

Patricia Loree Bortis Is Bride Of Dale E. McKennie in September

The beautiful sanctuary of the new Klamath Falls First Presbyterian Church was the setting on September 21, for the nuptial rites uniting in marriage, Patricia Loree Bortis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Bortis, 640 Roseway Drive, and Dale Eugene McKennie, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. McKennie, 821 Mt. Whitney Street.

The Rev. Dale E. Hewitt officiated at the 4 p.m. double-ring service in the presence of 85 close friends and relatives.

Vows were exchanged before a floral background of basket bouquets of white gladioli and long-stemmed pink roses, accented with bows of pale pink tulle ribbon. Soft candlelight from tall branch floor candelabra illuminated the setting. Aisle pews were marked with large bows of soft pink and white.

Escorted by her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride wore a waltz length gown of imported white silk tulle with appliques of hand-clipped lace, embroidered with iridescent sequins and seed pearls. A full skirt with four deep pleats flared from the low pointed waistline. The embroidered lace outlined the becoming square neckline, and lace appliques were scattered over the skirt and inside each deep pleat. Her crown of lace also encrusted with the same iridescent sequins and seed pearls that trimmed her dress, held the finger-tipped veil of illusion.

Patricia carried her white Job's Daughters Bible, which was a gift to her as Honored Queen of Bethel No. 6, Klamath Falls. The Bible was topped with a large white orchid, stephanotis and white satin streamers. Her only jewelry was a single strand of white pearls.

For something old and borrowed, the bride carried an heirloom linen and lace handkerchief belonging to Mrs. Francis Smith. The 110-year-old handkerchief was hand-loomed and the hairpin-lace border was made by Mrs. Smith's great-grandmother in Hamburg, Germany in 1847, and has gone to the altar with many brides of the family.

The bride wore the traditional blue garter and a good-luck penny, dated 1857, the year of her marriage, was in her shoe. Sharon Dewey, a childhood friend and former classmate, maid of honor, wore a ballerina length formal of pale blue net and carried a colonial bouquet of pink carnations.

Candlelighters, Mrs. Charles Johnson (Julia Ann Brittain) and Peggy Brown, former classmates of the bride, wore ballerina frocks of pale blue. Their corsages were of pink carnations.

Bud Sander served as best man and ushering were Gary Taylor, Punky Adams, and Byron Bortis, brother of the bride. All are of Klamath Falls.

Carl Hagel, accompanied by Mrs. Eileen Herringshaw at the organ, sang "Because" and "O Promise Me." "The Lord's Prayer" was repeated in unison during the ceremony.

Both the bride and bridegroom's mother chose the color champagne for the occasion. Mrs. McKennie wore a champagne brocade dress with overtones of copper, and her accessories were of copper. Mrs. Bortis wore a champagne lace sheath dress with harmonizing accessories. Both wore identical corsages of brown cymbidium orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlor where the ornate three-tiered wedding cake was served. The cake was white, trimmed with white and pale pink roses. The top layer rested on four columns supported by white swans and the traditional bridal couple topped the confection. The base was encircled with pink roses on lacy fern. It was cut and served by Mrs. Kit Johnson and Mrs. Francis Smith. Mrs. W. W. Dewey presided at the coffee service. All are close friends of the bride and her family.

At the punch bowl were Peggy Brown and Mrs. Charles Johnson; Zon Johnson, dressed in a soft pink dressmaker suit and pink cloche hat, registered the guests. Both of the newlyweds were graduated from KUHS in the Class of '56. Dale attended Oregon State College the following year and will be enrolled at Portland State College this fall to study civil engineering.

Patricia served as secretary of Job's Daughters; and was a member of National Honor Society while in high school. She plans to attend Oregon State Dental School in Portland to finish her course as dental hygienist from which she will be graduated this coming spring.

The happy newlyweds left for Portland to spend a week before classes began. For going-away, Patricia wore a box-suit of turquoise and gray wool which she had made, and her accessories were black. The orchid from her her bridal bouquet was her corsage.

Out of town guests for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Bortis, Beaverton, Oregon; Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Kaylor and family, Macdoel; and Gary Kibble and Nelya Jean Chlopac, Corvallis.

A week before the wedding, the bride was entertained at a dinner at Lucca Cafe attended by several of her friends. The dinner was the occasion of a surprise miscellaneous shower in her honor.

OPAL BATY and Gordon C. Meade have set October 20 as the date for their forthcoming wedding in Peace Memorial Presbyterian Church. The announcement was made by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Baty, 2209 Arthur Street. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Lena Meade, Newton, Iowa. — Photo by Miller-Williams.

NOW AT HOME IN PORTLAND, where both are attending school, are Mr. and Mrs. Dale Eugene McKennie. The bride is Patricia Loree Bortis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Bortis; and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. McKennie, all of this city.

Patricia is attending Portland Dental School, and will be graduated next spring as a dental hygienist. Dale is a civil engineering student at Portland State College. They were married on September 21, in First Presbyterian Church.

Milly's Mirror

I DON'T KNOW who first observed that a cat can look at a queen—but it's pretty much an accepted fact. A lot of cats will no doubt level their critical all-seeing orbs on Queen Elizabeth and her wardrobe after she arrives in the U.S. this month.

The majority won't be of the inarticulate animal world either. But the saying is "a cat . . ." That puts the beasties of the animal kingdom two up on me.

I won't get to look at the queen—and now from Arizona (Southern Arizona School for Boys to be exact) I get THE WORD that a horse from Klamath Falls got to go to Arizona for the fall, winter and probably all spring. I won't get to do that either. Not even for a weekend.

This particular horse belongs to Tom Shaw, who returned to SAS for his sophomore year this fall. When his parents, the Laurence L. Shaws made the trip to enroll Tom before September 23, the horse was in tow.

It seems that Tom will use the lucky equine for call-roping, one of the school's featured activities. Also polo is a major sport at the prep school. So no doubt Horse will do some call-roping in the winter sunshine and maybe take up polo as a secondary diversion down Tucson way.

The communique said further that tennis is a year-round sport at SAS but didn't say anything about Horse going into that field (or court) of sport.

Tom was elected lodge counselor at the school and the post makes him student representative of Apache Lodge, his residence hall, and chief assistant to the lodge master. The school was founded in 1930 by Capt. Russell B. Fairgrieve, who has directed the school program of college prep studies since that time. He is also the present headmaster.

GOLDEN WEDDING anniversaries are being celebrated in bunches these days—The bridal couples of 50 years ago are making the H&N society pages with increasing frequency—almost to the point of competing space-wise with the current marriages. I am still impressed with each half-century marriage—and think it's mighty wonderful that a couple can share the festive anniversary day plus 50 years of shared memories.

Jane asked Susie to go swimming at a country club to which Jane's parents belonged, but Susie's didn't. Then Susie decided to ask a couple of friends to go along. So Jane had to sign for three guests instead of one. That was just plain bad manners on Susie's part. If you are a guest, don't feel free to invite others to your host's party.

If you are five feet or under, best to avoid the large or "garden party" hat in summer. This is a hat that's most becoming to the tall, slim gal.

LANGELL VALLEY COUPLE HONORED

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Zellar of Tulelake were honored with an anniversary dinner September 28 given by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Burnett at their home in Langell Valley. Attending the dinner and social evening following, in addition to the guests of honor, were Mr. and Mrs. Harley Zellar of Williamson River, Mrs. Muriel Smith and her son Clinton Smith of Tulelake, Susan Pinelli of Klamath Falls, and F. W. Brown and Marla and Monte Burnett of Langell Valley.
