

Brinks Defense Expected To Wind Up Talks Today

BOSTON (AP)—The defense in the $1,219,000 Brink's robbery trial was expected to complete its final arguments today and then give way to the closing statements of the prosecution.

That would leave only Judge Felix Forte's charge to the jurors before the jury is handed the case for a verdict, possibly tonight or tomorrow morning.

The eight defendants are represented by four attorneys. Three of them completed their arguments yesterday, leaving chief defense counsel Paul T. Smith to address the jury today.

The prosecution's closing arguments were to be made by Dist. Atty. Garrett H. Byrne.

The prosecution agreed yesterday not to press armed robbery and breaking and entering charges against defendant Joseph F. McGinnis, 53, branded by the state as the "brains and director" of the Jan. 17, 1950 robbery.

However, other indictments still hang over McGinnis' head, including one naming him an accessory before the robbery. Under Massachusetts law, conviction of being an accessory carries the same penalty as the felony itself.

The eight defendants, if convicted, could get as much as life in prison.

Three of the defense staff — Henry Sontag, Robert J. DeGiacommo and Lawrence F. O'Donnell — delivered closing arguments yesterday, each ripping at the background and testimony of Joseph J. (Specs) O'Keefe, 59, the state's star witness.

RIGHT ON THE JOB IS HERALD & NEWS carrier Don Evans as he delivers the evening paper to Mrs. Maude Holmes of 1421 Esplanade Ave. Don is one of the 125 Herald & News carriers whose all important job it is to see that you daily have delivered to your door the complete coverage of local, state, national and world events.

ROUTE 63 HERALD & NEWS CARRIER John Tompkins loads up his bag at the plant just before starting on his route. John is on the job six days a week to insure the dependable delivery of the news to your front door.

National Newspaper Week Honors Valuable Newsboys

He appears to be just another lad who comes around daily to deliver your Herald and News. You might marvel at his uncanny accuracy when tossing the paper on your front porch while moving down the street at a pretty good clip on his bike. Too, if he's a particularly courteous or sociable young fellow, you perhaps mention him from time to time to your neighbors. But by and large, the 125 boys, who deliver the Herald and News, and the 600,000 boys who daily deliver the newspapers throughout the United States, are in the average person's eyes just another part of our everyday life.

He's just another kid, but did you ever stop to wonder how greatly modified your life would be if that "just another kid" didn't visit your home daily while executing his all important function.

It is a certainty that with the vanishing newsboy would die the newspaper as you know it today. It is equally certain that the death of newspapers would remove your foremost guarantee of a protected Democracy and a continued freedom.

In addition to crumbling the very foundation of the newspaper world, one of the qualities most essential to our way of life would be all but annihilated if there were no longer any newsboys.

The would-be leaders of tomorrow would be without the necessary confidence your newsboy is building today, and those same undeveloped chieftains would not have the invaluable understanding of responsibility, business sense, cooperation, dependability and sociability which are being learned and employed by your Herald and News carrier today.

That's right, your newsboy is today assembling the tools with which he will in future years help forge the destiny of our country. He's much more than just the kid who brings your paper . . . he's the kid who will in a few years by applying what he learns today to insure your freedom, security and advancement of your country.
