

Disc Jockey Proud Of 'Top Heel' Title

CHICAGO (UP)—Marty Faye is Chicago's No. 1 heel.

And he's proud of it. He won the title hands down in an unpopularity contest that was his own brainchild.

"Honestly, I never dreamed I was so unpopular," he said. "This is my greatest moment."

With that, blonde TV performer Kay Westfall crowned him with a cardboard crown adorned with gold-painted rubber heels.

Faye himself is a television figure and a radio disc jockey. Admittedly, he has made a career out of flouting the precepts of Dale Carnegie. Faye is not interested in winning pals and making people think he's peachy. But he's a fast man with a snide remark.

He has an undeniable talent for getting under people's skin. With a voice compounded of equal parts of gravel and insult, he makes cutting comments about such national institutions as Sophie Tucker and Bing Crosby.

"And that's about like desecrating the American flag," he said. His listeners react vigorously, sometimes violently. On a street-corner not long ago a woman walked up to Faye and hit him in the mouth with her handbag.

"I've had the windows in my house smashed and the tires on my car slashed," he said.

A teenager incensed by Faye's castigation of rock and roll leaved a rock at Faye's head. It just missed, smashing a plate glass window instead.

Once somebody threatened to bomb him and he called for a police guard. Yet Faye regards himself as a "healthy influence."

"People work out their animosity on me," he said. "I'm provocative."

With this his critics agree, but they argue that he provokes raw emotion instead of thought. Like when he snatched the wig from his television guest's head.

Faye, a former fairground pitchman who sounds like it can make pleasant enough "off mike." He said he began his career as a thorn in the public's side five years ago when he broke in as a disc jockey on a local radio station.

On his first show he compared Eddie Fisher with a wet sturgeon.

"The studio switchboard lit up like a Christmas tree," Faye said. "People were furious. But the sponsor sold more sewing machines in those 15 minutes than he did in the previous two weeks."

That's one of Faye's unflattering. He stirs people up, but he sells and sells big.

Faye even displeases those who agree with his outspoken opinions. He detests rock and roll and Elvis Presley. Yet people who detest both may also dislike Faye.

Of Presley, Faye says: "Why look at him? Go to the zoo. The third bear on the left has more talent."

Bureau Plans Annual Meet

Local livestock people are interested in a panel discussion on "Farm Bureau Marketing Associations at Work" to be held at the Oregon Farm Bureau annual meeting at the Eugene Hotel in Eugene November 7.

William Fowler, OSC livestock specialist, will be moderator. George Manning, Lake County president, will discuss wool and lamb marketing. Earl Kerns, chairman of the Klamath Farm Bureau Livestock Committee, will talk on livestock marketing and Fred Stoenmuller, manager of the Klamath-Lake County Livestock Marketing Association, will speak on "Order Buying."

Ted Hyde of Bly, chairman of the Beef Commission Committee for the Oregon Cattlemen's Association, will explain the proposed state beef commission.

Dairymen are planning to go to hear Oscar Hagg, OSC marketing specialist, discuss "Proposed National Dairy Programs" and O. K. Beals, chief of the foods and dairy division of the Oregon Department of Agriculture, explain new state statutes affecting the dairy industry, such as milk usage auditing, Brucellosis control, milk regulations, and brand inspection.

In the promotional field, Max Cullen, assistant general manager of the National Livestock and Meat Board, will discuss meat promotion and Glen Lay, executive secretary of the Oregon Dairy Products Commission, will discuss expansion of local dairy promotion.

Hay and feed utilization and transportation will be discussed by Ray Teal, OSC grain and seed marketing specialist.

Inquiries regarding these sessions may be made by calling the County Farm Bureau office at TU 2-3821.

Movie Director's Funeral Slated

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Many of the film capital's oldtimers are expected to turn out today for the funeral of Charles J. Brabin, early director and husband of Theda Bara, late silent screen vamp.

Brabin, 74, died Sunday of a heart attack. English-born, he directed Miss Bara in many of her films.

Pianist Divorces Seventh Spouse

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The seventh marriage of Ervin Nyireghazi, Budapest-born pianist and composer, has ended in divorce.

His wife, Mara, 38, a native of Switzerland, married him only to become an American citizen, the 54-year-old former child prodigy testified yesterday in Superior Court. The couple was married last Dec. 23 and separated last March.

 CHICAGO (UP) — Plumbing manufacturer Joseph A. Grazier said Monday that what America needs is not a good five-cent cigar, but a "bathroom in every bedroom."

Danny Kaye Gives Reasons For Staying Away From TV

(Editor's note: Vernon Scott is on vacation. Today's columnist is Danny Kaye, the reluctant comedian who refuses to appear regularly. Danny gives his reasons for skipping video.)

By DANNY KAYE
 Written For United Press
HOLLYWOOD (UP) — "What have you got against television?" No, not you—me. What I mean is, this is the question that I am asked most frequently nowadays. Because I don't appear on television, "most everyone I know seems to think I must bear some deep-seated grudge against the medium."

Actually I have nothing against television. I watch it all the time. But I don't want to be seen in it. And I have a lot of reasons. As a matter of fact, I could write a book about it. Oh, I know, you have seen me on television — on the Edward R. Murrow program, "The Secret Life Of Danny Kaye," the one about UNICEF and the children all over the world.

But that wasn't what I would really call appearing on television. It was a filmed record of a trip I made around the world for the UN Children's Fund, not a "show" as an entertainer.

Why won't I make that kind of an appearance? For one thing, I enjoy my life very much the way it is. I like making motion pictures. I enjoy making the stage appearances I do. I get a great thrill from my work for UNICEF.

But I can't do all this and television, too.

In television, it's possible to

Prisoners Leave For State Prison

Sheriff Murray Britton and deputy left Tuesday morning for Salem where they will deliver three prisoners to the state penitentiary.

Prisoners in transport were Baxter Hignite, sentenced to serve two life terms on two counts of second degree murder involving the October 12 gunshot slaying of a Merrill couple; Woodrow Shaw, sentenced to one year on charges of revocation of probation involving non-support charges, and Larry Abbott, Klamath Falls man sentenced to not more than five years on charges of larceny involving an automobile.
