U.S. Okays Stockpile Plan

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States is willing to set up a nuclear arms stockpile in Europe for its North Atlantic Treaty allies.

It plans to make the offer at the forthcoming meeting of Western allies in Paris. The meeting will be attended by President Eisenhower and other chiefs-of-government.

Under tentative thinking, the weapons would be placed under the jurisdiction of Gen. Lauris Norstad, who has the dual role of commanding both U.S. forces in Europe and NATO forces.

By this handling, the administration believes, there would be no violation of a congressional act forbidding the turn-over of U.S. nuclear weapons to foreign nations in peacetime.

In case all-out war developed, the weapons would be close to NATO allies and President Eisenhower presumably would order them distributed to NATO forces immediately.

The idea of a NATO nuclear stockpile and other thoughts for strengthening the Atlantic alliance were discussed Wednesday at an extraordinary meeting of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and several former Truman administration officials who worked on NATO matters.

One conferee was Paul H. Nitze, director of the State Department's policy planning staff under Dean Acheson, and another was Frank Pace Jr., Army secretary during part of President Truman's administration.

Dulles invited the group to the conference because he wanted a "fresh approach" to the problem of strengthening NATO. He hoped to get help from persons outside government who are not bogged down by day to day details of government operations.

"I hope they have a good movie on the late show tonight—I have to write a book report!"

House Group Hears Testimony On Federal Wage, Hour Laws

PORTLAND (UP)—A House subcommittee holding a hearing here Wednesday on proposals to extend the coverage of the federal wage and hour laws heard a number of witnesses on both sides.

Most of those who opposed any extension were representatives of business firms who said their companies would be hurt by such a change.

One member of the subcommittee, Rep. Roosevelt (D-Calif.), told them the proposed extension would not apply to firms that do less than $500,000 business a year.

Gordon Swope, secretary-treasurer of the Oregon Council of Retail Clerks, said extension of minimum wage provisions have been fought by pressures groups in Oregon.

Norman Nilsen, state Labor Commissioner, called for extension of the $1 an hour minimum wage and 40-hour week to employees of retail stores and other groups not now covered.

This brought the remark from the second subcommittee member, Rep. Holt (R-Calif.), that Nilsen was "asking the federal government to do something the state won't do."

Swope, who is a member of the Oregon Wage and Hour Commission, expressed the belief most small retail stores paid their help more than $1 an hour.

He added that it is the large chain stores outside the Portland area that pay employees less than $1 an hour.

Mrs. Barbara Brown of Canby said some workers don't press for the coverage under the wage and hour laws because they "fear for their jobs."

In a previous job at Salem, she said, she made only 85 cents an hour.

A representative of Hood River area fruit growers, J. E. Klahre, objected to the proposed extension.

Roosevelt agreed with Klahre that "unique problems" are raised by migrant labor and seasonal business. "Frankly," he added, "we don't know all of the answers to the questions you have raised."

State Labor Commissioner Nilsen, in his testimony, said a number of employees in low-wage industries in Oregon still get less than $1 an hour, the federal minimum in covered industries.

"Most of the families and individuals now existing at substandard levels," he said, "cannot be expected to rise to an adequate level by their own efforts alone. The only manner in which the necessary stimulus can be given to the wage levels of these industries is through minimum-wage coverage."

Actress Tells Engagement

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Actress Jayne Mansfield Wednesday night announced her engagement to muscular Mickey Hargitay, the former "Mr. Universe," on her return from a 40-day European trip.

A 20th Century-Fox Studio spokesman said Miss Mansfield accepted a 10-carat diamond engagement ring from Hargitay as they drove from Los Angeles International Airport to her home.

The 23-year-old actress, who recently attended an audience held by Queen Elizabeth in London, said: "I didn't think anything would top meeting Queen Elizabeth, but this even surpasses that great thrill."

No date has been set for the marriage. The studio spokesman said Miss Mansfield was awaiting final processing of papers divorcing her from Paul Mansfield. It will be Hargitay's second marriage.

Norblad Reports Timber Sale Plan
WASHINGTON (UP)—Rep. Norblad (R-Ore) said Wednesday the U.S. Forest Service has advised him of plans to sell an additional 900 million board feet of national forest timber in Washington and Oregon before next Sept. 30.

The timber, Norblad said, is valued at about 12 million dollars. Half will be offered for sale before next July 1. The rest will go on the block between July 1, 1958, and Sept. 30, 1958.

Injuries Fatal To Ball Player

PORTLAND, Ore. (UP)—Injuries suffered in a football practice Oct. 2 at Kelso, Wash., high school caused the death Wednesday of 17-year-old Michael L. Lyons.

Deputy Coroner Earl Shea said the youth died of a kidney injury. He had been in a hospital here since Oct. 3.

Lyons, a senior who was 5-11 and weighed 170 pounds, was a reserve end on the high school squad.

Kelso coach Otto Kofler said the boy was a linebacker in a drill.

"Someone came through the line and blocked him from the front," the coach said. "He got up as though the wind had been knocked out of him, but he appeared to be all right."

Kofler said Michael started having pains that night and was hospitalized the next day.

Army To Cut School Force

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP)—The Army has announced it will cut in half its integration task force at Central High School.

It said Wednesday that half the paratroop and national guard forces at the high school will be removed "forthwith." The action came only hours after the victory in a city election of six candidates opposed by avowed segregationists.

Candidates running on a good government committee slate won six of the seven places on the board. The committee, which never specifically stated its position on integration, was bitterly attacked by opponents backed by segregation forces.

Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker said the decision to reduce the troops was based on "the steady improvement in community stability noted currently in Little Rock." The reductions, he said, would be carried out "forthwith."

The Arkansas Military District said no orders for such movement had been received, but a spokesman indicated 225 members of the 101st Airborne Division may return to Fort Campbell, Ky., either today or Friday.

Mustering out of federal service half of the remaining 1,800 federalized Arkansas guardsmen "will take longer because it's more complex," he said.

Gov. Orval Faubus denied having any influence in the election in which the mayor-council form of government was replaced by a city manager plan.
