Burglars Hit Local Office

Burglars were disappointed Thursday night when they broke into the offices of the Klamath Stockman's Commission Company. Their efforts to open the office safe were unsuccessful, but they did manage to get away with a check writer, a portable radio and miscellaneous supplies, according to John Newman, one of the partners in the firm.

Oregon State Police are investigating the robbery and the damage that was done. The thieves gained entry to the building by way of a rear door and broke through two other doors to reach the safe. Using an ax and crowbar they broke the dial from the safe but were unable to open it.

Jury Finds Man Guilty

A circuit court jury late Thursday evening found Jim Clark, 27-year-old itinerant laborer, guilty of attempting to detain a 15-year-old Klamath Union High School girl from her parents.

Judge David R. Vandenberg announced that Clark, a Sutter County, California man, will be sentenced at 10 a.m. Tuesday, November 12. The charge could carry a 25-year to life sentence.

For Clark and the girl, the trial culminated a story that began early in April when the pair are reported to have gone to California. The girl's parents alerted local law enforcement agencies who in turn notified California authorities.

When she was not found, after Clark had been arrested in Marysville, a third state, Nevada, was alerted to seek her whereabouts. She was later found at the Sacramento home of her grandparents.

During the trial, Clark denied that he had promised to marry the teen-ager or during her stay in California had ever said to anyone that she was his wife.

Deputy District Attorney Freeman C. (Pat) Murray was the state's attorney and Arthur A. Beddoe was Clark's counsel.

Foreign Policy Change Urged

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Walter P. Reuther, president of the powerful United Auto Workers Union, believes the United States must abandon a policy of "hates and fears" if it is to gain the friendship of Asia's millions.

In a speech Thursday to the sixth National Conference of the U. S. National Commission for UNESCO, Reuther called on the administration to fashion a "positive approach" in order to win the socio-economic battle against Russia in Asia's uncommitted countries.

Asserting that military power is "but the negative aspect of a dynamic foreign policy," Reuther said "the decisive thing is how do you use the time you buy with military power?"

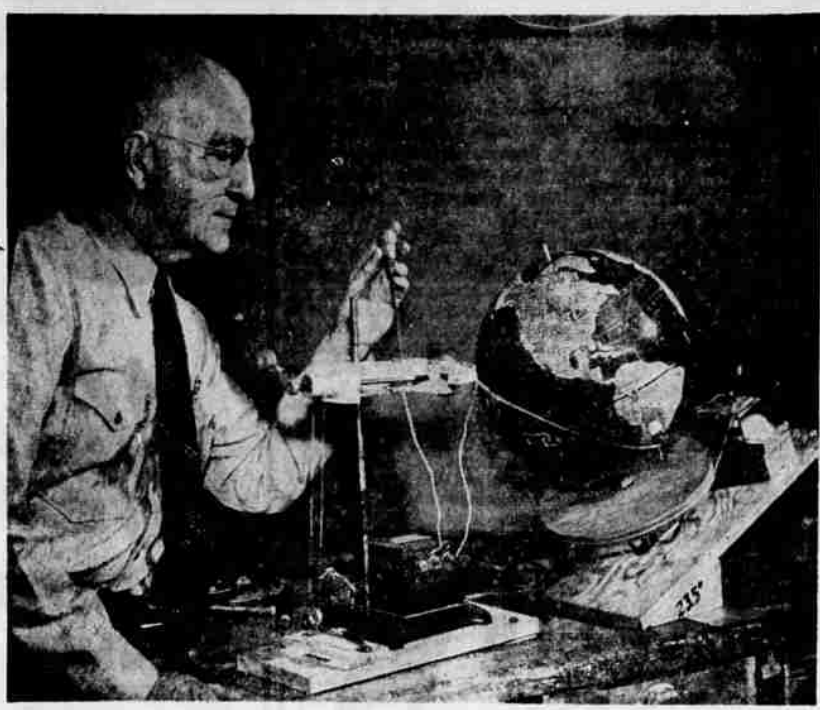

He declared that time must be used to move against poverty, hunger and human desperation in the great "economic and social cesspools" of Asia.

This positive goal, he said, should replace the "negative anti-Communist basis" and Asia should get top priority in America's plans.

Reuther, who recently toured Asia, urged a change in the American attitude that deplores the neutrality of India.

"As India goes, so goes freedom," he asserted, "and India's revolution was inspired, not by Karl Marx, but by Thomas Jefferson. He said the 600 million dollars that country needs for its second five-year plan is a sum which was spent every 10 hours during World War II."

"We must be prepared to extend aid based upon what their needs are, not on what the Communists are going to give them," he said.

A. B. EPPERSON puts the finishing touches on his model globe and Sputnik which will be on display in the lobby of the downtown U.S. National Bank Saturday. The miniature globe revolves slowly on its axis, and Epperson has arranged a lighted Sputnik which travels around the miniature globe in the orbit followed by the real Sputnik. On hand at the bank to answer questions relative to the satellite will be David Poole and Remo Melchiori.

last night—which is the first of a series he plans to make—just by yourself.

If it left you feeling better, it was a good speech with great promise for the future. If it left you feeling let down—

Well, that would be bad. There are 170-odd million people in our country, and you can bet your bottom dollar that most of them were affected by the President's speech very much as you were affected.

This much can be said. He told us the bad along with the good.

Only great leaders have the courage to do that.

OSC Seeks 'O' Wager

CORVALLIS (UPI)—Students at Oregon State College Thursday proposed that the University of Oregon's "O" become a football trophy.

A University of Oregon spokesman countered with the suggestion that OSC's homecoming court also become a revolving trophy.

OSC students, however, appeared to have the edge in the discussion. They stole the big "O" from a Eugene hillside and still have it.

Some Oregon students stole OSC's homecoming court. But they gave it back.

OSC student body president Charles Dunn proposed that the "O" go to the winner of the Nov. 23 football game between the two schools.

Said Oregon student body president Jim Lynch: "Perhaps OSC should also make the homecoming court a revolving trophy."

OSC students Oct. 28 stole the university's "O." Oregon students abducted the OSC homecoming court in retaliation, but later gave the girls back.

Losses Mount Into Millions As Transit Strike Continues

By WILLIAM A. SWARTWORTH PITTSBURGH (UPI)—This steel metropolis today struggled for the 26th straight day without its main transportation system as losses from a strike mounted into estimated millions.

Drawing on experience gained during a similar 35-day strike of trolley and bus operators against the Pittsburgh Railways Co. in 1954, residents generally have adjusted to finding other means of getting to work and to school.

But merchants have felt the strike keenly. Many shoppers have put off buying, hoping the walk-out won't last much longer.

It is estimated that business of big department stores has been off between 30 and 40 per cent. Sales in neighborhood business sections also have been affected.

Taking up the transportation slack in a metropolitan area of some 1 1/2 million are auto pools, commuter trains, taxicabs and 14 independent bus lines connecting the downtown section with various suburbs.

A number of courtesy ride stations also have been set up. Some residents simply walk.

Before the strike started Oct. 14 Pittsburgh Railways had an estimated 350,000 daily riders.

The influx of autos into the congested downtown area has caused several monumental traffic jams. Pittsburgh's hilly terrain, twisting streets and lack of main thoroughways all contribute to the vexing traffic problem.

City officials have moved to ease the situation by inaugurating new traffic rules at some points. Others are in the works.

There has been some discussion of organized staggering of working hours at plants and offices. So far nothing much has come of it.

No end of the strike is in sight. Federal and state mediators are watching closely for a change in position by either side to call for resumption of stalled negotiations.

About 2,200 trolley and bus operators struck in a contract dispute centering on wages.

The strikers, members of Division 65 of the Amalgamated Assn. of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees, demand a 36-cent hourly wage increase in a two-year contract.

Before talks collapsed Pittsburgh Railways offered a two-year pact with a 16-cent-an-hour raise over the basic pay rate of $2.14. This included a four-cent cost-of-living increment which the firm offered to freeze into the basic scale.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bustling Manhattan, one of the busiest places on earth, was thrown into a snarl of confusion Thursday night and Friday by a flood—from broken water mains.

The huge conduits snapped at five different places. Subways were shut down, forcing thousands of persons to seek other means of transit. Midtown basements were flooded, causing some buildings to turn off heating equipment. Water supplies of others were disrupted.

Torrents of water bursting upward from broken mains gushed down streets, ripping up pavement and cascading into subway tunnels.

At one point late Thursday night the famous Metropolitan Opera House was marooned on an island created by streets full of water all around it. Formally attired patrons leaving after a performance of "Faust" halted at opera exits in perplexity.

The opera management brought scenery trucks into use to transport patrons, artists, orchestra members and others to dry land. At nearby Times Square, theater crowds gathered at the fringes of the flood. Police had to divert much manpower to the task of keeping them clear of danger. Hundreds of police and emergency workers tried to cope with the situation.

The water main breaks occurred over a wide area, but the troubles apparently were unconnected.

Two developed shortly after 11 o'clock Thursday night on 40th St. between Sixth Ave. and Broadway. One was a 48-inch main and the other a 12-inch. This caused the flood in a 24-block area around the Opera House and Times Square.
