Wall Street Experiences Bad Monday

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market has just suffered its bluest "Blue Monday" since Sept. 26, 1955, the first trading session after President Eisenhower's heart attack.

Successive selling waves yesterday slashed an estimated $6,350,000,000 from the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, based on the fall in the average.

The high-speed ticker tape ran behind the pace of transactions on no less than seven separate occasions when sellers rushed to unload.

The so-called blue chips took a beating along with stocks of lesser quality. Even American Telephone, regarded as an investment-type issue for cautious people, broke 3 1/2 points. Du Pont fell 6 1/4.

When the ticker tape ran late, brokers and analysts looked for some recovery movement after prices were pounded down—buying by so-called "bargain hunters."

Instead, prices hovered around their low figures only to be hammered down again when the ticker tape was swamped with selling the next time.

Wall Streeters reported no single news event, rumor or other factor behind yesterday's shake-out but rather a combination of "more of the same."

The member states of NATO confront a genuine crisis in the form of shortages of skilled scientific and technical manpower, Jackson said in his report.

He said no Western nation turns out as many trained men and women in these fields as Russia, but that the need for more persons skilled in these fields would exist in any event.

Among steps Jackson advocated: 1. An Atlantic community talent development program, sponsored and financed by NATO.

2. Cash awards to students and teachers in secondary schools for outstanding work in mathematics and science.

3. Immediate steps to increase the number and variety of summer study institutes in the NATO countries.

4. More international exchanges of scientists, engineers and advanced students.

5. A European employment clearing house for scientists and engineers.

Problems Face RC Meeting

NEW DELHI (AP)—The 19th International Red Cross Conference opening here next Monday may set off some political fireworks.

On the first day, Communist China is expected to protest the seating of Nationalist China. Both Chinas were represented at the last International Red Cross conference in 1952 in Toronto and both are expected to sit at this one.

The two Chinas will not be the only split nations taking part. East and West Germany, North and South Viet Nam and North and South Korea will all be on hand.

Another controversial question is a Japanese proposal to ban nuclear test explosions. This subject, close to the heart of many Asians will come under the general theme of the meeting: protection of populations.

Altamont Junior High News

By TIM MASON
On October 14, the first student council meeting was held. Making up the council, besides the six elected officers, are a boy and girl room representative from each seventh and eighth grade home room.

Their names and sections are as follows: 8A, Claudia Lane and Dale Crumrine; 8B, Kay Horn and Ronnie Simpson; 8C, Julie Braiton and Sam Crawley; 8D, Faith Perry and Charles Tweedle; 8E, Donna Yuncak and Eric Peterson; 8F, Cheryl Rathmaker and Sherman Allen; 7A, Julie Gown and Walter Ambrogel; 7B, Susan Glasgow and Donny Hummel; 7C, Carol Frie and Mike O'Connell; 7D, Kathy Murdoch and Larry Smith; 7E, Sue Kennon and Paul Hurley; 7F, Todd Tetric and Karen Sue Sloan.

Under old business, Harvey Denham, principal, explained the new constitution that was drafted last year. The council then adopted it.

New business brought up the fact that there will be a magazine sale sponsored by the Curtis Publishing Company. The sale will begin at the end of October.

The finest battle of the football season took place at Gem Stadium on Friday, October 18, between the Altamont Grizzlies and the Klamath Union Freshmen Rams.

The Freshmen beat Altamont 7-6 in a hard-fought battle. In the first quarter and second quarters, both teams drove hard, fumbled, punted, but did not score.

The Rams, in the third quarter, broke loose with two fine running plays to get a touchdown and the extra point. This gave them a 6-0 lead.

Altamont, proving just as good, bounced back when Ted Steiner, getting fine blocking, scored with a running play. Altamont missed its extra point by two steps. This meant the whole game!

In the last quarter, Altamont drove down the field. With five seconds to go, Ted Steiner faded back to pass but was rushed quickly. Thinking fast, he tore down the field on the side line.

One Ram player stopped him, however, and the freshmen beat 7-6. Altamont, as a whole, shares sympathy for Earl Brinson who was a star halfback for our team.

He chipped his elbow during the game with Fremont and will not be able to play again this year. He has scored 14 points for Altamont this year. We hope he will be well by basketball season.

Mideast Crisis Report

The decisive cold war battle over the Middle East seems about to be joined. For Western civilization, this is a moment for prayerful resolve.

The Democratic world faces a toe-to-toe struggle with communism over a vast sun-baked section of the globe which President Eisenhower calls the most strategic area on earth. The winner will be the side with the strongest nerves and greatest resoluteness.

Nikita S. Khrushchev and his Communist cohorts are toying with global peace. One serious mistake, one bad miscalculation in the Middle East now could bring the world to the edge of disaster. This would be no Korea. Much more is at stake, including the economic health of all Western Europe.

All the elements for a little war in evidence today in the Arab world. A big war remains a possibility—though not a probability. But Soviet communism persists in courting catastrophe.

Men who can harness the atom and plan outer-space travel are gambling that they can control much less manageable forces: the human emotions of a highly unstable people.

There is no mystery about what Moscow is trying to accomplish in the Arab world. The Russians do not want to start World War III. But they have gained great propaganda victories through their championing of the Arabs against Israel and through recent scientific advances. In their determination not to surrender this initiative, Soviet policy is using all measures short of the brink as Moscow dares.

It is becoming clear that one of Khrushchev's immediate goals is to force a big power meeting of heads of state giving him a permanent and authoritative voice in the Arab world's destinies.

The Russians hope to force such a meeting by beating a constant tattoo on the world's nerves and then building up pressure on London and Washington by offering hope of a way out of a highly explosive situation.

From a big power meeting, the Russians could work to emerge as the leading champions of Arab aspirations. Behind scenes they are impatiently hope to push forward relentlessly with economic, military and political penetration. They seek destruction of Western Allied influence in the Middle East, so that the northern tier of resistance to communism is broken and there is no hope left for an effective solid front.

Moscow already has a strong foothold in Syria, through military dependence. An economic trap, too, is being set for the Syrians.

The Russians probably are working hard even at this moment to bring about a situation in Syria's neighbor Iraq which will result in an anti-Western explosion there. Frustrated Arab nationalism in a nation aligned militarily with the West, provides a convenient weapon.

If the explosion in Iraq comes, Soviet solicitude for "independence and sovereignty" could offer a new Iraq regime a shoulder to weep upon, as it did in Syria. That day would be a black one for the West. Fragile, faltering Jordan would be easy prey to the Cairo-Damascus-Moscow axis. A sudden deluge of American arms has temporarily shored up King Hussein's throne, but it has given the Middle East the look of engaging in an arms race, with the Russians supplying Syria and Egypt. If Hussein should fall, the arms will fall to his—and America's—weapons.

If the Soviet program goes according to plan, Turkey would be effectively encircled. The northern tier will have come apart. With Syria astride the oil pipelines to the Mediterranean, Iraq on the Persian Gulf and Egypt sitting on the Suez Canal, Western Europe's oil would be at the mercy of Arab nationalist demands.

Will the Russians risk total war to pursue such aims? One must go back a decade to examine the chances.

Scientific Development Plan For Students Asked By Solon

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.) proposed today a big scientific talent development program, financed by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, to meet what he called "a genuine crisis."

His report, as chairman of a special NATO parliamentary committee, advocated a two million dollar a year program of educational grants and special training for bright students. He said this might lead in time to the founding of "a European-wide center of postgraduate studies—internationally staffed and financed, and drawing to it the finest students in Europe."

Jackson said he will present his eight-point program to the third NATO Parliamentary Conference opening in Paris Nov. 11, as chairman of its special committee on Scientific and Technical Personnel. He made public several of the recommendations last Sept. 5.

"The member states of NATO confront a genuine crisis in the form of shortages of skilled scientific and technical manpower," Jackson said in his report.

He said no Western nation turns out as many trained men and women in these fields as Russia, but that the need for more persons skilled in these fields would exist in any event.

Among steps Jackson advocated: 1. An Atlantic community talent development program, sponsored and financed by NATO.

2. Cash awards to students and teachers in secondary schools for outstanding work in mathematics and science.

3. Immediate steps to increase the number and variety of summer study institutes in the NATO countries.

4. More international exchanges of scientists, engineers and advanced students.

5. A European employment clearing house for scientists and engineers.

Illness Drops In Schools
DUNSMUIR—Continued improvement in school attendance last week indicated a decline in various respiratory and intestinal ailments plaguing Dunsmuir school children, school authorities announced.

The high school is nearly back to normal according to Delvin Poe, superintendent. Only 25 students were out on Friday. This is about twice the average absences per day but a big improvement over the 165 absences that closed the school on Friday, October 4. Classes resumed on Monday, October 7.
