County Chamber Group Backs Proposition One

The Tax Committee of the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce is sending a letter to all chamber members urging passage of Proposition One in the November 6 general election, it was announced at the regular meeting of the chamber's directors Wednesday noon in the Winema Hotel.

Proposition One is an amendment to Oregon's constitution which would allow the attaching of an emergency clause on tax laws passed by the Legislature. At present, tax laws do not become effective until 90 days after the close of the session of the Legislature during which the law is passed. Referendums gathered by minority groups have blocked tax laws by obtaining only 20,000 signatures out of the approximately 700,000 registered voters of the state.

Proponents of the emergency clause have stated that its use by the Legislature would allow the men representing Oregon to work out a more equitable tax program for the state.

Opponents of the measure argue that passage of the emergency clause would rob the state's citizens of one of the safeguards of the state government—the referendum. Laws passed with the emergency clause could still be initiated and brought before the people at the next general election following passage of the bill.

The statement as prepared by the chamber's tax group states:

"1. Oregon's 45 per cent surtax on income has the effect of placing our state at a disadvantage in attracting industry and wealth.

"2. In our state if revenue is not raised in some other manner, the tax burden automatically reverts to property. We believe that when it becomes unprofitable to own a home it is a dangerous condition for both the state and nation. Exorbitant property taxes will do just that unless other methods of raising revenue are devised.

"Proposition One will allow the Legislature to adopt a tax program and try it out before it is referred to a vote by allowing ap-

Loosley Named McKay Worker

R. S. Loosley, Fort Klamath, has joined the McKay for Senator Committee in Klamath County. Doug McKay announced today.

Loosley will serve with other committee members throughout the state in conducting a vigorous campaign that will insure victory November 6, the Republican senatorial candidate said.

"Through the efforts of these leaders, voters will be reminded that now is the time for Oregon to obtain a cooperative, full-time law-maker instead of a 10 per cent senator," McKay said.

"LET THERE BE NO DELAY IN HELPING OREGON TO GROW"

"The climate for new payrolls in Oregon is ideal," states Governor Smith. "We are going to have trouble finding a place to put the people who are going to be part of our economy. For years Oregon has paid the highest average hourly pay to skilled workers, of any state in the nation, and we have paid the highest average weekly pay check. We have high quality labor and they deserve these kind of wages. As Governor I will strive to bring new business and payrolls to Oregon."
