Al Lynch, agent here for Oregon-Nevada - California Freight, Inc., 805 Broad St., for the last six years, reports an increase in the scope of service. Interstate Commerce Commission recently granted his firm authority to blanket the entire San Francisco Bay area from San Francisco to San Jose and from Oakland to San Jose, serving all intermediate points on both sides of the Bay. This new authority will enable ONC to load freight direct from its San Jose terminal, thus avoiding transfer at Oakland. Service to Medford, Grants Pass and Klamath Falls will be overnight. . . . and to other ONC points in Oregon it will be second day.

Rainy weather did one good thing, according to the Klamath Falls Post Office. . . . Duck stamps started to sell earlier than usual and by Friday morning the main post office had sold between 1300 and 1400 stamps (the number includes those stamps bought by sporting goods stores for the convenience of their customers but does not include stamps sold by the four substations). . . . Number of stamps is about normal for the season, however.

In other post office news, the summer rural stations at Crater Lake National Park and Lake of the Woods shut down on Sept. 15 and will open again next June 15. . . . Lake of the Woods mail goes on the Harriman Star Route during winter months and Crater Lake mail is picked up by patrons at Fort Klamath during the same period.

The fourth stamp in the "Wildlife Conservation" series will be placed on first day sale simultaneously at post offices at Corpus Christi, Texas and New York City on Nov. 22. . . . the 3-center will feature a pair of whooping cranes and their young. . . . one hundred million of these stamps will be printed in three colors, blue, green and yellow.

The 13th annual convention of Oregon Motor Court Assn. will be held Nov. 8-10 at Pendleton. . . . Convention Chairman Keith Cobe of Klamath Falls' City Center Lodge says registration will exceed 200 this year. . . . the 1956 convention, at Seaside, drew 152.

Local Visitor Gets Surprise

A surprise awaited Miss Mary I. McGee, a returned missionary from India, on her recent visit to Klamath Falls to attend sessions of the Southwest Oregon Presbyterial. For 36 years Miss McGee was in charge of a mission school, located at Mussoorie, India, in the Himalaya Mountains, 7,000 feet above sea level. She also taught second and third grade boys and girls in addition to her administrative duties. Among them were children of missionaries, ambassadors, families in the technical services and professors.

During one of the meetings at which she was speaker here, she passed a picture of the Woodstock School in India. She noted unusual interest in the picture. Following her talk she was joined by four of her former students, all living in Klamath Falls. They are John Howard, member of the firm of Morrison and Howard, architects; Dr. E. E. Howard and Mrs. Howard, the former Mildred Dye, and Mrs. M. Burton Alvis, wife of the pastor of Peace Memorial Presbyterian Church, who was Sarah Ogden at the time she was in school in India. Miss McGee, now retired, returned to this country by way of the Cape of Good Hope, last spring, during the time that the Suez Canal was closed to traffic.

Fire Call Boxes To Be Shut Off

City Fire Chief Roy Rowe said Sunday, corner fire boxes will not be in operation Monday and Tuesday, and cautioned people reporting fires to phone the department. The chief said the reason for the suspension is that his department is installing a new master board and should complete installation by Wednesday morning. The old board is obsolete, he said, and added that the measure is being taken to satisfy a recommendation made to the department by the Oregon Insurance Rating Bureau.

Basin Historical Society Holds Session In Library

Hal Ogle, a member of the Klamath County Museum Commission, Ray Carlson, local curator and Mrs. Bert C. Thomas, Klamath Falls, spoke before a large audience of historically-minded residents of Klamath Falls and visitors from the Modoc Historical Society on October 9.

The meeting, regular session of the Klamath County Historical Society, was held at the county library. A tour of the museum followed the business meeting, conducted by Annabelle Newton, president. Paul Deller was program chairman.

Ogle gave a synopsis of the beginning and development of the local museum. Carlson spoke on the aims of the organization and the types of exhibits in the museum.

Mrs. Thomas spoke entertainingly on the numerous museums she visited on trips taken in the last few years. In Washington, D.C. she viewed the Daughters of the American Revolution Museum, Smithsonian Institute, the beautiful Octagon House, headquarters of the American Association of Architects, and the Mellon Art Museum.

The Metropolitan Museum and the Brooklyn Museum were visited in New York, the Edward Bausch Museum of History and Science, and the Eastman Museum of Photography in Rochester, New York. The Eastman Museum, Mrs. Thomas said, has the largest collection in existence of photographs that show the development of photography.

At Columbus, Ohio, Mrs. Thomas visited the Ohio State Museum, famous for its huge collection of Indian Mound Builders artifacts, the largest in the world with the exception of one in England which was assembled before the law was passed prohibiting the removal of these artifacts from the state of Ohio.

Mrs. Thomas distributed a number of brochures she gathered at the various museums, daguerreotypes, very early "round" photographs made by the wet plate method and an original photograph of Civil War times, taken by a man by the name of Brady, who followed the Northern army close to the firing line and did his developing on the spot in a small covered wagon.

Following refreshments the group of members and guests visited the local museum in the same building. Especially interesting were several recent additions to the museum, the "Hi Range Excelsior," of the 1890s from the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Goeller Sr.; two old costumes, one of Civil War times and one of the 1890s and a 1906 slot machine from Chiloquin. The next meeting will be held November 6 in the library.

LONDON (UP)—Moscow Radio said today a Soviet peasant claiming to be 150 years old is confident he will live to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the Russian Communist revolution on Nov. 7. Mahmud Elivazov, from the mountains of Azerbaijan, north of Iran, says he will celebrate the occasion by drinking his first glass of wine. Moscow Radio said the old peasant has 200 descendants.
