks FBI For Tapes

PORTLAND (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton asked the federal court Thursday to have the FBI turn over to him tape recordings and a recording machine the FBI seized last month.

The material first was seized by William Langley, Multnomah County district attorney, in a raid earlier this year on the home of Raymond Clark. That happened while Thornton was investigating charges by The Oregonian of vice and corruption in this area. Clark has said he made tape recordings which the newspaper said figured in its charges.

The grand jury subsequently indicted some 30 persons, including Langley, Clark and James Purcell Jr., Portland police chief.

Meanwhile the Clark raid was declared illegal by a circuit judge and the seized material was impounded by state police.

The FBI seized it Sept. 5 from a Milwaukee safety deposit box. The FBI acted on a warrant issued by U. S. Commissioner Claire Mundorf after an FBI agent said he believed the tape recordings included illegal "intercepted telephone messages."

Searchers Find Missing Nimrod

BEND (AP) — Searchers Thursday found Charles Pike, 20, of Bend who disappeared last Monday on a deer-hunting trip in the Mud Lake area near here.

Smoke from his signal fire was spotted by a search plane and later a ground party walked into his camp.

He appeared to be well despite being lost some 72 hours.

He was the third hunter to be reported lost since the season opened at dawn last Saturday. The other two also were found alive and well.

There have been nine fatalities reported so far this season—eight fatal heart seizures and one fatal shooting. Four other hunters suffered non-fatal gunshot wounds.

MONROE SWEETLAND

Sweetland Show Slated

State Senator Monroe Sweetland, Democratic candidate for secretary of state, is scheduled to spend this weekend campaigning in the Klamath Basin.

Sweetland, a well known Oregon publisher and legislator. He is coming here under auspices of the Klamath County Democratic Club and Democratic County Central Committee.

Senator Sweetland will discuss campaign issues at a number of meetings here, according to Hal Geiger, county central committee publicity chairman.

Sweetland, who completed his education at Cornell and Syracuse universities has been in the forefront of state affairs since he launched his newspaper career. He publishes newspapers at Molalla, Newport and Milwaukie. He represents Clackamas County in the state senate.

"Senator Sweetland is anxious to meet and talk with everyone in the Klamath Basin, Geiger said. "He is recognized as one of the state's outstanding leaders."

Wilhelm Sees Tax Request

PORTLAND (AP) — The Legislative Tax Study Committee will recommend a sales tax to the 1957 Legislature, State Sen. Rudie Wilhelm predicted here Thursday.

Wilhelm, a Portland Republican who is chairman of the committee, told a women's club: "The basic decisions to be made are whether we want high or higher income or property taxes, or a well thought-out sales tax, or reduced expenditures."

He said the committee probably will ask that a 3 per cent sales tax measure be submitted to the people at a special election next April.

Opposition to a sales tax was expressed by State Rep. Walter Pearson, Portland Democrat, another member of the committee.

The committee study shows, he said, that those with incomes below $5,000 a year would pay much more under a sales tax than under the present income tax system while "those with income over $7,000 would pay much less."

Police Capture Escaped Convict Near Coos Bay

COOS BAY (AP) — Police Friday captured Ernest Leroy Gibson, 29, after the hunted man had escaped a police trap on Cape Arago and stolen an automobile at Empire.

Of four prisoners who escaped from the Linn County jail at Albany, Sept. 7, only one now remains at large. He is Earl J. Bonney, 32.

Gibson, who earlier had been trapped in a brush-covered acre on Cape Arago, was nabbed without incident as he tried to nap in a stolen car here, said state police Sgt. Homer C. Snider.

Snider and Coos Bay police joined forces to make the capture, after Gibson somehow had sneaked out of the Cape Arago brush and made his way past police lines. Snider said Gibson also managed to get around a road block up the highway, by stealing a boat to cross a slough. Then he stole a car at Empire and drove to Coos Bay.

There, however, an alert resident, Chester C. Rankin, who had heard of the car theft, sighted the car and phoned police, who closed in at once.

Snider said Gibson did not resist as he was arrested and disarmed. Snider said Gibson had a .38 caliber pistol.

Gibson had kidnaped a taxicab driver early this week at Bend.

Judge Says State Has Jurisdiction

Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg ruled Thursday afternoon that the state of Oregon has criminal jurisdiction on the Klamath Indian Reservation.

The ruling was made in connection with habeas corpus proceedings in the James Quinn Anderson murder case. Anderson was convicted in Burns in February, 1955 of the shotgun slaying of Richard David Miller, 25, on the Klamath reservation. The conviction and life sentence were upheld by the Oregon Supreme Court.

In explaining his ruling Judge Vandenberg said the state of Oregon passed a law in 1864 which held that anyone committing a crime in Oregon, whether a resident of the state or not, was subject to Oregon law.

"In 1870," the judge continued, "a treaty between the Klamath Indians and other tribes and the United States government was signed in which the Indians agreed to submit to and obey all laws and regulations prescribed by the federal government."

Vandenberg said when Congress passed Public Law 280 three years ago relinquishing federal jurisdiction over crimes on the reservation, it was the intent to place the Indians under the jurisdiction of the state of Oregon.

"The federal government through Public Law 280 merely delegated the power which the Indians had given it under the Treaty of 1870 to the state of Oregon," Judge Vandenberg concluded.

After the judge made his ruling, Defense Attorneys Herbert Welch, Lakeview, and Leonard Waterman, Burns, gave notice of appeal to the Oregon Supreme Court. Anderson was remanded to the county jail.

Jaycees Get UF-RC Award

United Fund-Red Cross campaign chairman Noel Flynn presented a certificate of merit to the Klamath County Junior Chamber of Commerce at the fund drive report meeting Thursday.

Flynn awarded the certificate to the club "for recognition of outstanding achievement in the service of the human needs of the community."

He said the Jaycees had consistently increased the organization's contribution to the united drive to meet increased needs in the community, and this year gave $150.

The money is part of the total of $33,499 reported following the Thursday luncheon meeting.

Flynn also announced that members of the Klamath Falls Barbers Union, local 841, have adopted a plan approved this year by the Klamath Medical Society. The barbers, through their union secretary, George Cook, will assume full responsibility for the campaign among their members.

Division totals reported by Flynn include the following:
Lumber, $12,259; industrial, $6,685; commercial, $2,754.63; public service, $3,857; professional, $3,063; educational, $4,803.86; residential, $33.

Police Capture Escaped Convict Near Coos Bay

At gunpoint he forced the driver to head toward the coast from Bend, and then had bound the driver and left him beside a road in the Cape Arago region south of here. The driver managed to free himself from the bonds, and alerted police, who closed in on the area.

A state patrolman sighted Gibson in the brush Wednesday and fired one shot at him before Gibson disappeared again. The shot missed. Later police found where Gibson had spent the night near here.

Meanwhile police in Los Angeles announced the capture of another member of the four prisoners who broke out of the jail at Albany. He is James Arthur Patton, 39, who like the others was facing a life sentence. He was spotted at his wife's home several days ago, but police allowed him to remain free, hoping one or more of the other escapees would join him.

Patton was taken into custody Thursday when he and another man drove to Manhattan Beach. The other man later was released.

Another escapee, Dan Ott, 45, was found dead in the Willamette River at Salem several days after the escape. He had drowned, but police have not determined how he came to drown.

RIGHT ON THE JOB THURSDAY NOON WERE THE KLAMATH FALLS CITY police when reports came in that a 'crack pot' was in the brushed area in front of the Moore Park gates and was taking rifle shots at automobiles as they passed on the nearby highway. Pictured after chasing the gunman through the brushed hills surrounding the park are Officers John Kennard, Jack Fairchild and Bert Brouillard, and Sergeant Odell Olson in the front squad car. The later discovery of some fired .22 caliber shells and a newly killed coot at the lakeshore indicated that the vanishing gunman was shooting birds out of season, with some of the bullets flying across the highway after ricocheting from the lake.

In The Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS

How about devoting this piece today to what people are saying for publication.

It might be interesting. What people say for publication is one thing. What they say privately is apt to be something quite different. When they speak for publication, they may be seeking to influence the opinions of others toward a desired end. Or they may be merely seeking notoriety.

When they speak privately, in a small group of friends, they are more apt to be themselves, to speak sincerely, to express their REAL opinions and convictions.

Let's start with Ike. He tells his news conference this morning that he is unable to say that early tax relief is possible. He explained that tax relief comes from the elimination of needless costs and the dropping of unnecessary expenses.

He has repeatedly said for publication that he thinks the farm problem must be solved by bringing production and consumption back into balance. He says that production and consumption can't be brought into balance by paying high subsidized prices that promote over-production.

And so on.

Let's now take a look at Adlai Stevenson.

He has said repeatedly for publication that he is for HIGHER farm subsidies.

He has said we should quit testing nuclear weapons and abandon the military draft.

A little while back he advocated retiring EVERYBODY on a pension sufficient to maintain each person ON THE SCALE OF LIVING TO WHICH HE HAD BECOME ACCUSTOMED.

And so on.

That is to say: In his public utterances President Eisenhower has not hesitated to advocate doing things the hard way when it seems to him that the hard way is the best way.

In his public utterances in THIS campaign Mr. Stevenson has rather generally advocated the EASY way.

Or so it seems to me.

Unfortunately for good government, our country has become so huge that it is utterly impossible for candidates for President to meet in small groups with the people who will do the voting—to chat with them personally and exchange private opinions.

But I believe that if it WERE possible for them to do so we would find that President Eisenhower's private personal opinions, expressed in conversation with a small number of people in a single room, would differ very slightly from his publicly expressed convictions and beliefs.

I'm reasonably sure in my own mind that if we could meet privately with Mr. Stevenson, in somebody's living room, say, and chat with him as we chat with friends in small gatherings, we would find that his PRIVATE, PERSONAL beliefs differ sharply

Mysterious Rifleman Eludes KF Policemen

Some young and out of season duck hunter is doubtless marveling at just how excited the city police can get when a person starts shooting the coots on the lake shore across from the gates to Moore Park.

Late Thursday morning the police received a call from Mrs. Mark Hattan, 636 Front Street, to the effect that someone was shooting in the park area and the bullets were flying across the road. Police visited the scene but were unable to find any trace of the gunman who had hidden himself in the brush.

Shortly after noon some Copco employes working on a nearby hill spotted the gunman on the lakeshore in front of the park. The police were again notified and Patrolmen John Kennard and Jack Fairchild hurried to the scene.

As they approached the park area Kennard spotted the gunman on the lakeshore. Before police could get into the immediate area the elusive gunman ran down the shore and disappeared into the heavy brush and tulle growth in front of the skating rink area. The two officers then flushed the man out. He crossed the road and started up the heavily treed and brushed hill in back of the rink.

Not knowing whether their quarry was a crack pot who took particular delight in shooting at cars, a youth maliciously shooting at the vehicles, or someone sighting in his gun at the wrong place, the police proceeded with some caution when chasing the man up the heavily brushed hill. He broke into the clear at the top and sped away in his automobile, or that of a friend.

A few moments after that the park was literally teeming with police. Two squad cars, the paddy wagon, and the motorcycle. However, the gunman had made good his escape.

Material later found on the lakeshore indicated that the person being sought was probably shooting coots, with the slugs ricocheting off the water and across the nearby road. Found at the scene from which the gunman fled were some empty .22 caliber cartridges, along with a coot which hadn't been dead for long.

Police caution anyone against shooting in the vicinity of the park, pointing in particular to the fact that a car was struck with one of the flying slugs two days ago.

KF To Receive Milk Inspection

PORTLAND (AP) — The state Department of Agriculture said Friday it will take over milk inspection in the Klamath Falls area Monday, following local requests for state inspection for economy reasons.

Salem also has asked the state to take over inspection of its dairies and farms, and the Agriculture Department said it will make the change Jan. 1.

This will leave only four cities—Portland, Eugene, Medford and Astoria—handling their own milk inspection.

J. F. Short, director of the Agriculture Department, said Thomas Bailey has been assigned to conduct the Klamath Falls inspections. Bailey formerly conducted the department's dairy inspections in Clackamas and Marion counties.
