

Khrushchev Still Plugging For Summit Conference

MOSCOW — Still plugging for a summit conference, Nikita Khrushchev proposed last night that government heads start with issues "we can agree on before tackling the tougher and more basic problems."

The Communist party boss was talking with Western ambassadors at an Indian National Day reception. He spoke with the good humor he usually displays on the Soviet capital's cocktail circuit, in considerable contrast to his blasts at the United States and the West in a speech last week in White Russia.

He did not say just how the Soviets and the Western Allies could agree or which smaller issues they are likely to agree on. The West has proposed that talks by ambassadors and foreign ministers work this out prior to any summit meeting.

Summit talks, Khrushchev said, "should be like a Russian meal. Let's start with zakuska (hors d'oeuvres), proceed with soup and fish and end up with the main course."

The Soviet Union will not return to the U. N. Disarmament subcommittee, adding that "deliberations of the subcommittee were hypocritical."

Khrushchev also repeated the usual proposals for immediate halt of nuclear weapon tests, a reduction of armed forces on both sides of the Iron Curtain and a nonaggression pact with the West.

The guests at the reception included U. S. showman Mike Todd and his actress wife Elizabeth Taylor. They were not introduced to the party boss. Todd is in Moscow trying to arrange Soviet-American production of a film and movie exchanges.

The government newspaper Izvestia today published the Western Big Three's replies to Premier Bulganin's earlier proposal for a summit meeting. The answers contained proposals which "can only lead any international problem into an impasse," Izvestia commented.

Izvestia did not specifically rule out the Western call for lower-level talks first but said the West's replies "contain no convincing explanation why serious talks between the heads of various states cannot comment in the next few months."

Teachers Hit By Illness

CHILOQUIN — The Chiloquin schools have been hard hit this winter with illness on the part of the staff. During January there have been six substitute workers.

Four teachers have been out during the past weeks. Frank DiUlio, high school social studies instructor, has been hospitalized for the past two weeks and will be out of school longer. Several of the men teachers or husbands of women teachers worked this past weekend to help the DiUlio family complete moving into their new home on Williamson River, a job that has been at a standstill during his illness. Albert Christy is filling his place at school.

Mrs. Gail Ridenour, second grade teacher, is recovering from major surgery and will be out one week longer, according to Mrs. George Hobbs who is taking her place. Third grade instructor Mrs. John Heilbronner will return in February after the newest addition to the family is five weeks old. Mrs. Gerald Wolf has taught her class since the first of the year.

Mrs. David Schneider, fourth grade teacher, is back this week after being out with the flu. Mrs. Charles Chester, Klamath Agency, replaced her.

In the cafeteria Mrs. Claude Parazo is still working for Mrs. Bill McNamer who is recuperating from major surgery. Although her husband, Bill McNamer, is back on the job as janitor, he still has a substitute on the bus run since he broke his wrist before Christmas vacation. Albert Christy is taking the bus run.

Retention Of Skilled Military Personnel Is Biggest Service Problem

Retention of skilled personnel is one of the greatest problems facing the Air Defense Command today. Lt. Colonel Raymond A. Thornton, commander at Kingsley Field told members of his unit recently in explaining the provisions of the Cordiner Committee report.

Actually, not too many people know just what the Cordiner proposals are. Most people—both military and civilian—look upon the Cordiner Plan as nothing more than a recommendation that the armed forces be paid more money, he said. Actually, the Cordiner Committee, after studying the acute problem of retaining skilled personnel in the Air Force, made a recommendation that a sweeping revision be made in the pay structure of the armed forces which would in turn provide the nation with a more stable defense force composed of highly trained, experienced career-minded personnel.

Enactment of the proposals into law, Thornton said, is the most feasible and economical method of providing more airpower at less cost to the American people. Further, he said, the time element is of great importance. He referred to recent public statements in which the security of this nation was said to be falling behind that of possible adversaries, and that America simply cannot allow additional slippage. He explains that it takes years to train good men for the right job, and that the turnover of personnel now facing the Air Defense Command is dangerous as far as the time element is concerned.

The commander pointed out that the Air Force spends more money each year finding and training new personnel, and bringing them up to a state of combat readiness, than the Cordiner Plan would cost, if once operational. According to Air Defense Command figures, it costs $15,000 to train the average airman, and much more for the highly technical skills. Each jet engine mechanic costs $22,000, a fire control systems mechanic, $26,000, and a fighter-interceptor pilot, $130,000.

"Apparently Congress will appropriate greater sums than ever this year for national defense, most of the money going into weapons and missiles and other so-called hardware. Yet in 1957 over 75 per cent of the airmen in the highly technical communications field whose first term enlistment expired did not reenlist," he explained. "It is obvious that no amount of money poured into weapons systems will be well spent unless we have the men to handle those systems efficiently."

The Cordiner Committee, named after its chairman, Ralph J. Cordiner, president of General Electric Company, made its official report in March, 1957. It is not, Thornton explained, a military pay bill, but a manpower management plan designed to give greater flexibility and control over the distribution of skills, along with a modern concept of merit raises. Throughout the report, it stressed quality, not quantity, of the manpower needed for a skilled work force to use the modern weapons of the present and those of the future.

Burglary Charge Filed

Brownie Lee Atkinson, 18-year-old Klamath Falls youth facing three charges of burglary not in a dwelling, was arraigned in district court Monday morning and asked for time to obtain the services of an attorney before stating whether or not he wishes a preliminary hearing.

The request was granted and the youth was returned to the custody of Sheriff Murray Britton under $14,000 bail.

Atkinson was apprehended by New Jersey police and was recently returned here for questioning in connection with four break-ins at the Town and Country Shopping Center during late 1957, and the theft of a safe and contents from the Ganong Variety Store during 1957.

The state police have reportedly now implicated Atkinson in last year's burglary at Baggett's General Merchandise Store.

They Live Forever

Geo. N. Taylor

Christ descended from heaven with a shout and the dead in Christ will be caught up first. Then we of His, alive on the earth, will be caught up together with them. So shall we ever be with the Lord. 1st Thessalonians 4:13-17. — Bible. Sum it up — God so loved you, that he gave Christ, his beloved Son, that if you believe on Him, as dying under your every sin, to clear you, then God gives you eternal life. Now pray for the lost. Pray until they accept Christ as dying for their every last sin. At that God gives them eternal life and he writes their name in his Book of Eternal Life. — "Most saved souls are prayed-for souls."

The Truth About Air Ride
—and why it's better in a Buick

Every window of every Buick is SAFETY GLASS.

Most cars have always used horizontal leaf springs. Some use horizontal torsion bars. For two decades, Buick has used nothing but upright coil springs at all 4 wheels for better, softer cushioning. And to get the most out of these buoyant upright springs—to bring additional solidity, balance and stability to the ride—Buick developed a new kind of chassis. This exclusive Buick chassis has the rugged roadability of a massive X-braced frame and the true-tracking steadiness of Buick's Rotoflow Torque-Tube Drive. Developed and perfected by 20 years of experience with upright springs, Buick's Miracle Ride Chassis today turns out to be a "natural" for replacing upright coil springs with upright air springs. It's this exclusive chassis engineering experience that gives you in Buick the smoothest, most advanced, most experienced air ride* in the world.

*Buick air ride optional at extra cost on all Series.
