Democrats Plan Rally For Visitor Stevenson

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Adlai Stevenson was due in Portland Wednesday for a night rally in the public auditorium, probably the Democratic presidential nominee's last visit to Oregon during the campaign.

Democrats arranged a mass greeting for Stevenson arriving at the airport from Seattle in the afternoon. They said the motorcade taking him to a downtown hotel included 100 cars from Gresham, 15 from Klamath Falls, 25 from Salem and many from Portland and other parts of Oregon.

Stevenson was expected to make a strong plea for support of Democratic Sen. Wayne Morse, whose bid for reelection is strongly contested by Douglas McKay, who quit as interior secretary to make the campaign.

A major issue in the Morse-McKay campaign was highlighted Tuesday when the U. S. Court of Appeals upheld a Federal Power Commission license to the Idaho Power Co. for three small dams in the Hells Canyon reach of the Snake River.

McKay, in the cabinet, withdrew the Interior Department's opposition to Idaho Power's plan. Morse and other Democrats have strongly criticized that action. They favor federal construction of a single high dam in Hells Canyon, on the Oregon-Idaho border.

McKay was pleased with the appeals court ruling. He said, "The court's decision should make it clear to the people of Oregon, once and for all, that the Hells Canyon matter was decided in accordance with the law, and that Morse's intemperate speeches are merely defiance of the orderly processes of the law for his own selfish political advantage."

The decision did not meet the approval of Morse and Democratic Sen. Richard Neuberger.

Morse insisted that the Hells Canyon battle is not over because Idaho Power has not started major construction there.

"Douglas McKay set the stage for handing over Hells Canyon to private exploitation and underdevelopment," Morse said. "President Eisenhower insured its defeat by influencing votes in the Senate. On election day the electorate can, and will, vote for the high Hells Canyon dam by voting Democratic."

McKay, said Neuberger, "abandoned the claim of the federal government to this greatest of North American power sites" and the "White House applied unprecedented and unusual pressure on Republican senators to vote against the Hells Canyon bill."

Mail Fraud Charge Set

PORTLAND (AP) — A blind chemist serving a 20-year prison term for a department store extortion bombing was named by federal authorities Tuesday on a charge of mail fraud.

William Clarence Peddicord, 39, was indicted with his wife and two other Portland residents. Postal Inspector R. A. Stevertson said they were involved in a scheme for manufacturing and distributing products including an auto battery additive and a nylon preservative, in which false claims were made.

U. S. Marshal Harold Sexton said that papers informing Peddicord of the charge had been sent to Warden Clarence Gladden at the prison where Peddicord is serving a sentence for setting off a dynamite bomb at the Meier & Frank department store here 1½ years ago in an attempt to extort $50,000 from the store owner.

Navy To Study Altitude Secrets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy says two of its scientists will ride a pressurized balloon "as high as they can" later this month to search out secrets of the stratosphere.

The ascension will be made in a pressurized gondola attached to a giant plastic balloon, to be launched in the Minneapolis area on a date not yet set.

The same two aerologists who earlier this year rode an open gondola to 40,000 feet — Malcolm D. Ross and Lt. Cmdr. Morton L. Lewis — will make the Minnesota ascension. Both live in Alexandria, Va.
