Former New Jersey Governor Passes
NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Evans Edge, 81-year-old former governor of New Jersey, died Monday in Memorial Hospital from uremic poisoning.

He served as governor of New Jersey during the periods of two great world wars and was ambassador to France during the Hoover administration.

Edge, born Nov. 20, 1873 in Philadelphia, was a power in Republican politics both on the state and national level.

Berserk Gunman Runs Wild In Bay Area; Wounds Trio

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — A 23-year-old berserk gunman who shot and wounded three persons during a wild two-hour shooting spree has been booked on suspicion of attempted murder.

Police arrested the gunman, Joseph Broughton, in his room late Saturday after his "one-man war" had ranged over four blocks of the Marina District. The shooting prompted a general alarm and brought more than 40 policemen to the area.

The three victims were Mrs. Irene Addison, 29, an expectant mother who was shot through the left breast, her 10-month-old son, Clifford, shot through the neck, and Policeman Don Euing, 29, who was wounded in the left shoulder. All were reported recovering.

Police said a broken romance may have touched off the shooting. They said Broughton was in love with Mrs. Addison. When she shunned him after a recent argument, he told her, "I'm going to get a rifle and shoot a lot of people."

Children Die In Hot House Fire

BRISBANE (UP) — Theresa Garcia, 3, and her 2-year-old brother, Billy, were killed Sunday when a fire fed by cans of paint swept through their parents' home.

A California highway patrolman, Roy Edwards, 43, was burned during five desperate attempts to reach the trapped children.

Firemen later found the body of Billy in the smoking ruins of his crib and that of his sister on the floor nearby.

The children's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leo A. Garcia, said the fire broke out in the living room about 8:15 a.m. and quickly engulfed the front part of the small house. The flames drove the parents out of the house and trapped the two children in the rear.

Edwards tried three times to walk into the house through doors, but each time the fire drove him back. He crawled through a window in a fourth attempt but when he opened the children's bedroom door, a sheet of flame forced him to retreat. On a fifth rescue attempt, his uniform caught fire and he barely managed to escape the house.

Fire chief Richard Seiss said the blaze started near the children's bedroom and cans of paint under the boy's crib contributed to the intensity of the flames. Damage was estimated at $12,500.

Neither Garcia or his wife was injured seriously.

ASPHYXIATED
SAN MATEO (UP) — Mrs. Ruth McIntyre, 40, was asphyxiated Sunday while sleeping on a smoldering sofa which police said apparently caught fire from a cigarette.

Her husband, Louis, was overcome when smoke from the blaze filled the apartment, but he was revived at Mills Memorial Hospital. Damage was confined to the McIntyre apartment.

Witnesses said Broughton appeared at the Addison apartment Saturday night and without warning fired a 25-20 caliber rifle at Mrs. Addison who was holding her son. The bullet struck both. As he fled from the apartment, Broughton fired several paring shots into the Addison living room. He was cornered in his room an hour later and in an exchange of gunfire, Inspector Euing was wounded. Three officers broke into Broughton's room and forcibly subdued him.
