Deetz Works For McKay

Elmer Deetz, Canby dairyman, who put milk in the banner headlines two years ago, was in Klamath Falls Saturday boosting the senatorial candidacy of former Interior Secretary Douglas McKay. Deetz, an opponent of McKay's in the primary election, waged a campaign in 1954 which resulted in repeal of the Oregon Milk Control Law. He contended the law created a monopoly for major milk distributors and kept dairymen from making independent sales.

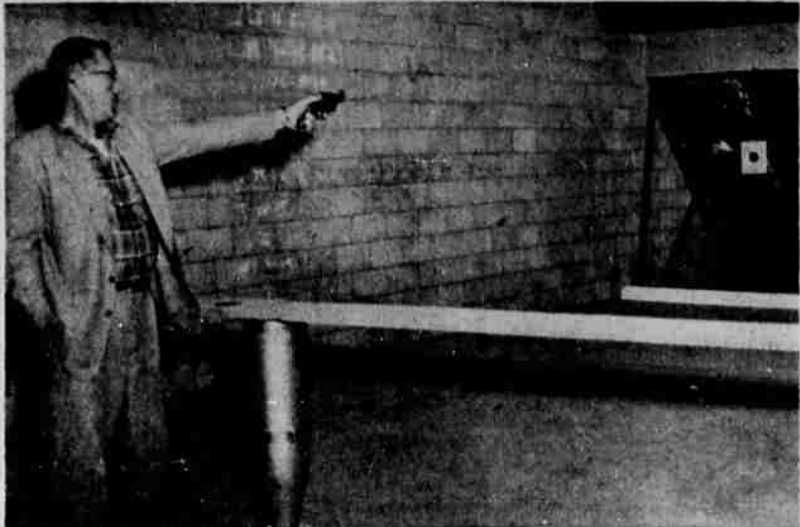

"I am stumping the state in behalf of Douglas McKay," he said, "because I believe he is the best man for the job. I am also working for the election of other Republican candidates." "Mr. McKay," he added, "believes as I do that any agricultural legislation must come from the farmers themselves, not the politicians. Mr. McKay and I also agree that the government should only do for the farmers what they cannot do for themselves."

Deetz is campaigning at the "barnyard level." After a conference with George Proctor, Klamath County Republican Central Committee chairman, he started on a tour of Basin dairy farms to talk to the farmers at work.

RESEMBLANCE PAINFUL. HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Actor-songwriter Rod McKuen has discovered his face is not necessarily his fortune. "I was standing on a corner a while back," he said, "when a girl came up to me. She yelled 'don't look so much like James Dean,' slapped my face and ran off."

DETECTIVE BUD ADKINS OF THE KLAMATH FALLS POLICE force gets in a little target work at the newly completed pistol range located near department headquarters. The building has been under construction since December of 1954. In addition to serving as a pistol range for the police, it is anticipated that junior rifle groups will be instructed there. The building will be officially dedicated on Friday, October 26. The public is invited to visit the building at that time.

Public Invited To Visit New Police Pistol Range

The public is invited to visit the newly completed police pistol firing range between 1 p.m. and 10 p.m. on Friday, October 26. The building houses a firing range, loading room, and police officers' club room, and is located at 410 South Fourth Street.

Bud Adkins of the Klamath Falls detective division points out that the project is under sponsorship of the Police Beneficiary Association and has been built with proceeds from the annual police dances since 1934. Construction of the building was undertaken during December of 1954, with members of the association furnishing volunteer labor wherever possible.

Adkins pointed out that the Beneficiary Association was organized in the early 1930's and was originally designed for the purpose of providing officers with pension funds and other security measures. It soon became apparent that the amount of money available to the association would not be sufficient to support such a program. Following that, the proceeds from the annual dances were saved in the form of bonds for the eventual construction of the lounge room and pistol range.

Walter Conrady is the current president of the association, with Adkins being chairman of the range committee. Veteran officers on the force who

The police ball this year will be Wednesday night, November 21.
