School Superintendents Meet To Discuss Current School District Problems

About 60 Oregon school superintendents attended a meeting in Salem late last week in an attempt to develop a greater degree of school district agreement with relation to the Key District plan for allocating state school aid funds.

The method of apportioning the funds was one of the most hotly contested issues during the last regular session of the State's Legislature, and it's probable that further Key District proposals will be made at the next session.

The meeting was called by the Medford superintendent of schools, who is chairman of the state committee named to study the Key District plan. Members of the panel discussing the issue were Cliff Zollinger of the Portland school board; Jim King, Lebanon school official; Carrol Howe, Klamath County superintendent of schools; and Larry Marchat, financial authority with the State Department of Education.

It was pointed out by Marchat that 67 per cent of the state's school districts are now receiving funds from the equalization basis of the Key District plan. The Klamath Falls high school district receives a slight amount, but schools within the city elementary system and the Klamath County school district receive no funds from the equalization standpoint.

Marchat explained that prior to the last regular legislature 95.7 per cent of the state aid funds were distributed on the basis of the number of students and teachers in a given school district, and 4.3 per cent was distributed on a tax equalization basis. The modification of the distribution methods during 1957 decreased the amount distributed on the attendance basis and increased the amount apportioned on a tax equalization basis. Marchat added that 16.7 per cent of the funds is now being distributed as tax equalization, with the remaining 84.3 per cent being distributed on a per census child basis.

Opponents of the Key District modifications have contended that the bill is detrimental to good school district management and makes it profitable for a poor district to remain a poor district.

During last week's meeting two committees were named to study the plan and submit proposals which would be conducive to more agreement on the plan by school district officials favoring the plan as it now is, and the other is composed of school officials opposed to the Key District plan. Named to the latter committee is Klamath County School Superintendent Carrol Howe.

Attending last week's session from this area were Howe, representing the county schools; Arnold Gralapp, superintendent of the Klamath Falls city schools; Mrs. Ann Sprague, superintendent of the Lake County school system, and H. B. Ferrin, superintendent of the Lakeview elementary schools.

California Weather To Turn Dry

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—The weatherman promised Northern and Central California a respite from the rain for the next day or two at least, giving the area a chance to dry out from the weekend's torrential downpours.

The weatherman said, however, there might be some rain in the extreme north Tuesday, but it was too early to tell whether it would spread southward.

The worst effects of the weekend storm were felt in Marin County. At Kentfield, firemen evacuated residents from five homes Saturday when floodwaters reached 4 1/2 feet. Forty houses were menaced.

Several streets in San Rafael and San Anselmo were also flooded and carthillsides blocked traffic in two areas around Fairfax. Trees blew down across roads in Black Point and McNear's Point.

The highest reported rainfall was 2.6 inches in 24 hours at Hamilton Air Force Base.

The storm was blamed for traffic crashes that cost the lives of three persons. One of them was a seven-car collision on the San Francisco Bay Bridge that took the lives of James Bristo, 29, a sailor, and Alvin Brandt, 68, of Berkeley.

Calvin Sassarini, 45, Sonoma, was the victim of the other accident, which took place near Santa Rosa.

A slide derailed nine cars of a 60-car Western Pacific freight train Saturday near Keddie. No one was hurt.

Heavy snow hampered the search for Dennis Wurschmidt, 12, missing in Mendocino National Forest near Willows.

In the Sierra, up to 21 inches of snow fell at Yosemite National Park. However, all major mountain passes were open. The Highway Patrol required motorists to use chains in some sections.

California Weather

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Five-day weather forecast for Northern California: Rain north portion early in period probably spreading over most of area by midperiod; snow in mountains; temperatures near normal; normal minimum-maximum Sacramento 39-54, Red Bluff 39-56, Eureka 42-54, Santa Rosa 38-59, Blue Canyon 28-43.

Judges Form Association

NEWPORT, Ore.—Judge R. E. Henne of Yamhill County is the first president of the Oregon Juvenile Judges Assn., which was formally organized here Saturday.

Juvenile staff officials and judges from 27 Oregon counties were on hand for the two-day meeting for the purpose of creating a state-wide organization of county officials concerned with juvenile work.

Delegates elected Joseph B. Felton of Marion County vice president and Robert MacLean of Lincoln County secretary-treasurer.

The delegation recommended that Oregon establish several treatment centers for emotionally disturbed persons. The state also should create a state-wide network of juvenile centers, the association said.

Three Held In Shooting Probe

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Police held three ex-convicts today on suspicion of the robbery-shooting of a policeman 10 days ago.

The three men were arrested early this morning in front of a Mission District tavern which police said they may have been preparing to hold up. They are suspects in two hold-ups, including the one in which Patrolman Robert Cirimele was shot. Cirimele has recovered.

Gas War Predicted For Eugene Area

EUGENE—The head of the Lane County Gas Dealers Assn. says stations here probably will be hit by a gasoline price war by the end of the week.

Jim Johnson said stations here may join those conducting gasoline price wars in Glenwood, Junction City and nearby Springfield. Johnson speculated that the price war might affect more than 100 stations.

If affected, he said, those stations might whittle their prices three cents a gallon. That would make regular sell for about 30.9 cents a gallon and premium 34 or 35 cents.

Robber Slugs Man In Robbery

SAN RAFAEL (UP)—San Rafael police sought today the robber who slugged the proprietor of the Sun Valley Market and robbed him of $700.

The victim, Howard E. Bill, 68, a copartner in the market, was in San Rafael Hospital suffering from a fracture of the left cheek bone.

He said he locked up the market about 7:05 p.m. Saturday and drove home with the day's receipts in a briefcase. He drove into his unlighted carport and got out of his car. Someone struck him.

He came to 10 minutes later, and staggered into the house. He said he did not see the man who hit him. The briefcase was gone.
