Southerner Plans To Prove Integration Will Not Work

OLYMPIA (AP)—A member of the Georgia Legislature says integration won't work and he has a plan to prove it to the people of the North.

The key to his plan is an electrolytic organization.

State Rep. Alpha A. Fowler Jr., 37-year-old farmer and theater operator from Douglasville, Ga., said the charitable organization will be the vehicle for moving Negroes from the South into the better residential areas of the North.

With Negroes living next door, Fowler said the influential Northerners in the better residential areas will see first hand what integration means.

"They don't want it," the moustached poultry and cattle farmer exclaimed. "I know they don't want it."

Fowler visited the Washington State capital Tuesday as a member of a delegation representing the Georgia archives building committee. The delegation included Georgia's Secretary of State, Ben W. Fortson, Jr.

"These people in the better residential areas of the North have not been affected by integration," Fowler declared.

"By awakening them to the possibility that integration can happen to them—that it is happening to others—maybe they will take a more realistic attitude and be more sympathetic to our contention that integration won't work."

He said the use of armed force had made integration a reality to the South whereas it has been "only a philosophy" to Northern people who think they are protected by restrictions in their better residential areas.

"We say integration won't work," Fowler told reporters.

Fowler said he originally had planned to introduce a bill at the next session of the Georgia Legislature to use state money to relocate Negroes in better residential areas in the North.

He called it his integration educational program.

But, he said, the Georgia attorney general ruled it would take a constitutional amendment to use state money and such an amendment could not be put to a vote of the people until the next election.

As a result, Fowler said he shifted his plan and organized the non-profit American Resettlement Foundation, Inc., to receive contributions and donations to finance his "education by example" program.

"We're already in business," he said.

YOUNG WILLIAM TELL is personified by Jimmy Glenn, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Glenn, 4202 Douglas Street. Here Jimmy displays his seven-pointer which he bagged his first time out. An eighth grader at Fairhaven School, he went hunting with his father recently and shot the deer on Green Springs Mountain. As for the senior Glenn, no deer crossed his sights; the hunter in the family is Jimmy.

Money Woes Hit Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—On the eve of the 12th anniversary of Juan Peron's rise to dictatorship, Argentina was racked today with economic problems left when Peron fell two years ago.

After two days of deadlocked meetings between Provisional President Pedro Aramburu's government and leaders of 94 unions, the nation was faced with a call for a 48-hour general strike beginning next Tuesday.

The unions are protesting the increasingly high cost of living. The government says no wage increases can be paid without increased production, but labor leaders reply that so long as wages and costs remain unbalanced production increases are impossible.

Peron was freed from jail on Oct. 17, 1955, as a result of workers' demonstrations that ultimately pushed him to power. During his dictatorship Argentina was run into bankruptcy and today lacks economic reserves to survive lengthy strikes.

Tenement Fire Claims Four

BOSTON (AP)—Four persons perished last night when a two-alarm fire swept a three-story tenement in the Roxbury section.

Three of the victims were identified as Ronald Bennett, 20, and his two children Carl, 4, and Sherre 2½.

A woman, tentatively identified as Alice Ford, 70, died of smoke inhalation.

The bodies of Bennett and his two children were found on the top floor of the tenement. The woman occupied a second-floor apartment.

Bennett's wife, Delores, 20, was not at home when the fire broke out.

Twelve persons were driven to the street by the fast spreading flames.

Thirty other persons fled from fires which broke out at about the same time in two other buildings nearby.

Authorities said the three blazes are being investigated.

Expert Claims H-Power Use

LONDON (AP)—The Daily Express said today British scientists have found a way to harness the energy of the hydrogen bomb for peaceful use.

The newspaper quoted an unnamed scientist at the government's Harwell nuclear laboratory as saying H-power for homes and industry "will certainly be available for this generation."

Without giving details, the paper said a way to control the fusion of hydrogen atoms has been discovered by Dr. Donald Fry and Peter Thonemann.

Thonemann was reported last May to head a research team that was using a giant glass cage to produce enough heat to begin the fusion process. About 212 million degrees Fahrenheit is believed necessary, a temperature reported approached by scientists in the United States. Work on H-bomb energy is being done at Princeton University, the University of California and at Los Alamos in the United States.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission said last January it was swapping both secret and unclassified notes with the British on efforts to tame the H-bomb.
