

BRAVES WIN WORLD SERIES

In The Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS

Retired defense secretary Wilson has something to say today that is interesting. It is interesting because he knows what he is talking about. It is particularly interesting at this moment because he has just RETIRED as secretary of defense, and therefore has no reason to shade his public utterances for policy or political reasons.

Talking to reporters in Seattle this morning, he says the United States' long range missile program can KEEP UP WITH RUSSIA'S.

He adds— "We must be careful that we aren't the ones to intensify an armament race."

That is to say: We must make it clear to all the world that we aren't the ones who are beating the war drums. Our objective is to defend ourselves against those who might seek to destroy us. Under no circumstances will we be the aggressors in an atomic world war.

He tells the newsmen that in the current "fuss over Russia's satellite and missile development" we are tending to forget what our competition with the Soviet Union is all about.

It's ABOUT A WAY OF LIFE.

Russia's objective is to conquer the world for communism. Our objective is to maintain OUR way of life.

Our big job is to dramatize that fact to all the world.

Asked if he thinks the U.S. missile program needs to be accelerated, he replied:

"Our missile program now is good. It is quite speeded up, and I think it is ABOUT WHERE IT OUGHT TO BE. I view the Russian satellite Sputnik as a scientific rather than a military achievement."

Let's forget missiles for a moment and listen to an appraisal of another aspect of modern progress.

Health Secretary Marion Folsom asserts today that Americans can knock out paralytic polio within a year by using the Salk vaccine now on hand. He says that millions of persons under 40 who have not been vaccinated are "needlessly risking disability or even death." They should take advantage of this new discovery, he thinks.

He joins with Surgeon General Leroy Burney in a report that paralytic polio ALREADY has been reduced 80 per cent in the past two years through the use of Salk vaccine.

Modern progress, you see, ISN'T all bad. It ISN'T all destructive. It is heading toward a BETTER way of life.

Crew Saved From Tanker

HONOLULU (UP)—The Navy announced today that all 45 crewmen successfully abandoned the Mission San Miguel when the tanker began listing dangerously and threatened to capsize on Maro Reef, 750 miles northwest of Honolulu.

The civilian crew was transferred to the LST 664, which had been standing by the Navy-chartered 22,000-ton vessel during part of its 22-hour ordeal on the reef. The tanker ran aground at top speed of 15 knots Tuesday night. The cargo tanks were split, the engine room was flooded and the ship listed dangerously to port.

The Navy said the LST would remain on the scene until rescue ships could reach Maro to attempt salvage. Then the survivors will be brought to Pearl Harbor.

In its original distress message, the tanker radioed it had run aground on Laysan Reef. However, search planes found nothing at Laysan.

About 12 hours later, the ship was located on Maro Island, about 45 miles northwest of Laysan. Capt. Perry K. Countryman, Long Beach, Calif., said the tanker had been running without a navigational fix for 56 hours due to overcast skies.

Watchers See Rocket, Miss Moon

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—A moonwatch team here spotted the Russian satellite Sputnik's third stage rocket Thursday in the first such sighting in the United States.

Two men atop the New Haven State Teachers College building saw the rocket at 5:32 a.m. (EST) as it moved in the sky some 650 miles behind Sputnik itself.

The rocket, larger than Sputnik, was used to give the satellite a final push that sent it spinning around the earth. Observers considered both it and Sputnik as earth satellites. Sputnik still hasn't been seen in this country.

"It looked like a star moving across the heavens," said James Plato, the first man to see the rocket. He is a telephone equipment engineer and an amateur astronomer for 20 years.

"It could not have been seen with the naked eye, but appeared to be about as bright as a third magnitude star," Plato said. "It was in our field vision for 30 or 40 seconds. It seemed to be moving slowly."

The two moonlets escaped the spying eyes of the Spokane, Wash. moonwatch team.

"The team had been advised by the Smithsonian Institution's Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass., that Sputnik would pass over Spokane in the half light dawn at 5:34 a.m. (PST)."

The observers, stationed at a farm owned by Preston Adler at Peone Prairie, near Spokane, had all seven of its telescope stations manned in an effort to catch a glimpse of the objects, to no avail.

Adler said they scanned the heavens until after 6 a.m. without sighting them.

San Marino Reds Hold Out

SAN MARINO (AP)—Leaders of San Marino's two rival governments planned to meet late today as some Communist volunteers threatened to shoot to defend their hold on government buildings.

Leaders of the anti-Communist "White" regime hoped to end the stalemate produced by Communist refusal to surrender the 36-square-mile mountain republic. An earlier agreement broke down last night.

Zaccharia Savoretti, a member of the White government, said that a final decision might be reached at today's meeting.

Savoretti said that Domenico Morganti, interior minister and strong man of the Communists, had cautioned patience to avoid possible violence. He said Morganti had warned that some Red volunteers were holding on to their guns and threatening to fire if anti-Communists tried to take over the Capital.

Morganti told White leaders the border in nearby Rimini, Italy, early today and a Communist official said later. "We hope to clear things up definitely in further talks."

Railroads Lose Suit To Truckers

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—U.S. District Judge Thomas J. Clary ruled in favor of trucking interests Thursday in their multi-million dollar suit against the railroads.

The federal jurist dismissed a counter suit brought by a group of Eastern railroads against trucking firms. Judge Clary declined to award the truckers the 250 million dollars they had sought from the railroads, contending a conspiracy to drive them out of business. Instead the jurist granted each of 37 trucking firms 18 cents in nominal damages.

The court ruling came just a year and 10 days after the suit brought by the Assn. and the trucking firms went on trial here. The trial also combined a counter 120 million dollar damage suit against the truckers by the railroads, charging a similar conspiracy in deterring of trade. The dual trial lasted four months, after which Judge Clary had reserved decision.

Judge Clary decreed that any damages decided on in favor of the truckers would have to be paid in the ratio of 80 per cent by the railroads and 20 per cent by Carl Boyl and Associates, New York City, a legal firm which handled the railroad account during their long struggle with the truckers.

The truckers had contended that the railroads, through an advertising campaign and by means of a lobbying program at the state capital, Harrisburg, sought to deprive the trucking interests of the opportunity to do freight business.

The railroads countered with the charge that the truckers sought through a campaign of "vilification" to adversely affect the railroad freight business and gain it for themselves.

Court Signs Curfew Order

A curfew order establishing a curfew law at Sprague River has been signed by members of the Klamath County Court. A 41-signature petition requesting the curfew for minors under 18 years of age was submitted to the court during its regular meeting Wednesday.

The curfew is effective immediately and provides that no minor under 18 can be on the streets or in any public place between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m. daily unless accompanied by a parent or an adult in whose custody they have been placed.

Deputy sheriff explained that the measure has been deemed necessary as a means of giving the sheriff's force some means of dealing with the youngsters. The officials pointed out that the youths have been running rampant during the past 12 months and that in their capacity as juveniles there are few effective means of dealing with them. The disorders have included fires, thefts, vandalism acts, and rowdiness in numerous cases.

The sheriff's deputies pointed out that similar conditions exist in the Bly and Beatty areas, and that petitions for having the same type of curfew installed are now being circulated in those areas. The petitions were obtained from the court Wednesday.

Conditions In Little Rock Move Back Toward Normal

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Conditions at Little Rock's Central High School edged back toward normal today with one big exception—federal troops remained to enforce integration and there was no sign of a break in the deadlock which keeps them on duty.

In advance of the opening of classes today, school authorities said 46 out of 4 students who have been under suspension have been reinstated or will be shortly. Most of the suspensions were for three days; others were for indefinite terms. Many of those barred from classes had taken part in a walkout or in other disturbances.

In addition, attendance at Central High yesterday totaled 1,773 with 190 absent. The absentees included those under suspension. School officials have said normal absenteeism runs about 5 per cent—which would amount to around 100 pupils out of Central High's enrollment of almost 2,000.

At the peak of the tension growing out of racial integration ordered at the school by the federal courts, absenteeism reached about 750.

Federal troops were ordered in more than two weeks ago after riots by adult whites outside the school. President Eisenhower said the troops were needed to assure the carrying out of court orders for integration.

Acting to comply with a federal court decree forbidding interference with integration, Gov. Orval Faubus several days earlier had withdrawn a Arkansas National Guardsmen he had placed at the school, avowedly to preserve peace.

The guardsmen prevented nine Negro students entering the Central High from enrolling at the school. When Eisenhower sent federal troops in, he simultaneously called the state Guard into federal service.

Both the Pfcident and the governor held news conferences yesterday, but neither gave any indication of retreat from his basic position.

Faubus said he sees no solution other than the withdrawal of the nine Negroes, six girls and three boys, from Central High School.

Eisenhower said he is very hopeful troops can be withdrawn in the near future, but he did not elaborate.

Fiery Crash Kills Fliers

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—A burning B47 Stratojet bomber exploded Wednesday, killing three veteran U.S. fliers and a Royal Air Force officer. The pilot reportedly had guided it away from a populated area.

Col. Michael N. W. McCoy, 52, Pomona, Calif., dean of B47 combat wing commanders, was believed to have been piloting the 6-engine aircraft.

Group Capt. John Woodroffe of the RAF, Lt. Col. Charles Joyce, 33, Winchester, Mass., and Maj. Vernon D. Stuf, 39, Dayton, Ohio, were also killed.

Witnesses said the plane was at an estimated 700 feet when it burst into flames and that the pilot flew it over the city toward an open pasture. They said he apparently did all possible to keep the craft from crashing into a populated area.

Wreckage hit several houses but the damage was negligible. A cow was killed in the pasture.

McCoy, holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross, was commander of the 321st Medium Bomb Wing based at nearby Pinecastle Air Force Base.

Among his combat missions was possibly the last one of World War II. The Air Force here said he was returning from the mission when he heard of the Japanese surrender on his radio.

Big Fireball Almost Hits Navy Plane

DENVER (AP)—A huge fireball streaked across Western skies Thursday, narrowly missing a Navy transport plane with 20 persons aboard.

Li. Cmdr. W. F. Norris, the pilot, reported to the Naval Air Station at Alameda, Calif., that he was "all shook up because the fireball came so close."

Norris said he saw the fireball crash to earth near the Colorado-Wyoming boundary. Another report said the object crashed east of Durbin, in east-central Utah.

Norris' plane was flying to Norfolk, Va., from Alameda.

A spokesman for the Civil Aeronautics Administration at Denver said the blazing object "undoubtedly was a meteor."

Oil workers north of Worland in north-central Wyoming told newsmen of seeing a fireball "as large as a house" streaking from north to south. They said "there were flaming chunks falling from it."

At the University of Colorado, Dr. Walter Orr Roberts said he is convinced the fireball had no connection with the Russian satellite launched last Friday. Dr. Roberts is director of the high altitude observatory at the University.

The Denver Post reported that two meteor experts told them they are sure the fireball was a meteorite. They are Dr. Harvey Nininger of Sedona, Ariz., and Dr. Lincoln La Paz of the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque.

Dr. La Paz said he is convinced the object was a stray fire ball from the Giacobinid Comet.

In the Northwest, three engineers with the Pacific Telephone Co. said they saw the fireball while driving between Lewiston, Idaho, and Pomeroy, Wash., Wednesday night. J. M. Scovill said it appeared to be a "bright, blue-green ball, somewhat like a flare."

With him were W. J. Siddons and E. E. Reinke.

Sputnik Stays On Schedule

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sputnik stayed right on schedule Thursday completely oblivious to dire predictions by earthbound experts of changing orbits, weakening signals and possibly a sudden fiery death.

Scientists at the Naval Research Laboratory here said the Russian satellite was still holding to its original orbit and speed which carries it around the world every 96.1 minutes.

The laboratory's tracking station at Blossom Point, Md., reported that it intercepted strong and clear radio signals from Sputnik starting at 6:49 a.m. EST and lasting until 7:01.

The tracking station said Sputnik's radio signal was the same as Wednesday, strong in the 40 megacycle band and more of a steady signal instead of the original "beep... beep... beep..."

All of Thursday's crossings of the United States were in a southeasterly direction. Sputnik will retrace Thursday night and make several passes over the country in a northeasterly direction.

Noted Speakers Billed For Tax League Session

Several noted speakers and tax authorities will discuss all phases of the Oregon Tax Program tonight at Fremont School during a general meeting of the Klamath County Nonpartisan Tax League.

"These speakers are completely familiar with taxes and tax programs," advises League Chairman Josephine Kittredge, and all interested persons are invited to attend and ask the questions they wish answered during the forum.

Guest panel members during the session will be Richard Eymann, executive secretary of the Oregon State Tax Commission at Salem; Richard Lucke, an industrial realtor from Portland; Wayne Glesby, state representative from Monroe; and Lew Wallace, former state senator and presently a Portland insurance executive. Moderator for the panel will be Attorney Ben Goddard of Klamath Falls.

Mrs. Kittredge points out that the panel has been specially selected to represent all sides of the tax program and tax structure, and that members represent the best brains in the state as related to taxes.

Some of the topics discussed will include (1) Will the special legislative session solve the tax problem, and (2) Is industrial development in Oregon affected by the state's current tax policy.

It has in the past been the expressed opinion of members of the nonpartisan tax leagues throughout the state that the present tax structure is in need of revamping, that it is detrimental to the attraction of new industry to the state, and that it has been instrumental in forcing some industry to move away from the state.

In addition to taxes as topics expected to be discussed include recommendations for handling the surplus which is now on hand in the state general fund, the merits or demerits of the income tax as applied in Oregon, the intent and effects of the property and corporate taxes as they now stand, and what measures of tax relief can be anticipated in the future.

It is also anticipated that the pros and cons of any sales tax proposals for the state will be fully aired.

Tonight's meeting will begin at 8 p.m. and the public is invited to attend.

Real Estate Dealers Meet

Real estate dealers from Klamath and Lake County gathered Thursday at the Winema Hotel for a special educational conference.

The one-day program opened with registration at 8:45 a.m., and president of the Klamath group, Deane Sacher, called for a flag salute and a word of welcome from Councilman Floyd Wynne, speaking for Mayor Lawrence Slater.

Clarence F. Hyde, state real estate commissioner, brought greetings to the group in remarks opening the session. The moving portion of the meetings was devoted to a talk on residential appraisals by William Abelmann, and a legal forum conducted by Theodore Jensen, Portland attorney.

The noon luncheon featured an address by L. L. Cunningham on "Human Relations, The Base of the Selling Triangle."

Remainder of the program included afternoon discussions of demonstration appraisals by Abelmann, questions and answers on real estate law and on real estate selling by Hyde and Jensen, and a keynote address by Cunningham on "Principles and Prerequisites for Successful Selling" which was expected to conclude the educational forum.

Conference committee members who arranged for the session were Deane Sacher, president; Claire Ellis, secretary; Burt Gray, Jim Stillwell, Wayne Scott and Cal Peyton.

Space Talks Get Approval

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The United States declared Thursday it is ready to begin multinational talks immediately on steps to harness space missiles for peace.

The statement was made by Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge as the U. N.'s 82-nation Political Committee resumed debate on disarmament.

Lodge asserted the United States was willing to separate the discussion of space missiles from the general disarmament debate and proceed with it independently.

The U. S. delegate reminded the committee that the United States ten years ago took the initiative in proposing international control of atomic energy. If this proposal had been accepted, he said, widespread international anxiety could have been avoided.

"We now have a similar opportunity to harness for peace man's newest efforts in outer space," he said. "We have therefore proposed that work on an inspection system that will be a sufficient guarantee that such missiles will be used exclusively for peaceful purposes."

Yankees Shutout By Lew Burdette

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UP)—The strong right arm of Lew Burdette carried the Braves to a 5-0 victory over the New York Yankees today and gave Milwaukee its first World Series championship.

With Burdette scoring an historic third victory in the series, the Braves took advantage of an error by a Yankee rookie, Tony Kubek, in the third inning to go on and score four runs and that turned out to be the ball game.

Kubek, a native of Milwaukee and earlier a Yankee hero, could have gotten New York out of the decisive inning when he picked up a perfect double play ground ball off the bat of Johnny Logan, but instead he fired wildly to second base.

That was on the only break the Braves needed, for instead of the side being retired they had two men on base with only one out. They went on to knock Don (Perfect Game) Larsen out of the box and score all the runs they needed to make it 5-0.

So Larsen had to take the rap, one year and two days after he had pitched the first perfect game in World Series history, although it wasn't all his fault.

For Burdette it was a brilliant triumph; for the Yankees, it was an unusual defeat, a game they lost because of their own shortcomings in the field. Those shortcomings robbed Manager Casey Stengel of a record tying seventh World Series triumph, but the way Burdette pitched, the Yankees never were in the ball game after that big third inning.

Unusual for them, the Yankees committed three official errors. Del Crandall's home run off Tommy Byrne, the fifth Yankee pitcher, in the eighth inning, was just icing on this Milwaukee triumph.

It was the second successive shutout Burdette had led in, having beaten the Yankees 1-0 in the fifth game in Milwaukee Monday. It ran his string of scoreless innings to 24 1/3 and made him the first pitcher since Stan Coveleski of Cleveland in 1920 to start and win three games in a series.

By UNITED PRESS
Following is a play-by-play account of the final World Series game:

Braves first
Hazel took a strike, fouled off a pitch and then went down swinging at Larsen's next delivery.

Logan bounced to Kubek on the first pitch.

Mathews was called out on three straight pitches as Larsen threw over an inning in which he threw seven pitches without throwing a ball.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Yankees first
Bauer bounced Burdette's first pitch on one hop over Mathews' head down the left field line for a double. It was the 14th straight World Series game in which he hit safely, a new record.

Warren Spahn warmed up in the Milwaukee bullpen.

Slaughter hit back to the mound and Bauer was trapped in a rundown which wound up with both Bauer and Slaughter standing on second base. Slaughter was tagged out on a play that went from Burdette to Logan to Mathews to Logan to Burdette to Logan.

Mantle bounced out to Burdette on a 2 and 2 pitch, Bauer holding second.

Berra was purposely walked. McDougald worked the count to 3 and 1 and then popped to Mathews near third base.

No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

Braves second
Aaron dropped a 2 and 1 pitch into left field for a single, marking the seventh straight series game in which he hit safely.

Covington sacrificed, Larsen to Collins, as Aaron took second.

Torre struck out four pitches. Torre Strudivant was warming up in the New York bullpen.

Mantilla flied to Slaughter in deep left, Aaron taking third after the catch and Torre holding first. Crandall forced Torre, Kubek to Coleman.

No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

Yankees second
Mathews made a beautiful backhand stab of Kubek's sharp grounder near third base and threw him out.

Mathews charged Coleman's trickler and threw him out on another fine play as Torre came up with a back-handed pickup of the third baseman's hurried throw into the dirt.

Collins struck out.
No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Logan hit to Kubek on two bounces but both runners were safe when Kubek's throw pulled Coleman off the bag at second. The Yankee third baseman was charged with an error and Logan beat the relay to first. Stengel rushed out of the Yankee dugout to protest the first base call but to no avail.

Mathews lined a 2 and 1 pitch down the right field line for a double, Hazel and Logan scoring to put the Braves ahead, 2-0.

Bobby Shantz replaced Larsen on the mound for New York.

Aaron singled through the middle of the diamond, Mathews scoring to put the Braves in front, 3-0. Covington dropped a 3 and 1 pitch into left center field for a single, Aaron racing to third.
