PLANE CRASH FATAL TO TWO
HARRISBURG — Two Eugene men—one of them a member of the city council—were killed Monday night when their plane fell on a farm three miles north of Harrisburg.
State police identified the victims as Larry P. Watson, about 40, the councilman, and William H. Josemeier.
State Aeronautics Director Earl W. Snyder said at Salem he had been informed the plane took off from the Eugene municipal airport at 8:09 p.m. and made a routine radio check with the Eugene airport tower at 8:14.
The Beechcraft Bonanza crashed on Joe Faulk's farm about 8:30. Mrs. Faulk said she heard the crash, but did not investigate. Her husband found the plane when he returned home. Watson was reported to have been the pilot.

Man Admits Old Slayings
WARWICK, Va. — A confessed killer heads back to Allegheny County, Pa., Tuesday for possible prosecution of the crimes he says he committed 31 years ago.
But 53-year-old Robert Lee Payton, a Negro businessman here, will go willingly. As he puts it, his surrender will allow him to serve his conscience and pay his debt to society and the state of Pennsylvania.
For Warwick police, the story began during the usually quiet Sunday night at headquarters. Payton, flanked by two sons, walked up to the desk sergeant and said he wanted to confess the killing of two persons in a Pittsburgh suburb in 1926.
Startled police checked out his story and were told by Allegheny County authorities that Payton, known since 1926 as Robert Lawrence, was wanted there—in fact, had been under indictment for murder and manslaughter.
Payton contended it all happened because of a dog. He said he acted in self defense.
When his common law wife separated from him in 1926, he said, she took the dog with her. Payton said he later tried to retrieve the animal and in his attempt argued with both the woman, Alice Wolford, and her friend, Robert Burl. Payton told police she knifed him and Burl hit him.
Payton said he then pulled out his revolver and shot them both.
Then he hopped a freight train south. He lived and worked in a number of places, and for a 15-year period worked in a South Carolina cotton mill. During his travels he met and married the former Etrelley Birts and fathered four children.
Payton's travels led to Newport News in 1941 and finally to Warwick, where he established the Lawrence Flooring Co. with his two sons.

House Tax
bill a lot of study and get a lot of figures.
Sen. Lee Ohmart (R), Salem, a member of the committee, was ill with the flu Tuesday, but Democrats said they would let him vote by telephone.
Hopes that the bogged-down special session might end this week were fading, as there was little sign of compromise.
However, Speaker Pat Dooley (D), Portland, said he has a "feeling that things will begin to move today."
Another factor in the deadlock is the bill to restrict the state's power to levy a property tax.
The Senate passed it, 29-1, and it must clear the House Rules Committee before it can be considered.
However, that committee hasn't met this week and there is no indication it plans to meet.
Some senators have threatened to delay action on the income tax bill until the House acts on the property tax bill.
Republicans so far have been successful in getting the Senate Taxation Committee to approve their plans.
The committee contains five Democrats and four Republicans. But the Republicans have gained one Democratic vote to put over their proposals.
On Monday, it was Sen. Alfred H. Corbett (D), Portland, who voted with the Republicans to use all basic school aid increases for property tax relief.

The nation's fatality toll from flu and its complications neared the 550 mark today in the wake of sharp increases in deaths reported by four states.
However, no new flu epidemics were reported and most major outbreaks appeared to be on the decline.
The United Press counted a total of 546 deaths from flu and its after effects since the first appearance of the Asian flu strain in the United States last summer.
The toll by states showed 126 deaths in New York, 91 in Pennsylvania, 41 in Michigan, 40 in California, 39 in Ohio, 24 in Iowa, 21 in Illinois and Louisiana, 18 in Wisconsin, 16 in Nebraska, 15 in Connecticut and Washington, 11 in Utah, 10 in Colorado, 9 in Hawaii, 8 in Indiana and Kentucky, 7 in Minnesota, 5 in Oklahoma and Tennessee, 4 in New Jersey, 3 in Maryland, Missouri and Oregon, and 1 in Arizona, Maine and the District of Columbia.
The biggest fatality jump was in Nebraska where health officials counted at least 16 deaths blamed on flu since summer. Previously, only three deaths had been reported in Nebraska.
Ohio's death toll climbed from 28 to 39 in recent days, while eight new flu-associated deaths were reported in Connecticut and seven in Pennsylvania.
Authorities in Connecticut said the major flu outbreak there appeared to be on the wane.
However, serious flu outbreaks continued in Detroit, which has reported 86 deaths, and Philadelphia, which counted four more fatalities since the weekend. St. Louis reported its first fatality possibly caused by Asian flu.

Assault Case Count Ousted
Charges of assault with a dangerous weapon were dropped against Charles R. Holcomb, 26, in circuit court Tuesday.
Deputy District Attorney Freeman C. (Pat) Murray said that he asked for the dismissal because the complaining witness, Wayne H. Colvard, 32, could not remember any details of the incident.
According to earlier reports, Holcomb is alleged to have stabbed Colvard early in June when the latter supposedly tried to force his way into the home of his estranged wife at 2045 Johns Avenue.

Driver Cited After Wreck

DORRIS — The proverbial absent-minded professor has nothing on Dr. C. R. Drader of Dorris. About 2:30 p.m. on Monday, Dr. Drader drove into the alley behind the Martel Sundkvist service station at Main and Fourth and ran head-on into a Weed Belcastro Medo-Bel milk truck driven by Amelio Vernon Polon of Weed.
Dorris Police Chief Byard Kelly investigated the accident and said the doctor's car was damaged to the extent of a bent hood and smashed grille on the front of the car. The truck was not damaged.
However, Dr. Drader was cited by Chief Kelly and will appear before Judge Les Chase to answer charges of not having a drivers license in his possession at the time of the accident.
