RUSH-HOUR STROLL NEW YORK (UP)—Britain's Prince Philip learned quickly Monday how to solve mid-Manhattan's evening rush-hour traffic problem—get out and walk. Philip was riding to the Waldorf-Astoria hotel when he was caught in a typical home-bound traffic jam on Lexington Avenue. Told he was five blocks from the hotel, the Prince said to his companions, "Let's get out and walk." Accompanied by a

Turkey Train Toll Hits 89

CATALCA, Turkey (AP)—Ten more passengers have died from injuries received Sunday night in a train collision near here, raising the death toll to 89.

Seventy-nine died in the wreckage. The surviving injured now total 112.

Most of the casualties — all Turks — were aboard a local diesel train bound for Istanbul from Edirne. The local smashed into the Simplon-Balkan Express, headed from Istanbul for Europe.

Police said they were holding the stationmasters of the two stations between which the wreck occurred to determine if either had been negligent.
