Third Period Flurry Gives OTI 27-20 Win

By CLAYTON HANNON
Herald-News Sports Editor

Mr. Upset may be missing his usual turn in the nation's football picture so far this year, but Saturday afternoon he had his way as the "fired-up" Oregon Tech Owls greeted a large Homecoming Weekend crowd with a stunning and explosive 27-20 triumph over their arch rivals, the Southern Oregon College Red Raiders from Ashland.

The Raiders were billed as the co-favorites in the Oregon Collegiate Conference grid race, but someone forgot to tell Coach Rex Hunsaker's Mile High Campus footballers the news. Because yesterday afternoon the Owls scored with sudden death in the third period, then withstood a late-game rally sparked by SOC's little All-American quarterback Bill Seymour.

Southern Oregon wasn't supposed to have any difficulty in overpowering the Owls, especially after Tech had lost three of its first stringers less than two weeks ago. But the Owls led offensively by fullback Belton Ollison and quarterback Bob Stoy, and defensively by center Don Baker and end Al Van Lewven, the Techmen wrote a fairy-tale story for their student body members and alumni members who gathered in the Modoc Field stands Saturday.

STANDOFF BATTLE

After the two clubs had battled each other to a 7-all standoff in the first two periods, Oregon Tech opened the third quarter with their second go-ahead touchdown on a brilliant pass-run play from Bob Stoy to Charles Eccleston. Then Tech added touchdowns by Ollison and Van Lewven to take a lead that they never relinquished to the Raiders, who tried, but failed, to overtake their hosts in the fourth and final period of play.

Eccleston scored on a 37-yard play with the second half only a minute or so old that climaxed a drive of 85 yards. A personal foul penalty against SOC forced the ball to the SOC 49. Then two running plays by Tech lost ground and the Owls had a third down situation on their own 43. Stoy stepped back behind good blocking and heaved a long aerial down field. The pigskin nestled in Eccleston's arms on the 20-yard line and the Tech wingman was all alone on his jaunt the rest of the way into pay dirt for the score. Walie Wood's try for point was blocked.

Southern Oregon was held on the following series of plays, and OTI took over on the SOC 17-yard line after a brilliant punt run back by Bob Stoy stirred the Modoc patrons. Stoy took the punt on his own 21, then behind good blocking, he threaded his way to the Raiders' 21, where he was stopped, but before going down, Stoy lateraled to Eccleston, who took the ball and ran up to the 17 before being tackled. Then on the first play from scrimmage, Ollison took a pitchout, juggled the ball momentarily, then circled his own left end for 17 yards and the touchdown. This time, Stoy booted the extra point, and the Owls held a 20-7 lead, as Southern Oregon routers couldn't believe their eyes.

Again the Oregon Tech defense stiffened, and Southern Oregon's forces had to punt with the Owls taking over on their own 15. On fourth down, Stoy was roughed up by a hard-charging Raider lineman, and instead of the Ashlanders taking over the ball in OTI territory where Stoy's punt rolled dead, Tech had another first down on the OTI 30. From here, it was 70 yards in eight plays for the fourth and final TD of the day for the Hoot Birds. On the eighth play, the Owls used a bit of razzledazzle to pull the score out-of-the-fire.

Stoy heaved a long pass to Eccleston who caught the ball on the Southern Oregon 15. From here he worked his way to the 10 where three SOC tacklers stopped him. But as was the case just minutes before, Tech used the lateral to bring dividends. Eccleston, before falling, flipped the ball to Van Lewven, who was waiting along side on the 10, and from there it was clear sailing into pay dirt. Stoy booted the extra point again and the Owls led 27-7.

As the fourth period opened, Southern Oregon's little All-American candidate Seymour uncorked a passing attack that brought the Raiders back into the game in quick fashion, then threatened to knot the game in a last-ditch effort through the air lanes.

A 35-yard pass play from Seymour to end Larry Schweinfurt moved the ball to the Tech four on the first play of the final canto. Then two plays later, Seymour bolted over from the one-yard line. John Garrett's kick was no good. After an OTI series, with no yardage to show for the effort, Southern Oregon took over on their own 20, when OTI's Hugh Amern fumbled, and Ralph Clarno recovered for the Raiders. From here it was Seymour passing, sprinkled with a few running plays and Southern Oregon moved the 80 yards for a score that was climaxed by Ted Tenney's six-yard sprint through the Owl line.

OWLS WEARY

The tiring Techmen just about gave up another touchdown to their visitors, but a possible game-saver fell towards the OTI boys, when Al "Little Tiger" Everson reached up and picked off one of Seymour's passes, after the Raiders had moved from their own 22 to the OTI 40. After this, Oregon Tech just ran out the time.

In the first quarter, OTI scored when Ollison scampered over from his own eight-yard stripe, hitting over his own left end and tackle. Wood booted the extra point to give OTI the lead. Then in the second chapter, Seymour plunged over from the one on a sneak after Southern Oregon had marched from their own 21. Garrett's kick was good.

After the game, Hunsaker and his assistant Ralph Carr were both carried off the turf by their elated chargers who had just pulled off the "upset of the year" as far as Oregon Collegiate Conference teams were concerned. For the inspired Owls it was a great win and gave them a season record of 3-3.

Hunsaker said after the game, "I told you so." He was making reference to a statement that if any team was going to beat the Owls from now on out, they would be in for a tough fight. "They were great," Hunsaker added. "And how in the world can anyone praise the outstanding playing turned in by the kids, especially that Baker (Don)?" the OTI mentor chipped in.

Baker played his finest game of football since wearing an Oregon Tech uniform, and the Eureka, California athlete well deserves any praise he receives. The Tech center and linebacker broke up pass plays, blocked conversion attempts, threw SOC runners for losses, rushed the passers and plugged holes in the Oregon Tech forward wall.

Next week Oregon Tech will meet Humboldt State College's junior varsity team here in a Modoc Field battle Saturday night.

KF Speedway Host To Topper Jamboree

Today is jamboree day for all hardtop enthusiasts in Southern Oregon and Northern California as the Klamath Racing Association plays host to the first "Auto Racing Jamboree" held in this part of the country this afternoon at Klamath Speedway.

The first action of the day will start with time trials at 12 o'clock. Track manager Hap Caldwell reported this week that he is expecting 50 or more hardtops from all sections of Northern California and Southern Oregon to take part in today's jamboree of auto racing excitement.

Drivers from Klamath Falls, Ashland, Medford, Roseburg, Anderson, California, Willows, Alturas and Tracy, California have indicated they will be on hand for the big $100 prize for the winner of the day's 100-lap A-main.

Plus the century-long A-main, Caldwell said the B-main will be scheduled for 30 laps, and the full card of hardtopping will be turned loose for the enjoyment of the sports fans. The card will have four heats, the final heat, the A-trophy dash, the B-trophy dash and two special events, one of which will be the potato picking race.

The program's trophy girl will be Peggy Carson, queen of the 1956 Potato Festival. She will present the winners of the trophy dash events with small trophies and the winner of the big 100-lap race will win a giant trophy being donated by the Potato Festival committee.

Ticket prices for today's gigantic program of spills and chills will be $1 for adults and all youngsters under 12 will be admitted free of charge.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The devastating backfield duo of Jon Arnett and C. R. Roberts wrecked Washington with a brilliant display of running, and the Trojans rolled on to a 35-7 triumph over their Pacific Coast Conference rivals from the Northwest on Saturday afternoon in Memorial Coliseum.

A momentous field goal by reserve fullback Bob Isaacson that traveled 43 yards—gave USC a 9-7 lead in the second quarter and actually won the game.

But it was halfback Arnett, playing his last local game as a collegian before a hometown crowd of 44,749, and the speedy fullback, Runaway Roberts, who applied the decisive blows right off the bat in the third quarter.

Pushed back to their own five by a penalty and a bobbed ball, Arnett, a senior limited to five games this season, and Roberts went to work.

Washington's split T worked like magic in the early stages. Coach Darrell Royal alternated a classy set of backs, and got off to a seven-point lead in the first quarter.

Lineman Whitey Core intercepted a pass on the Trojan 25. Halfback Luther Carr went off end for 19. Dean Derby picked up three and Carr plunged the final three for the touchdown. Derby converted.

Roberts broke loose for 44 yards plus a 15-yard rushing penalty against Washington, to set the stage for the first USC touchdown in the second quarter on the Husky 24. Ernie Zampese ran 22 and Tony Ortega plunged 2 yards for 6 points. The conversion try was low and missed.

A fumble led to the USC field goal. USC got to the Washington 11 but a penalty set it back to the 26. With Frank Hall holding on the 33, Isaacson kicked his field goal to put the Trojans in front.

THE PASSING OF THE recent major league baseball races and the hectic World Series play between the New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers will go into the record books as one of the finest year in history for the national pastime. And rightly so.

Not only was the season filled with the usual number of "classics," but for the first time since the boom years following World War II, almost everyone of the 16 major league teams enjoyed a successful season at the box office, especially in the National League.

The senior circuit's success at the gate can be attributed to the torrid three-team race down to the last days of the season between Brooklyn, Milwaukee and Cincinnati. In the American League, it was the Yankees all of the way, just like Swaps or Nashua on the turfs across the country in past days of horse racing excitement. But just the same, the fans turned out to see baseball, and in doing so, plunked down their hard-earned change at the ticket booths around the loop.

Of course, the biggest news of the 1956 season will have to be given to Don Larsen's perfect game in the World Series. This was the "greatest," and the odds are about 1000-1 that it will ever happen in series play again, and about half that much that it will ever be duplicated in the majors.

The other thrills that one can pick out from the past season's play are many. Take for instance the brilliant comeback of Sal Maglie, Milwaukee's last ditch effort before losing to Brooklyn on the next to last day of the year, Mickey Mantle's four-month threat on Babe Ruth's home run record, and all of the home run marks that fell, both team and league.

THE KLAMATH Union Pelicans have some satisfaction in their 47-19 loss to Medford last week, even though it may be small.

The 83 yards that Medford picked up rushing and passing in the first half's play was the lowest margin in any single half for the Tornados so far this year. Even the red-hot Marshfield Pirates were unable to hold the Medford footballers under the 100-yard level in either one of the halves when the state's top two clubs tangled a few weeks ago.

Like one Medfordite put it after the Tornados' district triumph, "It's lucky for us that there are two halves in each game." And correct the Medford fan was. For in the last two quarters, the hometown's pride and joy rocked the Pelicans for over 300 yards.

HERE ARE a few tasty tidbits that can be mullied over during the first sessions of the annual "Hoistove League."

1. The Most Valuable Player awards belong to Mickey Mantle and Duke Snider.

2. The first Cy Young pitcher's award is a toss up between Brooks and Nissen.

3. The regular weekly meeting of the Owl Hoots will be held Monday evening at the Winema Hotel at 6:30.

All those interested in boosting Oregon Tech, especially the athletic program, are invited to attend tomorrow night's meeting. President Harry Glesin has urged all members to be present at the dinner meeting.
