Jet Bail-Out Is Dangerous Thing

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UP) - Imagine you're a cigarette ash thrown from a speeding auto on a freeway. That's how it feels to bail out of a jet at 45,000 feet, says an Air Force pilot. "Chances of injury in today's new high-speed aircraft are high because of the lack of safety equipment," Capt. Edmund G. Sperry told the American Assn. for the Surgery of Trauma (shock) convention.

Fire Week Progress Told

Selling fire safety is never an easy job, but it's mighty rewarding and heart-warming work when it comes to getting the idea across to children, says Fire Chief M. G. Gordon.

The chief praised the youngsters of Klamath Falls and other Basin communities as being the fire department's "best customers."

Their interest and willingness to learn all about fire and how to stop it before it starts "means an ever-improving fire record for all local departments" he said.

Chief Gordon reported that the children are being especially helpful now during Fire Prevention Week and he listed the following special event scheduled for the South Suburban area's younger element during the weeklong fire safety drive:

A special invitation for children to visit the Suburban Fire Station at 2342 Gettle Street between the hours, 10 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. any day during "Fire Prevention Week."

Courteous firemen will welcome the opportunity to explain how a fire department operates.

Rhyolite Lease Filed

YREKA—James W. Morgan of Anderson, California, has announced that he has finished negotiating for a lease in the area of Ager to begin quarry operations for bandit rhyolite. The stone is marble like and is in wide demand for fireplaces and facings.

Morgan said he hoped to have the product on the market within 60 days. He estimated the operation would employ four or five men with the labor force being increased as operations expanded.
