

Blast Issued At Game Chief

REDDING (Special) — Damage done by last year's slaughter of does and fawns will not be apparent until the 1958 and 1959 deer seasons, according to Charles Bull, president of the Northern Counties Wildlife Conservation Association.

Bull's statement was an answer to that of Director Seth Gordon of the California Fish and Game Department. Press dispatches have quoted Gordon as saying the buck kill in the season just closed compared favorably with the five-year average.

"Mr. Gordon," said Bull, "is trying to exonerate himself of what happened last year during the either-sex hunts."

"His game wardens have been more active this fall than at any time in history, trying to check as many tags as possible so that the record can be built up. I understand they plan even more stringent methods next year."

"This year's early storms have been favorable to a heavy kill. So has the late season, which brings the bucks into the open during the mating period. There were more buck hunters—and I mean buck hunters, not doe hunters—this year than ever before.

"But even if the buck kill this year was the greatest in history it wouldn't prove anything. The real test will come next year and in 1959 when the fawns which would have been born to does slaughtered last fall would have become legal bucks. The bucks which were killed this season were not born last April or May.

"Let's wait until next fall or the fall of 1959 to pass judgment on Mr. Gordon and his so-called game management policies."
