Ullmans Visit In Lakeview
 LAKEVIEW - Congressman and Mrs. Al Ullman flew in to Lakeview Saturday to spend the weekend as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Renner. They were guests at an impromptu no-host dinner for 30 Sunday evening at Hunters Lodge. While here primarily for a hunting trip, the congressman was guest at a chamber of commerce luncheon at Van's Monday noon, during which he took part in a question and answer program on questions of local interest. He was a guest speaker that evening at the 4-H Achievement Day dinner-program at St. Patrick's Parish Hall.

Famous Fashion Designer Christian Dior Dies At 52

MONTECATINI, Italy (AP)—Christian Dior, 52-year-old king of the postwar fashion world, died early today of a heart attack while on holiday in this north Italian resort 25 miles west of Florence.

The quiet, balding and slightly paunchy creator of the revolutionary "New Look" had come to Montecatini a week ago with four friends.

He dined last night at his hotel with an unidentified Frenchwoman and after dinner retired to his third-floor room. At 11 p. m. he called for a doctor. Subsequently the local priest, the Rev. Giulio Celli, was summoned.

Also at the bedside of the famed designer when he died were a local doctor, a French physician and his dinner companion.

Dior was the second of French fashion's major postwar designers to die after a brief but meteoric career. Jacques Fath succumbed three years ago, at the age of 42, to leukemia.

Dior was virtually unknown until 1947, when he burst to the forefront of the bitterly competitive fashion trade with the revolutionary longer, full skirts of his New Look. In that one season he became the dictator of high style, and never since had anyone come topping him from his pinnacle.

As a young man, Dior left his political science studies to start a small art gallery in Paris.

Illness forced him out of that, and after his recovery he had to sell his last valuable painting to live. A friend who was designing dresses and hats persuaded him to try his hand and helped him get a start. He did not have great success.

After the World War II service, he started thinking about setting up his own shop. In 1946 he got the backing of Marcel Boussac, wealthy textile manufacturer. From his first collection, he was a fabulous success.

He let skirts down in 1947, hiked them up in 1953 and de-emphasized the bosom in 1954. For each change buyers, customers and fashion writers flocked to his salon on the Avenue Montaigne. Designers from Hong Kong to 7th Avenue adapted the lines he decreed, and Dior at his death headed a multimillion-dollar combine of eight companies and 16 associates in 10 countries.

Dior denied any intention of trying to create sensations in fashion. "Changes just come about," he said, "and many things contribute when everybody is ready for them." He once wrote that the New Look was a bit because postwar 1947 was the psychological time for a return to femininity.

Dior never married and was not known to have had a romantic attachment. He traveled widely and lived in a small house at the edge of Paris, surrounded by dogs, cats and a magnificent collection of antiques and art objects.
