

Braves, Yanks Count World Series Shekels

NEW YORK (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves and New York Yankees counted their ends of the richest World Series ever today.

Yankee pitcher Sal Maglie, who tried to work both sides of the street, was satisfied with one cut of the money pie instead of the two he almost landed.

The 30 Braves voted a full series share were wealthier by $5,924.36 for whipping the New York Yankees 4-3 in the series. It was the third highest stake in 54 years of series play.

Thirty-three Yankees got $5,606.06 portions, fourth highest for losers.

Commissioner Ford Frick released the figures. He also squashed Maglie's opportunity to collect from both sides.

The Yankees voted the Niagara Falls money pitcher a $2,803.03 share for the month he spent with them after he was traded from the National League Brooklyn Dodgers Sept. 1.

The Dodgers assigned a $1,507.19 third-place pot to The Barber, who would have earned $4,310.22 in a series in which he was ineligible to play.

But Frick stepped in. An aide said he "believes that no man should be allowed a cut from both leagues. So he decided that Maglie would have to take the allotment from the team with which he finished the season, in this case the Yankees."

The Braves voted $6,693.27 three-quarter shares to Bob Hatter and Nippy Jones, who joined the team late in the season.

They allotted three one-third

Klamath Pels Host Tornadoes For 35th Annual Grid Meet

The Klamath Union High School Pelicans host the state's 10th ranked Medford Tornadoes Friday night at Modoc Field to open their District 6-A-1 conference play.

This will be the 35th consecutive meeting of the two schools on the football field, and the Tornadoes will enter the fray odds-on favorites to post their first win over the Pels on Modoc Field since 1945, when they upended Klamath, 51-0.

Since the beginning of the KUHS-Medford series, the Tornadoes are way ahead in the win column, taking home victories 20 times, while the Pels have come out on top eight times, five of the tilts ending in a tie.

Over the years Klamath Falls has been able to total up only 250 points against the Medford squads, while the Black Tornadoes have been able to push across 641 points against KUHS teams.

The Pels have blanked Medford seven times, while Medford has shutout the Pels 17 times, five times in a row in the games of 1924-28 and 1930-34. The Pels have been able to hold the Tornadoes scoreless for only two consecutive years, 1936-37.

The worst defeat suffered by the Pels at the hands of a Medford team was back in 1927 when the Tornadoes rolled up a monstrous 98-0 victory. The widest point spread the Pels have been able to come up with was in 1943 when they posted a 40-7 victory.

The KUHS season record stands: Marshfield 27, KU 0; Eugene 33, KU 13; Redding 6, KU 7; Springfield 31, KU 0; and Vancouver, Washington, 40, KU 7.

Medford's record to date is: North Salem 7, Medford 6; David Douglas (Portland) 7, Medford 27; Marshfield 12, Medford 0; and Central Point (Crater) 14, Medford 40.

The year by year results of the Klamath Falls-Medford series:

Beavers Lead PCC Statistics

LOS ANGELES—Oregon State's undefeated Beavers lead the Pacific Coast Conference in both total offense and total defense after four weeks of play, figures from the PCC commissioner's office showed today.

Oregon State has averaged 373.8 yards per game on offense while permitting foes but 215 yards. Washington State is second in total offense with 335 yards while Oregon ranks second defensively with 229.5.

The Beavers lead in rushing offense with 294 yards per game while Stanford has 226.3. Outstanding passing team is Washington State with 185.5 yards to 114 for UCLA. Oregon has given up the fewest rushing yards defensively, 132.5 per game, to 144.5 for Stanford. Southern California has allowed the fewest yards passing, 51.7 while Idaho has allowed 56.5.

Outstanding kick return team is Oregon with a 35.8 yard average on kickoff returns to 22.2 for UCLA. Idaho has averaged 14.8 yards on punt returns and Stanford 14.1. UCLA has intercepted the most passes, 11, and has the best punting average, 39.7 yards.

Grade School Grid Jamboree Termed Success

The Klamath Falls grade school football jamboree held on Modoc Field last night went over with a big bang and a fine turnout of spectators was on hand to cheer the gridders of the future.

Five games were played, with junior varsity teams—sixth graders—battling it out in the first game. The Roosevelt-Pelicans squeezed by Fairview, 13-6.

In the second junior varsity game, Conger-Riverside and Mills fought to a 0-0 draw.

The third game pitted the Klamath Junior High Midgets against each of the junior varsity teams, which played one quarter each.

The Midgets scored a safety against Conger-Riverside and a touchdown against Fairview, but were held scoreless by the Roosevelt-Pelicans and Mills. Mills pushed across the only score for the junior varsity teams. Final score: Midgets 9, junior varsity teams, 6.

In the fourth game the Roosevelt-Pelicans topped Fairview, 14-0, while in the final tilt of the evening Mills defeated Conger-Riverside, 14-0.

Thursday afternoon the Klamath Junior High Midgets will tangle with Fairview on Modoc Field at 4:15.

NCAA Raps Universities

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Indiana and West Virginia Universities are latest recipients of severe hand spankings by the NCAA Council's annual fall meeting Tuesday. Neither school, however, loses its right to participate in the 14 NCAA-sponsored championships or 27 cooperating events.

Indiana got it for football recruiting violations already toned down by action on the part of the Big Ten Conference and its own school administration.

West Virginia was chastized for violations concerning the recruiting of a basketball player who eventually enrolled at another school.

In other actions the council said the University of California at Berkeley, which was placed on probation Nov. 13 of last year, will be restored to full rights and privileges of the NCAA as of Nov. 13th this year and Ohio State University under probation and ineligible for all NCAA championships and cooperating events from Nov. 13, 1956, for a one year period, was restored to full rights immediately.

The council upheld its original ruling on University of Southern California—a two-year probation dating from Nov. 13, 1956. The school will be eligible for NCAA events effective Nov. 13 of this year, but will not be eligible for the Rose Bowl until 1959.

Tommy Heath Is Bevo Boss

PORTLAND, Ore. (UP)—Tommy Heath, former manager of the Sacramento Solons and the San Francisco Seals has been hired as combination general manager-manager of the Portland Beavers of the Pacific Coast League.

Heath, 44, resigned last week as field manager after serving two seasons with the Solons. He managed the Seals from 1932 through 1955.

Clyde Perkins, executive vice president of the Beavers who announced the appointment, said he believed the combination general manager-manager job was a new trend in baseball.

Heath comes to Portland at a time when the future of the PCL is in doubt because of the transfer west of the New York Giants to San Francisco and Brooklyn Dodgers to Los Angeles.

He takes over the manager's job formerly held by Bill Posedel, who resigned after the Beavers finished last in the 1957 season. As general manager, Heath replaces Joe Ziegler.

CHICAGO (UP)—Quarterback Ted Marchbroda, signed as a free agent early last month, has been put on the active player list by the Chicago Cardinals. Marchbroda completed 12 TD passes last year while with the Pittsburgh Steelers, who named him their No. 1 draft choice in 1953.

Harry Grayson's SCOREBOARD

NEW YORK (NEA)—Everybody knows that the modern college football team is as strong as its recruits.

When a school playing pressure football goes into a slump, the first thing you hear from the coach is, "We're not getting the good boys any more."

Active old grads—real and synthetic—dig up the horses. That's the only way to win consistently in football today. Forget the unbalanced line right or left, the belly series and spirit and all the other things coaches tell you about.

The man who wins college football games is the old grad with enough money to enjoy an undying love for alma mater. He's the mysterious, influential alumnus you hear about. He sits on the 58-yard line in an expensive topcoat and with a classy silver flask on his hip. Without him, there would be a lot fewer accomplished football players because nobody would be paying carfare for a visit to the campus and putting good clothes on big kids who otherwise could not afford them. One way or another, the influential alumnus sells the school to the boy.

Whenever a team stands out for a protracted period, you know proselytizers are doing a good job, but try to find one of them. They keep under cover like T-man.

"I'm afraid we can't help at all," says Fred W. Stabley, director of sports information at Michigan State. "We have absolutely no one of the John Galbreath type, or anyone even remotely resembling an Oklahoma oilman. Truthfully, there is no one in our sphere who would fit the picture. I have checked this out both with our alumni office and athletic officials, so I know I have covered the field. Sorry I can't help you on this one."

Northwest Teams Of PCC Get Slight Scent Of Roses

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Pacific Coast Conference football season is proceeding just about as most everyone anticipated it would before hostilities got underway a month or more ago.

That is to say, there is a pleasant glow and dreams of the Rose Bowl in the great Northwest country, and little or no satisfaction at the other geographical end of the league, meaning the Southern California sector.

Nor is there much joy in the midsection, or bay area of San Francisco, where California and Stanford have been undergoing severe pain on successive Saturdays.

Of the nine member PCC schools, only California, Washington State, Stanford and Oregon are eligible for a shot at the Rose Bowl post-season game with the Big Ten representative.

Oregon State can't return because of the no-repeat rule, and UCLA, the University of Southern California and Washington are in the conference doghouse for athletic misbehavior.

Idaho, while a voting member and recipient of a fraction of Rose Bowl money, doesn't play a representative schedule, so it is out of the bowl picture.

The only unbeaten team is Coach Tommy Prothro's Oregon States. This has occasioned no surprise because the Beavers have a good team.

The big surprise of the campaign is Washington State. Thanks to a resourceful, imaginative coach in Jim Sutherland, the Cougars are definitely in the Rose Bowl picture with victories over California and Stanford.

Sutherland's crew still has a rough row ahead in Oregon, USC, Oregon State, UCLA and Washington, along with Idaho.

Coach Len Casanova's Oregon outfit managed to get by Idaho and UCLA for its two PCC victories and the Rose Bowl race could well be between the Webfoots and Washington State.

California has lost four straight games, including one PCC contest. But the Golden Bears, under a new coach, Pete Elliott, put up some stout resistance in losing to Michigan State and Navy on successive weekends.

Stanford blew an 18-0 lead to Washington State's aerial minded quarterback, Bobby Newman, and, with a shelling from Rice the week before, suffice to say gloom is deep around the tepees of the Stanford Indian.

AP Poll Tags Geremia As Top Lineman

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Monte Sticksles, an end, kicked the field goal for Notre Dame that beat Army last Saturday and thereby hit the headlines.

His teammate, tackle Frank Geremia, who made it possible, was virtually overlooked in the excitement that followed Sticksles' winning three-pointer.

That oversight was remedied Wednesday when Geremia, a junior from Sacramento, Calif., was named the Lineman of the Week in The Associated Press poll.

This was the situation: Army, ahead by 21-20, had the ball deep in its own territory midway in the last quarter. Army's Dave Bourland tried a jump pass over line. Geremia deflected it into the arms of teammate Nick Pietrosante, thus paving the way for Sticksles' feat.

It was the turning point of the game and a "real tough break" for the Cadets as Army Coach Earl Blaik phrased it. He added: "The linemen (Geremia) who deflected the ball actually was on his knees."

Geremia is 20 years old and of Italian descent. He weighs 215 pounds and stands 6-3.

He received some stiff opposition in the balloting by sports-writers and broadcasters. Sammy Williams, who did yeoman work at end for Michigan State in the rout of Michigan, was praised highly. So was Dick Wallen, UCLA end, for his topflight performance against Washington.

Wallen caught four passes for UCLA against Washington, intercepted two that halted Washington threats and recovered a Washington fumble to end still another threat. He was awarded the game ball by Coach Red Sanders, who said "Wallen's got one of the finest pair of hands (for catching passes) in college football."

Other linemen who stood out included Jim Brackins, Oregon State guard.

Sooners, Spartans Face Easy Pickin's

NEW YORK (UP)—If you believe in the "wizards of odds," those gridiron Giants, Michigan State and Oklahoma, face easy pickin's again this weekend.

Michigan State, which took over first place in the United Press ratings this week, is a 2.5 point favorite over Purdue in their Big 10 Conference game at East Lansing, Mich.

Oklahoma, according to the Broadway oddsmakers, should defeat Kansas by at least thirty-four points in their Big Eight conference tussle at Norman, Okla.

The Sooners' spread over Kansas is the largest on the weekend slate, but it could be an "underlay" for one important reason: Bud Wilkinson's boys, unbeaten in their last 43 games, are not too happy about surrendering their No. 1 rating to Michigan State, so they probably will open all cylinders against Kansas.

In the East's biggest game, Army has been installed a one-point pick over Pittsburgh in their sellout contest at West Point. The Panthers have run off three straight victories since losing their opener to Oklahoma, but the Cadets, beaten by Notre Dame last week, figure to rebound.

Minnesota rates as a 13-point choice over Illinois in their nationally-televised game. In other Big 10 conference battles, defending champion Iowa is rated 7 points better than Wisconsin, Michigan is 14 over Northwestern, and Ohio State is 28 over Indiana.

Three games were listed as "even money" bets, including Washington State vs. Oregon squabble for first place in the Pacific Coast Conference. Other "pick 'em" games were California vs. Southern California and Auburn vs. Georgia Tech.

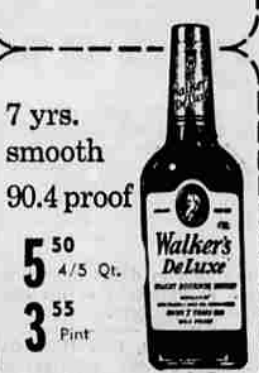

In Friday night games, West Virginia is 13 over George Washington, Miami (Fla.) six over North Carolina State, and Mississippi 14 over Tulane.

Other Saturday games by sections:

East: Boston College 1 over Villanova; Harvard 1 over Columbia; Penn 1 over Brown; Holy Cross 6 over Dartmouth; Yale 7 over Cornell; Princeton 21 over Colgate.

South: North Carolina 7 over
