ADULT CLASSES

McCLOUD — Teachers of the Siskiyou Junior College adult education classes state an unexpected amount of interest is being shown in the classes held in McCloud.

as she appeared in the little church, half filled with more than 100 guests, sightseers and newspaper, radio, and TV reporters. The church was lighted by the glare of floodlights as cameras recorded the scene on film for television.

Cecile closed her eyes and breathed heavily before her father, Olivia Dionne, took her by the arm for the walk down the aisle. She wore a long, handmade gown of peach de soie. It was covered with Swiss lace, embroidered and covered in front and back with pearls. Her veil was elbow length. It was held by a pearl circlet brilliant with sequins. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and chrysanthemums, the same flowers that decked the church.

The December meeting of the Klamath County Child Guidance Advisory Board will be held at the Klamath health center on Wednesday noon, December 11, it was decided at last week's meeting.

Child Board Decides Date

Joe Mercer presided at the last meeting in the absence from the city of Mrs. E. A. Geary, this year's chairman. He announced that Dr. Harry Danielson, psychiatrist who divides his time between Klamath Falls and Medford, will spend time once each month with the Klamath Welfare Department.

Civic and fraternal groups will be asked to assist the drive by contributing from organization reserves.

Sputnik I Carrier Rocket Draws Nearer Atmosphere

JODRELL BANK, England, Nov. 24 (AP)—The carrier rocket of Sputnik I circled closer and closer to the earth Saturday night, but stayed off the hour of its disintegration in the white heat of atmospheric friction.

British scientists operating the world's largest radio telescope here, spotted the rocket by radar at 8:10 p.m.—1:10 p.m. EST—after vainly scanning the skies for it throughout the day.

Previously, scientists here had kept in close contact with the rocket since its launching by the Russians Oct. 4. There was no immediate explanation of the lengthy loss of contact Saturday.

Re-establishment of contact with the half-ton rocket casing came after a day of mounting excitement at this scientific center. Observers had predicted that the rocket might burn out in a ball of fire within hours as it dipped deeper into the outer atmosphere of the earth.

But Prof. A. C. Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank station, revised his predictions of the rocket's imminent breakup after announcing his telescope had located the carrier again.

"The rocket is expected to last for several days," Lovell said. Officials at Mullard Observatory in Cambridge reported the rocket was visible to the naked eye late Saturday over that city.

The Russians apparently were not disturbed by the reports that the carrier had begun its fall into the denser atmosphere surrounding the earth.

Moscow radio carried on as usual with its regular progress reports on the satellites. There was, however, one note of caution in a broadcast listing the timetable for

Turkey Prices Continue Low

OREGON STATE COLLEGE—The high cost of living can approximately go out the window on Thanksgiving Day.

While most costs continue to soar, price tags on the traditional Thanksgiving turkey will be 18 to 20 cents a pound less for oven-ready birds than 10 years ago, Noel Bennion, Oregon State College poultry specialist, reports.

This year's big crop of low-cost turkeys comes at a time when average wages are at an all-time high. This puts the high-protein, low-fat holiday meat within the price range of everyone, says the specialist.

Bennion points out, for example, that in 1947 the average factory worker in this country had to work 29 minutes to earn the price of one pound of turkey — this year it requires only 12 minutes work. The comparison is based on U.S. department of labor reports of $1.24 average factory wages in 1947, against $2.00 this year. Also in 1947, oven-ready turkeys cost 60 cents a pound compared to 42 cents average in 1957.

Bennion attributes the low-cost meat to three things: an unusually large supply of birds, efficiency of production, and automation in processing. Benefits of all three are being passed on to the food shopper this Thanksgiving, he adds.

Ten years ago, it required five pounds of turkey feed to produce one pound of gain in mature birds. Better breeding and feeding now make it possible to grow one pound of meat with four pounds of feed. The efficiency is even greater with young birds, Bennion states. At the same time, automation in the turkey processing industry is not only providing cheaper meat but better quality and better packaged birds that are all oven-ready, he concludes.

New Scout Troops Eyed

Organization of one new Cub Scout pack, and two Boy Scout troops and applications for charters for the three groups were announced this week by Boy Scout officials, Jim Harpole and Jerry Thorne.

The new pack sponsored by St. Paul's Catholic Church in the South Suburban Area will be served by George A. Sprague as institutional representative, Curtis Brown, Howard J. Russell, as members of the pack committee.

Frank J. Jakubowski has been named cubmaster; Louis C. Jessing, assistant cubmaster; Kathleen F. Steinbock and Maxine Hanson, den mothers. The pack is chartered as No. 31 with 15 members.

Local Boy Scout Troop No. 1 is being sponsored by St. Andrew's Brotherhood of St. Paul's Episcopal Church with Norman E. Guyer, institutional representative and one of the three troop committee members, others are Al Schreiber and Don Kettler.

Artemus E. Kneel will serve as scoutmaster, Edward C. Rackleff as assistant scoutmaster. Four boys were signed as scouts.

St. Paul's Catholic Church is sponsor of Boy Scout Troop No. 31 with William V. Roach as scoutmaster; George A. Sprague, institutional representative; N. S. Chase, chairman of the troop committee and Anton Steinbock, Merle R. Britton, William J. Ryan and Robert E. Lefstee, committee members. A total of 13 boys registered for membership.

On the agenda will be nomination and election of officers for 1958, consideration of a new health insurance program and other trustees' activities.

A guest speaker from Chico State College will attend the meeting.

Los Alamos, New Mexico, where the atomic bomb was developed, was merely an isolated mountain school for boys in 1941.

MARTHA TUBACH

Prize Winner To Take Trip

OREGON STATE COLLEGE (Special)—A Klamath County teen-ager, Martha Tubach, will spend Thanksgiving Day en route to Chicago to attend the 36th annual National 4-H Club Congress.

She will board the Union Pacific Donaher at 5 p.m. November 20 in Portland along with 24 other Oregon 4-H Club members. In Chicago she will stay at the Conrad Hilton Hotel, be royally entertained at special breakfasts, luncheons and dinners, tour the city, and attend a concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

A trip to the national 4-H conference is one of the greatest recognitions that can come to 4-H Club members, says Burton Hutton, state 4-H Club extension leader at Oregon State College.

Selection of the winner was based on project work and activities, 4-H leadership exhibited and gains made in personal development during the years served in club work.

To be eligible for trips, club members had to be between 14 and 21 years of age, have completed at least three years of 4-H Club work, be picked as county award winner, and submit a record book of their accomplishments for statewide competition.

Martha was chosen state winner in clothing project competition.

Victims Of Wreck Okay

Two 19-year-old OTI students from Albany, who were injured Friday night when their car failed to negotiate a turn on the 1900 block Lakeshore Drive, were reported in good condition Saturday in the Klamath Valley Hospital.

They are James A. Williams, who sustained a laceration of the left knee and Robert V. Slater, whose right leg was broken.

Investigating officers of the Oregon State Police said Williams was the driver of the vehicle and that he failed to make a left turn, went into a ditch on the right side of the highway and hit a cement culvert.

The pair was taken to the hospital by Peace Ambulance Service.

Nurse Attends Special Meet

Hilda Boyle, supervising nurse with the Klamath County Health Department, attended an orientation course this week at the Oregon State Hospital in Salem. This program is sponsored jointly by the Oregon State Hospital and the Oregon State Board of Health.

Statistics given by the National Association for Mental Health state that one in every 10 Americans is suffering from an emotional or a mental disorder and that there are as many people in mental hospitals as there are people in all other hospitals combined.

The purpose of the present orientation program is to increase the nurse's effectiveness in working with these families.

In describing how the public health nurse can be useful to the mentally ill patient and his family, Dr. Seth Kerron, Klamath County health officer, states that the nurses are able to assist these patients with conflicts, fears and misunderstandings regarding mental illness, interpret hospital routine and help with other specific conferences with hospital physicians, mail, presents, clothing and spending money.

During the patient's hospitalization period, the public health nurse works primarily with the family, supporting and encouraging them to permit the patient to remain in the hospital until the patient's doctor recommends a discharge. She may refer the family to other community agencies.

Malin Seniors Present Play

MALIN—The senior class play of Malin High School will be presented Tuesday night, November 26, at 8 o'clock in the Broadway Theater. The play, a mystery-comedy, is entitled "The Night of January 18" and is being directed by Donald Miller with Robert Croft as assistant director.

Those having the lead roles are Betty Rogers playing the part of Karen Andre, the criminal on trial; Doug Fisk, the state's attorney; Stuart Miller, defense attorney; Bill Rajnis, the judge; Nancy DeMerritt, the murdered man's wife, Nancy Faulkner; and Farrell Wilson, Nancy's father, John G. Whittield.

The band and choral groups of the high school will also perform. Tickets will be purchased from any member of the senior class or at the theater.

OTI Display To Be Seen

Oregon Technical Institute has been invited to sponsor a display booth in the new car salon of the Portland Auto Show to be held November 23 through December 1 at the Portland International Exposition grounds.

The booth, only commercial display in the new car salon, contains a cutaway model of a 1957 torque converter transmission, a V-8 engine, and an electrically operated truck transmission. "The Highway" theme prevails throughout the entire display, with representation from automotive, diesel, and other courses offered at the institute.

HEARING — December 20 has been set as the date for preliminary hearing in Judge Les Chase's court for Lee Hobart Creek of North Sacramento. Creek was apprehended by a Klamath Falls police officer on November 14 on a fugitive warrant issued by Judge Chase on charges of driving while intoxicated and being involved in an accident causing bodily harm, a felony. Creek waived extradition and was taken to the Siskiyou County Jail at Yreka by California Highway Patrolman Virgil Winkelman Jr.

"Let's Give Teen-Age Drivers a Chance"

Like the weather, teen-age drivers are a favorite topic for conversation. But nobody ever does anything about them—until it's too late. One view is that they should be taught safe driving habits in high school along with English and algebra.
