Chrysler, and Imperial) feature a double-wrap "bubble" windshield which curves into the roof as well as around the sides. And Chrysler and Imperial offer the latest step toward automatic driving: an Auto-Pilot which allows you to remove your foot from the gas pedal when the car reaches a pre-set speed.

Plymouth sports a new lower grille with triangular-shaped parking lights centered above the dual headlights. The rear fins feature vertical aluminum blades or "struts" rising above the taillights.

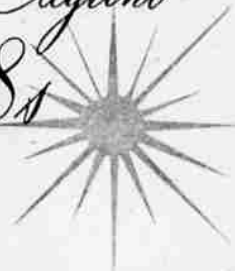

American Motors is betting heavily on its compact, economical Rambler, which offers 11 models on a 108-inch wheelbase. New improvements for '58 include a push-button transmission, all-welded single-unit construction, a step-on parking brake, non-slip differential, and a "body-dip" process which rust-protects the body inside and out. Rambler's senior series, new this year, is the Ambassador with a 117-inch wheelbase. American Motors also is bringing out a 100-inch wheelbase model to complete its line.

The sporty Studebaker Hawks are joined in '58 by a Packard Hawk which blends European lines with Packard's classic styling. In addition to its Champion, Commander, and President series, Studebaker also offers a new version of the low-price Scotsman, which was introduced on a limited basis in mid-1957. Outstanding styling features of the new Studebakers and Packards are low roof lines and high, canted rear fins.

There you have the 1958 cars, finest vehicles on the American road—until the '59 models come out, at any rate!
