4-H Leaders Attend Confab

Four-H Club leaders of Klamath County were present in Corvallis January 22 through January 24 for a state conference of leaders gathered to hear discussion on parent-leader-member relationships, for tours, business sessions, banquets, speeches, and award presentations. The meeting was held on the Oregon State College campus.

Outstanding 4-H boys and girls of the state received awards during the annual Sears, Roebuck and Company sponsored banquet. The delegates heard reports from International Farm Youth Exchange students, Ted Tidwell, Wasco County who spent some time in India last year, and Violet Klobas, Deschutes County who was an IFYE in Austria. Mrs. Tidwell, Ted's mother, also spoke briefly on an exchange student from India who visited their home recently. Ted in turn visited the family of the Indian student.

The leaders visited the food technology department of Oregon State College.

Present from Klamath County were Earl Wilson, Malin; Stanley Masten, Poe Valley; Mrs. Walter Croft, Henley, second vice president of the Klamath County 4-H Leaders Association; Mrs. George Reiling, Poe Valley; Mrs. William Kunz, first vice president; Gene Merritt, president; Sharon Kunz, junior leader; Francis Skinner, Klamath County 4-H leader, and Lillian Hoffman, county leader.

AL Group Has Speaker

Mrs. Ann Lahoda, Malin, District No. 4 president of the American Legion Auxiliary, spoke before members of the Klamath Falls auxiliary recently in the legion hall, North Eighth Street, on duties of chairmen as given to auxiliary units by the state department.

She placed special emphasis on membership, national defense, child welfare, community service, hospital and rehabilitation, junior activities, Crusade for Freedom.

It is the constant interest of chairmen throughout the state that results in continuing growth of this veterans organization in Oregon, the speaker stated.

The business meeting was directed by Irene Poteet, president. Katheryn Keep, secretary read minutes of the last meeting. Mrs. Ed Gowen conducted a quiz on important legislative issues relating to war veterans. Mrs. R. Moteschenbacher, Mrs. Marshall Cornet, Mrs. Edna Russell and Mrs. Carl Schubert were social hostesses.

On The Record

KLAMATH COUNTY DIVORCES Joseph M. Riley vs. Jean H. Riley, seek divorce.

THIS PAINTING WAS STARTED 1946 IN TULELAKE. IT WAS THERE AS A PRESERVER OF WAR AND DIED MR. R. WALSH ON THE PORTAGE-FIELD. BEFORE THE PORTAGE WAS FINISHED, IT DROPPED IN THE SAND AND WAS SPOILED. MR. WALSH SENTED THE TWO PAINTINGS TO CORVALLIS AND HAD THEM FINISHED BY MERRY.

A LONG DELAY marked completion of this painting of Dick Walsh of Tulelake, but the oil is now in his possession. The picture was started in 1945 by Paul Steinkert, a German POW at the Tulelake camp. During the work in the fields the painting was dropped and smeared with sand. Shortly after that the German airman left the camp. Two years ago Walsh, through the help of an Army officer on duty in Germany, tracked the artist down at Wardbohem 58, Hanover, and sent the unfinished painting over to him. Steinkert finished it from memory and returned it to Walsh last December. The picture was started while Steinkert was a member of a detail helping farmers in the spud fields during the post war period. Walsh, incidentally, has just returned recently from a trip to Ireland where he went to visit relatives. He left here in April and returned in late October, following which he visited relatives in British Columbia and Washington before returning to Tulelake.

Lag Noted In Applications For Local Beauty Pageant

Dean DeWitt, chairman of the Klamath County Junior Chamber of Commerce's Junior Miss Oregon Pageant of 1958, expressed disappointment today with the amount of applications that have been received thus far, with the judging in the local contest just a few days away.

DeWitt pointed out that this year, the contest's first, a girl from Klamath County is assured of representing Oregon in the Mobile Azalea Festival, February 27 through March 1.

He explained that because of the brief time remaining, this year's pageant is limited to contestants from this county, but during the ensuing years will come from all over the state.

Reviewing the rules, the chairman said that a girl must be a high school senior, over 16, unmarried and will not have reached her 18th birthday prior to March 1.

He added that judging will take place in Mills School auditorium February 8 at 7:30 p.m., with the public allowed to see the girls in
